ARBY'S DONATES TO BIG BROTHERS/BIG SISTERS -- Arby's Restaurant of Oakland has made a $150 donation to the Garrett County Branch of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Alleghenies. The donation was the result of a promotion by Arby's to help support the program. During the week of July 15-21, Arby's donated a quarter to the local organization for every large French fry order they sold. "The donation and promotion was very generous of Arby's," said Dan Seib, coordinator of Big Brothers/Big Sisters, pictured left. "The money will be used to help fund the program here in Garrett County." John Kunis, manager of Arby's, presented the check to Seib. Anyone interested in helping or volunteering for Big Brothers/Big Sisters should call 334-3591. Sunnyside Homemakers Club Celebrates 40th Year At Luncheon Held Recently

The Sunnyside Homemakers Club held a luncheon recently to celebrate their 40th year as an organized club. The luncheon was held at Canaan Valley Lodge in West Virginia.

The club also stopped at various craft shops at Thomas and Davis, W.Va.

The club was organized in May of 1951 at the home of Mrs. W.E. Spoerlein. Miss Ethel Grove, the Extension Office agent, and Mrs. W.W. DeWitt, county president, helped with the organization of the club.

Alice Spoerlein was the club's first president. Other officers were Mildred Snivley, vice president; Claudia Hamilton, secretary; and Zelda Snyder, treasurer. There were 20 members when the club began. Two of those charter members remain active in the club 40 years later -- Grace White and Opal Crowe.

A club spokesman stated, "The club members have been active in the club, Garrett County Extension Council, 4-H Clubs, the Garrett County Fair, their churches, and their community, always trying to make their homes and community a better place in which to live."

Another member recounted, "40 years ago, we were very formal, using husbands' names instead of our first names. Miss Grove taught us to sew suits, dresses, hats, and gloves to wear to our teas and fashion shows. Over the years, we learned to plait and hook rungs, make lamp shades, etch aluminum trays, make curtains and pillows, and even to upholster furniture."

The club has also made "sunshine" baskets for shut-ins, bibs, lap robes, and walker bags for hospital and nursing home patients. They also donate food and clothing to the needy.

They took classes in home nursing, Red Cross, and CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation) and then did volunteer work in the hospital and nursing home. Some members are now employed by those health care facilities.

The club recognized the past and present extension agents, Miss Grove, Freda Denison, Jane Williams, and Irmgard Koscielniak.

"It has been an educational experience over the past 40 years. We always welcome new members," the spokesman said.

FEASTER RECEIVES MASONIC HONOR - Dr. James H. Feaster Jr., Oakland, a former resident of Piedmont, W.Va., was recently presented a 50-year membership pin for Masonic Service by Mt. Carbon Lodge #28, Piedmont. Worshipful Master Bob Feller, right, came to Dr. Feaster's Oakland residence to make the presentation. Dr. Feaster is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James H. Feaster Sr., who for many years owned and operated Feaster's Jewelry Store on Ashfield Street in Piedmont.

Among Who's Who

Heather Hesson, daughter of Robert and Sherri Hesson, Swanton, was recently named to Who's Who Among American High School Students. She was recommended for the honor by the Quill and Scroll Honor Society for high school journalists.

Heather, a 1991 graduate of Southern High School, will attend Garrett Community College this fall.

Loyalty: Give it-Receive it!

When you decide to purchase a home and respond to an ad, what services can you expect from the REALTOR®? What are your obligations and responsibilities to the REALTOR® in return?

Once you call about purchasing a home, the REALTOR® will begin providing a package of services requiring many hours of his or her time. Initially, you may expect the REALTOR® to ask for information about the home you would like to purchase including its features, size, style, amenities, and desired location.

The next step involves researching, identifying and previewing a variety of available homes which match your criteria. A time-consuming step, the REALTOR® may devote up to three hours of time for each home located, i.e. five homes equals fifteen hours behind-the-scenes activity.

Next, appointments will be made to inspect the properties, keys picked up, and finally a tour arranged with you to see the homes. Depending on the number of homes to be seen, this step may last several hours or extend over a period of several days. Needless to say, by the time you finish your tour, the REALTOR® will have a substantial block of time invested in your purchase.

Your obligations and responsibilities to the REALTOR®, in turn, can be summed up in two words: honesty and loyalty. Honesty simply means to provide accurate information about the type home you want to purchase and your financial abilities to secure a mortgage. Loyalty means working with only one REALTOR®, that person who is willing to devote the necessary time and effort to locate the home of your dreams. Commit yourself to that person and you may expect excellent service in return.

If you'd like to purchase a home, but feel out-of-touch with what's happening in real estate, give us a call today at 387-5303 or drop by our office at McHenry Plaza.

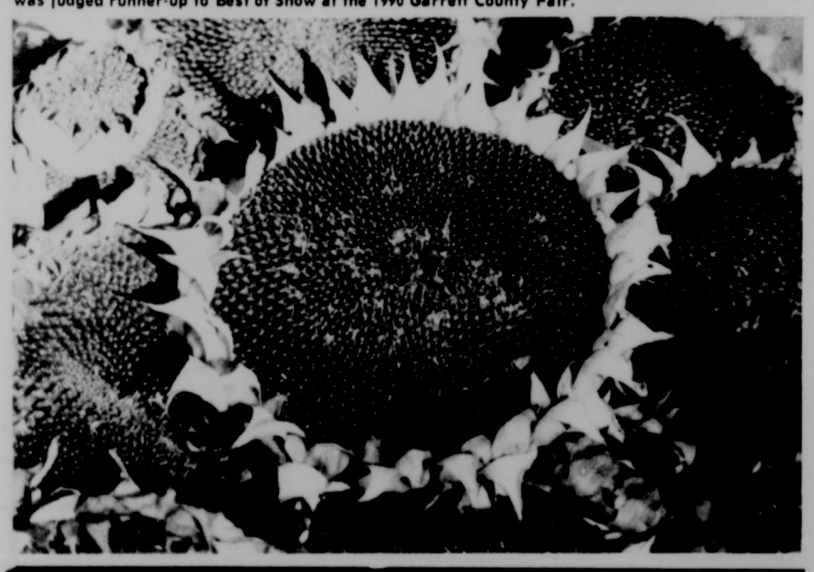
Farming In Maryland

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Local Farm Woman's Photos Are Contest Winners

by Bernice Kepple

Brenda Sebold, of McHenry, is not your normal hobby photographer. Brenda, a dairy farmer's wife and mother of four, says she began her hobby because it was something she could do in spite of her busy schedule, and because it was a way for her to record the antics and accomplishments of her children, and to capture the many poignant moments often seen on a farm. But, Brenda's photographs have an artist's touch, bringing out in brilliant color, or hiding in subtle mist and haze, subjects many of us would pass by unnoticed.



This has been proven by the number of ribbons Brenda has won, including "Best of Show," at the Garrett County Fair. Her winter photograph of a blue jay eating a kernel of corn was named honorable mention in the 1986 Farm Snapshots Cover Contest of the "Agway Cooperator" magazine, and she was recently named third-place winner in "Pennsylvania Farmer's" Rural Life in the Mid-Atlantic photo contest, with another winter photo of an ice-covered weathervane.

Brenda and her husband, Larry, have four children: Beverly, age 10; Andy, age 6; Brian, age 2, and Corey, 2 1/2 months old. She was notified of her latest award, from "Pennsylvania Farmer," on a memorable day. Only 15 minutes after returning home from the hospital with her new son Corey, she received a phone call telling her she was a finalist in the contest. She says that she didn't know she had placed as high as third until the magazine's July issue was published with the winning photos featured.

In her "spare" time, Brenda helps Larry with the farming and the 60-cow milking herd, and she and the older children are involved in 4-H. She keeps her Cannon AEI camera handy to grab at a moment's notice, and with that much subject material available, we should see many Brenda Sebold photographs in shows and magazines in the future. Watch for some examples at the 1991 Garrett County Fair.

ASCS Requires Weed Control

Kenneth R. Bachtel, chairperson of the Garrett County ASC Committee, reminds Garrett County farmers to control weeds on cropland removed from production by the 1991 acreage reduction programs.

"Once adequate conservation protection has been established on the land to prevent wind and water erosion, maintenance measures must begin," said Bachtel. "Farmers cannot neglect the acreage and allow it to grow into weeds or to become a harboring place for insects and rodents." The ACR and CU for payment acres must be cared for in accordance with the program contract, he said.

Under the contract, producers are required to control weeds, insects and rodents on cropland idled by acreage reduction programs. If the measures used are found inadequate, additional measures may be required by the county ASC Committee. Bachtel said it would be unfortunate at this point for a program participant to be found out of compliance for failure to maintain ACR and CU for payment acres.

"Keeping the land free from weeds is essential and farmers who fail to do so could lose payments and other program benefits."

The ASCS official said that most producers want to do what is best for their land and many of them have made conservation an integral part of their farming operations.

Governor's Trade Mission Uncovers Agricultural Opportunities In Japan

Governor William Donald Schaefer's trade mission to Japan in June has demonstrated that the Japanese market continues to represent an enormous opportunity for U.S. food exports according to Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley Jr.

"Maryland companies are successfully exporting food products to Japan despite the difficulties inherent in trading with the Japanese," Cawley said.

"For example, one Japanese company imported more than 1.9 million soft shell crabs from Maryland last year. My deputy secretary, Robert Walker, represented agriculture during the latest trade mission and made many contacts that offer possibilities for Maryland products," said Cawley.

While in Japan, Walker met with the Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO) and as a result they are sending a group of Japanese food importers to Maryland in the spring of 1992.

"This upcoming visit is a tremendous opportunity for the Maryland food industry," Walker said.

"It will enable Japanese buyers to taste test Maryland products, meet plant owners and visit processing facilities," said Walker.

According to both Cawley and Walker, to successfully take advantage of the Japanese market, a business needs to tailor its products to appeal to the Japanese consumer.

"This means product taste, serving size, packaging, labeling and ingredients may have to be changed to gain market acceptance. In other words, a company will need to do more than just sell what it makes. For those Maryland businesses which spend the time to understand the needs and preferences of this dynamic marketplace, significant sales opportunities are possible," Walker said.

Soil Conservation Districts Focus On Leadership At Summer Meeting

Enhancing soil conservation board effectiveness was the main emphasis of the Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts (MASCD) summer meeting last week. In an intense one-and-a-half day training session conservation district board supervisors and district managers defined their purposes and functions, developed structures and processes for working together, and developed plans and strategies for accomplishing the important goals involved with soil and water conservation in Maryland.

The training was presented by Barbara C. Bader and Steven Carr of Community Systems, located in Bozeman, Montana. Bader and Carr have been working for many years with boards, councils, committies, commissions, and other advisory groups associated with the governing of communities.

"Board leaders and members and staff who work with community groups," Bader explained, "are among the first to recognize that governing boards often fail to govern and that councils, committees, task forces, and similar work teams contend with a range of barriers to their effectiveness because of it. There is a very clear need to develop the technology of governance and to improve the capacity of work groups to self-evaluate, design interventions,and sustain development over time."

The leadership training course was also attended by several other conservation agencies including USDA's Soil Conservation Service and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Maryland. The Maryland Department of Agriculture also shared in the training.

"We moved beyond the what and why of governance," Bader concluded, "to the how -- the tools, processes, and methods for enhancing board effectiveness. Soil Conservation District Boards are responsible for setting the future course of conservation in communities, for identifying and meeting important needs, for ensuring program implementation and program effectiveness, and also for maintaining accountability to many different publics. This training and the training materials allow the boards to become their own best board consultants."

Besides the leadership training a regular summer meeting filled the first two days of the conference. The 1991 Re-evaluation of the Chesapeake Bay Program was the major topic of the first general session.

Rosemary Roswell gave an overview of the re-evaluation stating that objectives in the re-evaluation include taking a second look at the 40 percent reduction of nutrient goal that was set in 1987.

"Is this goal realistic?" she queried. "And how are we meeting it? Are the reduction commitments of 1987 cost effective, and are they achievable? Will the reductions be accepted socially and economically?"

Roswell stated she predicts a lot of changes in the coming years and urged the districts to get involved in what was imminent. She challenged board members to attend meetings, become knowledgable about what was happening, and become proactive in their approach to the Chesapeake Bay Program.

Resolutions that were passed in the concluding business meeting included one that requested all agencies and organizations working in the conservation area develop together a general permit for "best management practices" involving floodplains, waterways, tidal and nontidal wetlands in Maryland.

In part the resolution stated that with the joint federal and state applications, it takes up to six months to get the necessary permits. "Installation of some Best Management Practices can only take place within a short time period during the construction season when the establishment of a grass cover can be accomplished. Best Management Practices play an important part in the protection of the waters of the state in water quality and soil erosion and sediment control," the resolution stated.

Other passing resolutions included one that the Maryland Association of Conservation Districts support funding for additional Nutrient Management Consultants necessary for sludge application, and another resolution recommended the State Soil Conservation Committee and the Maryland Department of Agriculture work with the Maryland Department of the Environment to utilize Agricultural Waste Management Plans and Nutrient Management Plans.

GARRETT COUNTY TEAM PLACES FIRST IN STATE HORSE BOWL CONTEST — Members of the Saddle Tramps 4-H Club, representing Garrett County, placed first in the State Horse Bowl held July 17 and 18 during the Maryland 4-H Round Up. A total of 11 teams participated, with three or four members on each team plus alternates. The top individual in the state was Jason VanSickle, a member of the Garrett County team. Team members, pictured above left to right, are: Jaime Schmidt, Jennifer Morgan, Jon Jackson, Jason VanSickle, and Tina Carr, alternate. Not pictured is the other alternate, Callista Cline.

HORSEMANSHIP WINNERS — A part of the 1991 Maryland 4-H Round Up was the Horsemanship Contest. This is given to all competitors to test individual knowledge of equipment and characteristics. Jaime Schmidt, above left, placed third and Jason VanSickle tied for fourth place in the state. Another part of the Round Up was a demonstration contest. Jason VanSickle and Jon Jackson, below, presented a team demonstration on checking pulse and respiration on endurance horses for which they placed second.

Leaders Hold Summit On Dairy

Senate and House leaders have begun meetings with administration officials to resolve differences with administration officials to resolve differences in how to solve the dairy dilemma.

Difficulties in moving the House dairy bill forward prompted congressional leaders to call for meetings to find common ground on dairy legislation.

Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) introduced legislation last week that is similar to a measure passed earlier by the House Agriculture Committee. USDA Secretary Edward Madigan said he would recommend a veto of the legislation as currently proposed.

Madigan said the administration is opposed to a two-tier program that would utilize mandatory quotas and bases because this would stifle individual producers incentive and initiative.

The bills also allow for a variety of assessments on producers, including one to assure no additional cost to the Women, Infants and Children program or food and nutrition programs.

The American Farm Bureau Federation opposes both bills because of the assessments and the mandatory quotas and bases that are the core of the legislation, said John Datt, executive director of the AFBF Washington office. "This would create a support level that supersedes the market price and a quota system that replaces individual decision-making with federal decision-making."

The high level of assessments reduce the producer's ability to benefit from rising market prices, he added.

Farm Bureau supports several provisions of the proposed legislation, such as the use of a producers board, an increase in solids standards for fluid milk and the extension of the Packer and Stockyards security provisions to the dairy industry.

Administration Endorses FB-Sought Changes In Wetlands Manual

The American Farm Bureau Federation has hailed the Bush administration's decision to make changes in the wetlands delineation manual that will meet most of the organization's concerns about how wetlands are defined.

"The administration's decision is welcome news," said American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner, who had written Bush and other administration officials several times in recent weeks to express dismay over the administration's deliberations on the issue.

Kleckner said Farm Bureau will study the new language carefully. "We're pleased the manual will be open to public review."

Kleckner said the key change was the administration's endorsement of a wetlands determination standard calling for 21 consecutive days of surface saturation and 15 days of standing water. An earlier proposal called for only 15 days of surface saturation. A proposal floated by Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Reilly last month could have set a 10-day standard. The manual now used by regulatory agencies has a seven-day criteria. In addition to the "wetness" question, the administration also adopted a more stringent standard for using vegetation as a determing factor for wetlands. In other words, plants that could live in drier habitats generally couldn't be cited as characteristic of a wetland.

"We have argued all along that lands classified as wetlands should be truly wet. This gives us hope that regulators will use common sense in making those determinations," Kleckner said.

"Although the administration's proposed changes appear significant," said Kleckner, "this doesn't mean agriculture's wetlands problem has been solved. We are really just in the third inning of a nine-inning ballgame."

The farm leader said the issue "is more complicated than defining wetlands." He said current law, that is, the Clean Water Act, does not contain a wetlands policy and that "Congress has never debated the types of problems that have come up in the regulatory process. In addition, the administration's proposed changes are several months away from being enacted and we still have farmers caught up in the crossfire from the four regulatory agencies that are enforcing wetlands regulations."

As a result, said Kleckner, there is still a need for legislation. "We will continue to press for the Hayes-Ridge bill (H.R. 1330) in the House and the Breaux bill (S. 1463) in the Senate," he said. The House bill has 160 cosponsors; the Senate bill has 22.

Young Farm Women Vie For Title Of Garrett Co. Farm Queen

The Garrett County Farm Bureau Women's Committee and Farm Queen Committee co-chairmen, Karen Engel and Dove DeBerry, hosted the 1990 Farm Queen contestants and their mothers last week for dinner at the Oakland Country Club in Oakland.

After the dinner, the two young women were briefed on the upcoming contest which will take place on Sunday, August 11, at the Garrett County Fair, beginning at 8 p.m. The 1990 Farm Queen, Melissa Thomas, shared her scrapbook with the contestants to give them an example of the activities and duties of a Farm Queen. These include the county fair, local parades, banquets and conferences, plus, participating in the Maryland Farm Queen Contest at the State Fair in Timonium.

Above all, the new Garrett County Farm Queen will spend the year representing agriculture and Farm Bureau.

The entrants are required to be single farm women, age 16-19, who belong, or whose parents belong, to the Garrett County Farm Bureau. They will be judged on speaking ability, community and school activities, farm background and personality.

The 1991 contestants are Rebecca Louise Klotz and Julia Dawn Tichnell.

Rebecca Louise Klotz, the daughter of Douglas and Bonnie Klotz of Star Route Friendsville, will be a junior at Northern High School. There she is a member of the North Garrett FFA Chapter. She was secretary last year and will be this year's president. She has participated in the Creed Contest, was a member of the Dairy Judging Team for two years (placing 17th individually in the state), and has received the Beef Production Award, Star Greenhand, and Chapter Farmer Awards.

Rebecca has been a member of the North Star 4-H Club for seven years, and has held the offices of reporter, secretary, president and is currently a teen leader. She participated in public speaking for three years, participated in the county fashion revue, has taken beef steer and heifer projects to the Garrett County Fair and several shows each year, and has a pig project. She has received the Citizenship Award and many other 4-H awards.

FARM QUEEN CONTESTANTS — Julia Dawn Tichnell, left, and Rebecca Louise Klotz will compete on Sunday, August 11, for the title of Garrett County Farm Queen. The contest is open to the public, and will begin at 8 p.m. at the Garrett County Fairgrounds.

Rebecca's duties on her family's beef cattle and crop farm include feeding and caring for the cattle, pigs, dog and cats. She helps make hay and straw, helps plant and sell sweet corn, and takes care of the yard.

Indoors, she helps prepare meals and clean up afterward, watches her younger brother and sister, and does general housekeeping chores.

This active young lady's interests and hobbies are volleyball, basketball, swimming, music and showing cattle. At school she is a member of girls' volleyball, basketball, and track team. She attends Oak Grove Church of the Brethren. She is a member of the Mason Dixon, the Virginia, and the Maryland Polled Hereford Associations.

Her long-range plans after college are to go into something in the medical field.

Julia Dawn Tichnell is the daughter of Larry and Janet Tichnell, of Rt. 3 Deer Park. The family's former veal and dairy farm is now a beef, horse and tree farm, and Julia keeps busy helping work with the crops, driving tractors, operating other equipment, harvesting hay and stacking for other farmers, including farms the family rents. Inside, she helps prepare meals and clean up afterward, helps with general housekeeping chores, gardens and helps can vegetables.

Julia is a graduate of Southern High School and has been accepted at Garrett Community College this fall, studying a business major.

She has been a 4-H member of the Ryan's Glade Club for 10 years, was a county representative at the Maryland Institute Cooperatives of Education (MICE) Conference, was selected for the 4-H Key Award, received the 4-H Citizenship Award, helped at the State Fair Dairy Bar, Steer Camps, 4-H Family Night, Tractor Operator's Contest, 4-H Sunday, and was a hostess in the 4-H Building at the Garrett County Fair. This year in 4-H, she is a junior leader and treasurer of her club. Over the years in 4-H work, she has received various gold, bronze and silver awards for her projects of gardening, beef, horse, sewing, crafts, cooking, hobbies, and baby-sitting.

She is treasurer of the United Methodist Youth Fellowship at her church, the White United Methodist Church, and serves as an usher and assistant for Sunday School teachers.

Julia received the Success Award for the top 15% of her graduating class of Southern High School, where she was a member of the school volleyball team for three years, receiving the Unsung Hero Award.

She is a former Girl's Little League Softball player and umpire, and received the Outstanding Club Member of the Year Award.

Her interests include collecting stuffed animals, horseback riding, sewing, drawing, cooking, softball, volleyball and baking.

Julia's goal after attending Garrett Community College is to become a secretary for a large business.

The Garrett County Farm Queen Contest is open to the public, and everyone is invited to attend.

Grantsville Ag Service Plans Annual Meeting

Since its founding 68 years ago, "Southern States Cooperative has been innovative in the agriculture industry, and it continues to introduce new products and services to improve the livelihood of farmers," says Carroll Gilbert, the co-op's director of member and institutional relations.

According to Gilbert, the cooperative's strides and aims are reflected in the theme selected for this year's annual membership meetings: "Cultivating Innovation."

Among the highlights of the annual membership meeting for Grantsville Ag Services will be the election of local board and Farm Home Advisory Committee members, along with operations reports, which will be presented at noon, Tuesday, August 20, at the local Southern States dealership, with the business session starting at 4 p.m.

In keeping with this year's theme, the local planning group has tried to be innovative in developing ideas and features for the meeting.

The Southern States district manager will present a taped report from President and Chief Executive Officer Gene A. James, discussing the co-op's supply and marketing operations for the most recent fiscal year.

Local operating statements and services rendered to agriculture in the community will be discussed and there will be a special recognition ceremony for local board and FHAC members who retire this year.

Nominees for election to the local board are the following: David Deal, Loren Murray, Tim Murray and Dwight Yoder.

FHAC nominees are: Shirley Deal, Susan Holp and Diane Merrill.

Feds Approve State Request For Drought Aid

Senator Paul Sarbanes, chairman of the Maryland Delegation in Congress, announced that all ten members of the delegation have joined in urging prompt approval of the state's request for federal disaster assistance for farmers in eight counties whose crops have been severely damaged by the current drought.

"This aid is desperately needed to offset agricultural losses that the Maryland Emergency Board estimates will cost Maryland farmers a minimum of $57 million," Senator Sarbanes and the other delegation members wrote to Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan. "The situation is critical in each of these eight counties and we ask that you provide timely assistance to alleviate the economic hardships caused by the drought."

Governor William Donald Schaefer has requested a federal disaster declaration for Allegany, Anne Arundel, Crrroll, Federick, Howard, Prince George's, St. Mary's, and Washington counties. The state has also requested implementation of two additional programs — emergency haying and grazing on set aside acreage as well as emergency feed aid, for which Senator Sarbanes and the other members of the delegation also asked for prompt approval.

Bt: A "Biosolution" Presented At The August 22 Wye Field Day

Each year Maryland is faced with the growing problem of insect-induced crop damage. There are many bio-insecticides on the market, but they do not cater to the preventive needs of every type of crop. Several promising biosolutions will be presented at the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station's Wye Field Day on August 22.

A bio-insecticide is any biological material that kills insects through digestive means, said Galen Dively, Extension Pest Management Specialist and an Associate Professor in the Entomology department at the University of Maryland at College Park.

The bio-insecticide Bt. (Bacillus thuringiensis) works in such a way. The Bt. bacterium produces a protein crystal within a spore that, once ingested by the insect, decomposes and spreads throughout its body. This causes the insect's digestive system to become paralyzed, eventually killing the insect.

According to Dively, there are advantages and disadvantages to the bio-insecticide Bt.

The advantages include the fact that, unlike some chemical pesticides, Bt. is environmentally safe and non-toxic to humans. It is also insect-specific and offers a different mode of action for insects immune to other established insecticides.

Disadvantages include the bacterium's rapid breakdown, which leaves no residual toxic effect. The bacterium also has a very narrow target range of insects; it does not affect an insect that is not within its target.

Dively and other presenters will provide the latest information on the bio-insecticide Bt. At the field day, they will first discuss what Bt. is and how it works; then they will cover the different biotechnological approaches being used to expand the bacteria's usage. These approaches include gene splicing and transgenic plants.

"This type of bio-insecticide will affect everyone," said Dively. "My goal is to make people aware of the approaches that people will know about them when they come onto the market. Bio-insecticides are the new approach for the future."

The field day also offers many other tour stops highlighting Field Crops and Soils, Horticulture (which includes Dively's work), and Animal Sciences.

Youth activities include a Horticulture Judging Contest, Mock Agriculture Market, Beef Cattle Evaluation and Selection, and a simulated Angus Auction.

Clinics on select topics are scheduled throughout the day. The clinics include: How to Protect Yourself and Your Pets (from rabies) and Selecting Plants for Home Landscaping.

There will also be half-hour demonstrations highlighting commodities and all-day informative poster sessions featuring Peaches, Melons, Aquaculture Products and Water Quality.

H.R. 2837, an amended version of the Livestock, Dairy and Poultry Subcommittee bill, has been passed by the House Agriculture Committee. A bill containing many of the same provisions was introduced last week in the Senate. Congressional leaders and administration officials are meeting in an attempt to reach a compromise on dairy legislation.

At first glance both House and Senate proposals may appear desirable to many dairy producers, but further examination of details in the proposals is likely to result in a different conclusion.

The bills would raise the support price for milk to $12.80 per hundredweight (cwt.) for 1993. Given milk prices of recent months, this will sound like welcome relief to many producers; however, it is important to encourage them to look deeper because there are strings attached.

Both proposals include provisions that if the cost of dairy products for the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program and other feeding programs increases, producers would be assessed to cover the increased costs. They do not appear to limit costs to just those associated with the $12.80 support level, and should the market take prices higher, the additional costs would be included as well. The current estimate for assessments associated with feeding programs is a minimum of 88 cents. This money came out of the milk producer's check, thus reducing the impact of the support price increase.

The bills provide for use of a mandatory two-tier program if government purchases exceed certain levels, with exemptions for regions of the country with greater than 80 percent Class I utilization. Given the support price increase, this is likely to be implemented in 1992 and stay in place for most of, if not all of, the life of the bill. This means that during this time, all producers (with the exception noted previously) would be under a quota system. For producers, that would mean a great amount of record keeping and less freedom to make decisions regarding their operations.

It is expected that use of a two-tier program would result in the calling of additional cows as an amendment to the bills requires that producers be assessed to alleviate any negative impact on livestock producers). Estimates are that this would mean an additional assessment of 31 cents on production.

To this extent that the total amount of assessment on producers would be between 75 cents and $1 per cwt. This means that the "real" support price is reduced by this amount. It also means that agriculture in general (and dairy in particular) has to pay for some significant precedents: If programs increase the cost of food used in their feeding programs, producers are assessed to cover the cost, and if program changes have the potential of impacting other commodities, producers will be assessed to cover this impact.

Producers need to ask themselves if they really want to be saddled with these costs in the future.

Provisions in the House bill have resulted in requests from the Energy and Commerce, Ways and Means, and Education and Labor committees to review the bill. Waiting for these committees to act will delay any real legislative action until later this fall. The administration has indicated that it finds the proposals unacceptable and would veto the legislation in its current form.

Farm Bureau recognizes that current milk prices are causing financial stress for most producers. The industry has a sincere desire to do something to address the situation. The proposals are a result of this desire, but it seems apparent that if the industry really wants legislation passed an alternative is needed. Advocating a position that will not be enacted provides no benefit to producers.

The proposals do include a number of positive features advocated by Farm Bureau. They include establishment of a producer board to work in conduct of the program, increase the solids standards for fluid milk to those currently used in California, and extend security provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act to dairy producers.

These are items that can benefit the industry and that seem possible to enact into legislation. Farm Bureau is ready to work with the rest of the industry in building on these ideas to develop a proposal that can be enacted and that will provide both short- and long-term benefits to producers.

Effects of Drought are Serious

During the last couple of days I visited with several farmers in the northern part of the county. Although all of the area farmers have had considerable crop damage, the northern part of the county has suffered the greatest loss. The pattern seems to run along the Mason-Dixon line, south to the Accident-Bittinger area. My estimation is that the northern section has suffered near a 50 percent loss in corn production. There will be very little corn that can be picked for grain. Corn silage yields will be light and generally poor quality. Quite a few of the corn fields had as much or more lambsquarter than corn plants.

Should You Buy Your Grain Corn Now?

This is a question that many farmers will be pondering over during the next couple of weeks. Corn and soybean prices continue to surge because of the dry weather in the Corn Belt. In evaluating market information, you should be aware of these factors: 1) The corn market is now reacting to current weather conditions, not 6 to 10 day forecasts. 2) The market has shifted its focus to soybeans. Most corn has pollinated and we are now moving into critical growth stages for soybeans. 3) Weather markets are volatile, prices can drop as easily as they rise. Making a decision to book corn now is difficult. If you feel you're paying a fair price for advance corn, you may want to make the move. It's always a gamble.

Topsoil Remains Dry Across State

During the week of August 4, an average of 5.9 days was suitable for fieldwork, according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Across the state, 11 percent of the topsoil was very short of moisture, 56 percent was short, 33 percent was adequate and none was surplus. Subsoil moisture ended the week as follows: 17 percent was very short, 44 percent was short, 39 percent was adequate, and none was surplus. Oats were in poor to fair condition across the state. Hay supplies were adequate. Pastures are in severe drought condition. Peaches and apples were in good condition.

A short summary of the current status of the Maryland crop growing season can be heard by listening to the MDA market newsline each Tuesday starting at 1 p.m. and going through noon on Wednesdays. This timely information can be heard by calling the free phone number 1-800-638-2207.

During the rest of the week, the same number can be used to get a complete update on the Southern Maryland Regional Wholesale Market vegetable price and supply situation. This information is useful for consumers as well as people involved in vegetable growing and marketing.

Maryland's progress for the week ending August 4 was as follows, listing the item, this year's percentage, last year's percentage and a percentage of the five year average.

Crop Stage: Corn Silked, 88, 89, 84; Corn Doughed, 51, 37, 41; Corn Dent, 19, 14, 18; Soybeans Bloomed, 60, 56, 51; Soybeans Set Pods, 24, 31, 24; Sorghum Headed, 66, N/A, N/A.

Crops Harvested: Oats, 78, 70, 72; Sweet Corn, 70, 55, 58; Potatoes, 57, 58, 90; Cucumbers, 84, 87, 92; Lima Beans, 33, 12, 19; Snap Beans, 88, 70, 71; Tomatoes, 64, 58, 47; Other Hay 2nd Cutting, 52, 63, 70.

Weather

Maryland weather for the week ending August 2, was cooler than normal with light precipitation. Precipitation averaged 0.85 inch, ranging from 0.21 at Chestertown to 2.02 inches at Cambridge. Western and North Central Maryland averaged 0.42 and 0.30 inch, respectively. Southern Maryland west of the Bay and the Eastern shore averaged 1.12 and 1.49 inch, respectively. Temperatures averaged 75.6 degrees, 0.3 degree below the normal of 75.3 degrees for the July 27 to August 2 period. Minimum temperatures were mostly in the high 60s to low 70s except high 60s to mid 80s in extreme Western Maryland.

Donald Manning Given Ten Years For Child Abuse

Donald W. Manning, 37, Oakland, will serve 10 years in the Maryland Department of Corrections for committing child abuse against a 13-year-old boy. Judge Fred A. Thayer of the Garrett County Circuit Court handed down the 10-year term in court last Thursday.

Manning pleaded guilty to the child abuse charge in a May hearing, and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered at that time. In addition to the jail term, Thayer also recommended that any parole condition should be that the defendant receive sexual deviate treatment or counseling at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Manning was charged in the fall of last year after admitting to authorities that he had sexually abused the youth approximately 20-30 times in the previous three years. He was then charged with the child abuse violation as well as second and third degree sex offense, assault and battery, and sodomy. These additional charges were not prosecuted.

The defendant was remanded into the custody of the Garrett County Sheriff after sentencing. He was QUEEN REBECCA - Rebecca Louise Klotz was crowned queen of the 1991 Garrett County Agricultural Fair during special ceremonies Sunday evening at the fairgrounds in McHenry. An active member of 4-H and FFA organizations, Miss Klotz is the daughter of Douglas and Bonnie Klotz, Star Route, Friendsville, and will be a junior at Northern High School this fall. Named first runner-up in the contest was Julia Dawn Tichnell, left, daughter of Larry and Janet Tichnell, Rt. 3, Deer Park. She, too, is an active member of 4-H and is a 1991 graduate of Southern High School. She will attend Garrett Community College this fall. Crowning the new queen was the 1990 queen, Melissa Thomas, of Accident.

Two Development Projects Receive Funding Approval

The Garrett County Commissioners this week announced that two county economic development projects have been approved for Community Development Block Grant funding, totalling $1,429,000.

A $900,000 grant has been approved for the purpose of expanding Garrett Optical, Inc. According to Tom Jones, Garrett County Economic Development director, the funds will be used for the acquisition of new equipment at the facility. Jones added that the facility is expected to be operational by late September or early October of this year.

The second project, the development of the Northern Garrett Industrial Park, received funding in the amount of $529,000. Those funds will be used to construct an industrial access road, a sewer line from the town of Grantsville to the park and for storm water management, stated Jones.

Education Brd. Restores GT Teacher Position With Chapter I Grant Money

The Garrett County Board of Education met Tuesday and agreed to reinstatement of one of the two previously cut gifted and talented teachers. The decision came after board members were told that a $122,000 concentration grant from the state Chapter I program was available to the school system, although the administrative staff was "unaware" of the grant at the board's last meeting.

Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of elementary education, explained that she had recently been given the duties of the exiting Chapter I supervisor, Charlene Evans-Thomas, and that she had began studying the Chapter I budget soon after the last board meeting. After contacting Chapter I representatives in the Baltimore area, McCartney was informed that the concentration grant existed and was available to Garrett County.

McCartney stated that the additional $122,000 has allowed the administrative staff to employ two Chapter I resource teachers, adding one to the Broad Ford School, and increasing the teachers' time at Kitzmiller and Red House from half time to full. Also approved by the board members was the transfer of two county assistants to Chapter I assistants, which will free up more county money, McCartney said.

Finally, the remaining money will be used to reinstate one of the two previously cut gifted and talented teachers. The gifted and talented program was cut last month by eliminating

Dr. Melvin Gonzaga, Anesthesiologist, is the newest member of the medical staff at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Gonzaga, who is board eligible, completed his residency at the University of Connecticut School of Medicine in Newark, N.J., in June 1985. Prior to coming to Garrett County, he was on staff as anesthesiologist at Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland. He was chief of anesthesia and president of the Medical Staff (1989-90) at Frostburg Community Hospital. Most recently he was on staff at the Atlantic City Medical Center.

Three Of Four Persons Not Prosecuted In Drug Case In G.C. District Court

Of four persons who had been charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana), only one case was prosecuted by the State's Attorney's Office in Garrett County District Court proceedings last week.

Sherry D. Steyer, 26, Deer Park; Brad C. Lewis, 22, Oakland; and Janet L. Nicholas, 24, McHenry; all had charges against them dropped because Henry K. Steyer, 39, Deer Park, pleaded guilty to the charge.

The four had been arrested on March 2 by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. They were reportedly stopped for a safety equipment violation when the deputy noticed a moderate odor of marijuana coming from the vehicle.

The deputy stated that the owner of the vehicle indicated that they had all been smoking marijuana on the way to a concert. Two marijuana cigarette butts were reportedly found in the car's ashtray, according to police reports.

Judge Timothy Finan from Allegany County District Court was the presiding judge in the case and sentenced Steyer to two days in jail and court costs.

Garrett County District Court Judge Jack R. Turney was the presiding judge in another drug case last week in which Keith R. Lewis, 30, Westernport, was found guilty of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) and assault and battery.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered by the judge.

Lewis had been charged by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office on May 26 after he and two other persons were observed in the Deep Creek Lake area with a small plastic bag of suspected marijuana and rolling papers.

The deputy contended that when he attempted to arrest Lewis, he pushed his hand away and fled. The deputy apprehended Lewis and forced him to the

Shockey Resigns As County Roads Administrator

The Garrett County Commissioners this week received a letter from Paul Shockey, Garrett County Roads Department Administrator, of his intent to formally resign from his position, effective October 16.

Shockey's letter, dated August 8, also revealed his plans to apply for long-term disability, "based on the advice of my doctor." Shockey has been on short-term medical leave since June 18, and Robert Fousek, county administrator, has been serving as acting roads administrator in Shockey's absence.

Shockey, in his letter, thanked the county commissioners for the opportunity to serve as administrator and offered his services to assist in the county roads operations during the transition.

The county commissioners indicated that it has yet to be determined who will be selected for the position of county roads administrator.

"This gives us an opportunity to look at the present staff and possibly re-organize the department," stated Braskey. He also noted that the administrative position may be divided into more than one component.

Four Boating Mishaps Occur In One Hour

Three water skiers sustained injuries in a total of four boating accidents that occurred Monday at Deep Creek Lake within one hour of each other, according to Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police.

The accidents reportedly occurred between noon and 1 p.m., and the three injured persons were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where they were all treated and released. One accident resulted in injury to Brian Duy, Alexandria, Va., who was being towed by his brother, Michael Duy, when his left ski fell off and he reportedly wrenched his knee.

Another of the four mishaps involved a collision between two boats, one a 23-foot Century, operated by Jefferson Walter, 46, Pittsburgh, and the other a 16-foot runabout rental boat operated by Gina Sierka, 21, also of Pittsburgh. The boats apparently sideswiped each other resulting in $300 worth of damage to each. No injuries occurred and no citations were issued in that mishap.

West End Opera Trio To Kick Off 1991 GLAF Music Festival

The West End Opera Trio from New York City will present "A Night of Classical Vignettes" to open the 1991 Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's Symphony at Deep Creek series. The program, which will feature various scenes from popular operas, will be presented Wednesday, Aug. 21, on the Garrett Community College stage.

Kathryn Sincell, executive director of the Symphony at Deep Creek and a member of the West End Opera Trio, emphasized that some of the opera scenes to be presented will be humorous, some will be energetic, and some will be emotional and touching. The program is designed to appeal to children as well as adults.

Between each scene an explanation will be given by a member of the trio to make sure the audience knows from which opera the scene is taken and understands the setting and the particular situation.

"We hope this program will open a door for many people in and around Garrett County who may not have had an opportunity to experience the fun in opera," Ms. Sincell said. "By explaining to the audience what is happening in each of the scenes, they will realize that opera is just another way of presenting a play or telling a story, complete with humor, drama, and emotion."

She also pointed out that, out of the several programs offered during the four-day festival, this will be the only one that will offer vocal performance.

A "Meet the Musicians" reception for the performers will be held in the GCC Bausch & Lomb Gallery following the performance.

Ms. Sincell is the soprano member of the West End Opera Trio, Lenora Eve is the mezzo, and Dan McComas is the baritone.

Ms. Eve is a private vocal instructor in New York City and will be singing with the Amato Opera Company this

Famed Cellist To Hold Master Classes, Cello Competition During Music Fest

Aldo Parisot, long known to the music world as a great cellist of his generation, will be conducting master classes and staging a competition among outstanding young cellists (between the ages of 17-25) next week during the Symphony at Deep Creek, the final offering of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival.

Parisot, who is presently on the faculties of Yale and the Juilliard, heard of the music festival through Erick Friedman, musical director. The cellist became interested in the Chatauqua-like festival and offered to come to Garrett County to conduct a competition among young cellists. He also has provided a $1,000 prize to be awarded to the most outstanding cellist of the master classes.

Approximately five cellists from around the world have entered the competition, and will arrive in Garrett County on Saturday. The competition will take place on Sunday, August 18, from 3:30-5:30 p.m. in the Garrett Community College auditorium, and is open to the public.

The master classes will occur on Monday and Tuesday, at 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m. Although the students of the classes have already been chosen, other persons are invited to attend the classes as auditors. Local Families Busily Preparing Homes, Food For Visiting Musicians

by Cindy Stacy

Think what it's like during the Fourth of July or the Christmas holidays when your household is humming with the excitement of family and friends and the aroma of homemade everything wafts through the house. Add to that the sound of music coming from voices to violins and you've got a pretty good picture of how life will be next week for many Mtn. Lake Park and Oakland families who have generously opened their homes and hearths to the musicians performing in this year's music festival, The Symphony at Deep Creek, August 21-24, as part of the summer Garrett Lakes Arts Festival.

"Actually, we're always full of guests and family," says Kathy Smith, explaining how her seven-bedroom Mtn. Lake Park home, dating from the days she summered here as a child, frequently accommodates visiting friends and relatives. So, she explains, housing two married couples (one with a baby) connected with the music festival, plus a French exchange student, a medical student studying with Oakland's Dr. Peg Kaiser, and her own family is really "not unusual."

But it is worth noting because Mrs. Smith is also--along with Hannah Sincell and Diane Thayer--helping to prepare complete dinners for thirty music festival guests each night next week, three of which will be held at the Smiths' and three at the Sincells' residence.

While all three women are seasoned hostesses and gourmet cooks, it's still quite an undertaking period. Yet in brief interviews, each one pointed to good organization (mostly Hannah's), plenty of help from numerous area residents, and the sheer joy of helping to bring such musicians to the area as reasons for saying "it isn't that difficult" (Kathy Smith) or "where else can you cook and hear music being rehearsed at the same time?" (Diane Thayer).

The women donate not only their time, including advance planning and preparation, but hundreds of dollars worth of food for menus that focus, as Mrs. Thayer explains, "on plenty of fresh produce and seasonal items." Among the wide variety of entrees, salads and desserts planned for the dinners, there's no skimping on ingredients or meticulous preparation either.

Take Mrs. Thayer's mousse, which calls for 30 eggs and plenty of fresh cream, or her Brunswick stew, for instance, planned for Friday's meal. Tripling her standard recipe, she'll have to shop for and cook down some ten pounds of fresh chicken, twelve cups of tomatoes, four and half cups of onions and six cups of corn, etc. Plus the same evening's menu will also include a Lentil roast--"for the musicians on vegetarian diets"--she says, adding that the recipe, in fact, was shared by another musical couple, Joyce and Paul Hill of Paul Hill Choral and Washington Singers fame, who have a vacation home here.

While the musicians begin arriving as early as Sunday--because of a cellist competition Sunday afternoon--the first dinner will be held Monday at the Smiths. "It'll be a chicken barbecue," says Mrs. Smith. "Husband Manning will cook the chicken and the rest of the menu will have been prepared ahead of time." The rest includes baked beans, cole slaw and probably ten homemade peach-blueberry pies. "I may get some help with the pies and maybe I won't," says Mrs. Smith, not fretting a bit how and when she'll peel and cut up a bushel or so of fresh peaches, provided by a relative. But, she notes, "many, many neighbors and friends are contributing all kinds of desserts and salads for the rest of the week's dinners, both at hers and the Sincells' house."

For Saturday's dinner, Mrs. Smith has planned her Spaghetti Florentine, but all the freshly made cheesecakes will be made and donated by Jean Coviello; another dinner, at the Sincells', will feature Nancy Leary's turkey tetrazzini and Ferne Belmonte's marinated vegetable salad. All the meals include plenty of platters of fresh fruit and vegetables--much of which "just shows up at my back door," acknowledged Hannah Sincell, eager to praise all the local families who pitch in with food stuffs, prepared dishes and other help. Already, she has made and stashed in her own freezer meatloaves, cookies, and cakes,and said other goodies will come from other Sincell family members, including Don and Suzie and Ben and Beverly.

The musicians, all of whom perform in New York City and appreciate the Garrett County hospitality, are also houseguests all week long in the homes--and sometimes in the backyard Mtn. Lake Park carriage house--of ten families. Besides the Smiths and the Sincells, these include: Connie Margison and Jack Jones; Joanne Rebele; Alex and Marge Mahood; Tom and Sue Peterson; Clint and Ann Englander; Lou and Betty DiCarlo; Bob Ulino and Mary Jane Berry; and Hopwood and Karen Woddell.

"The musicians' compensation is very minimal to perform each summer for the festival," explains Hannah Sincell, "so we (her music festival director daughter, Kathryn, and herself) do our best to place all the performers with families who provide breakfast and extras, like sightseeing tours, boat rides, and anything else that will make their stay here as enjoyable as possible."

While the Sincells have boarded this week's musicians in Oakland and Mtn. Lake Park--to make the evening dinners convenient for everyone--other countians like the Belmontes, the Mussess and the Thayers generously housed the performers and their families, for other GLAF events, such as the "Dear Friends" ensemble who appeared in July, treating them to a buffet supper and lots of fun on Deep Creek Lake. In years past for many GLAF performances, other area families have gladly accepted performers as houseguests, providing room and board without charge.

"It's almost impossible to name them all," says Hannah Sincell, "but we never seem to have a problem finding accommodations for any performers."

After housing the Dear Friends group, the Thayers received tapes of their music and a request to return next summer. Mrs. Thayer says she thoroughly enjoys having guest musicians in the house, especially if it means having or not having these kinds of performers in the county.

"It's a concentrated effort to coordinate everything," she adds, "and sure, we're exhaused when it's all over, but we view it as 'a week devoted to support the production of music.' "

THE MILL RUN DULCIMER BAND, of Annandale, Va., will be among the groups who will present a program of traditional, old-time American folk, string band, and gospel music at the Old Time Music Festival, slated for Saturday, Aug. 24, at New Germany State Park. The Mill Run Band will perform from 2 to 3 p.m.; however, the festival hours are from 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. The Mill Run Band has performed all over the country and has four albums to its credit, including "Sunday at the Mill," which was rated one of the four best old time music LP releases in 1981. The group has received top reviews from such publications as The New York Times and The Washington Post. The festival is being sponsored by Hammers and Strings and the Dulcettes, Oakland, and is being funded in part by Manor Home Center, Mtn. Lake Park; Hershberger Agency, Inc., Grantsville; the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. For more information, persons may call 334-4468.

Friendsville Man Injured In Sunday Vehicle Accident

A Friendsville man was transported to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, by Maryland State Police Medevac helicopter following a single vehicle accident that occurred Sunday morning on Rt. 42 near Friendsville.

Rodney James Friend, 23, Friendsville, has since been discharged from the hospital. He was reportedly travelling southbound on Rt. 42, just south of Ross Ave, when he stated that he fell asleep. His vehicle, a Plymouth Fury, then travelled off the right side of the road and struck a utility pole.

The accident was investigated by Tfc. James Hare, Maryland State Police.

Maryland State Police also investigated an accident Saturday that resulted in a Warrenton, Va., man being transported to University Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va., where he was treated and released.

Samuel Lee Bartrug was reportedly operating a Dodge Caravan on I-68 at the Five Mile Marker, at 8:55 p.m., when he swerved to avoid hitting a deer. The vehicle then skidded across two lanes and overturned.

Northern Garrett Rescue Squad and the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene. The accident was investigated by Tfc. Greg Becker.

Two accidents with injuries were investigated Tuesday evening by state police. One occurred on Rt. 219 near the Leo Friend Road and involved minor injuries to four juveniles, according to Tfc. David Broadwater. One juvenile was transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by helicopter, while the others were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad. According to police, all were treated and released.

The accident occurred at 11:35 p.m. when the driver lost control of the vehicle, travelled off the left side of the road and struck several trees.

The driver was charged with travelling at a speed too great for conditions and seatbelt violations.

Another accident that occurred the same evening took place on the Hutton Road at 6:25 p.m. and involved two vehicles. The driver of one vehicle, Ruth Ellen Oliverio, 34, Oakland, was transported by southern Rescue to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for injuries and released.

The accident occurred near Tomar Road when Roy B. Friend, 19, Oakland was operating a 1985 Ford pick-up truck southbound on Hutton Road. As he was entering a private drive, the 1984 Ford Ranger, operated by Oliverio, travelled in front of him and was struck.

Oliverio was charged with failure to stop and yield at a throughway highway by investigating officer Tpr. R.T. Wilson.

In other news from the Maryland State Police, several persons were arrested recently for driving while intoxicated charges.

Terry Eugene Twigg, 38, was arrested last Thursday at 11:57 p.m. by Tpr. Greg Becker.

Erwin Crawford Thomas, 21, was arrested Saturday at 2:58 a.m. by Tfc. Broadwater.

Horace W. Stewart, 40, was arrested Sunday at 2:21 a.m. by Tpr. Vincent.

Virginia Ellen Brady, 29, was arrested Sunday at 3:50 a.m. by Tpr. Broadwater.

On Tuesday, Mickey Lee Elkins, 47, was arrested at 3:32 a.m. by Tfc. Broadwater, and Kermit Lorraine Bittinger, 60, was arrested at 7:46 p.m. by Cpl. Robert Farrell.

Warnick was reportedly operating a Kawasaki southbound when the motorcycle crossed the center line and struck a mailbox and utility pole. Warnick, who was reportedly not wearing a helmet at the time, was then ejected from the vehicle.

He was flown by Maryland State Police Medevac helicopter to Memorial Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Born in Baltimore, Warnick was the son of Robert and Janice (Rohrbaugh) Warnick, Elk Garden, and graduated from Elk Garden High School in 1981.

A Letter From HELL

To a "Christian friend" left behind

Dear Jim,
You lived next door to me for years.
We shared our dreams, our joys and tears
A friend to me you were indeed;
A friend who helped me when in need.
What sadness then to find
That after all you weren't so kind!
The day my life on earth did end
I found you weren't a faithful friend!
For all those years we spent on earth
You never talked of "second birth."
You never spoke of my lost soul
And of the Christ who'd make me whole!
But do not err, my friend again —
Do all you can for the souls of men;
Plead with them now quite earnestly
Lest they be cast in hell with me!

GCSO Probing Thefts At Area Vacation Homes

Several thefts at vacation homes, two of which are located along Maynardier Ridge Road north of Bittinger, are currently being investigated by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

A total of $1,655 worth of stolen items was reported by Kenneth D. Fisher, Rockville, who reportedly stated that the theft occurred sometime between July 22 and August 8. The items included a Sears "Weed Whacker," a Mummy sleeping bag, a Black & Decker rechargeable flashlight, two sets of large blue parkas and ski pants, an electric blanket and a Johnson woolen jacket.

David M. Turner, Frostburg, also reported a theft, totalling $660, that occurred within the same time period at his vacation home along Maynardier Ridge Road. Items stolen included a 13-inch Radio Shack remote control color television set and a 35,000 BTU kerosene heater.

Both thefts involved breaking and enterings, and are under investigation by Deputy Randy P. Shaffer.

A third theft was reported by Robert A. Young, Baltimore, which occurred sometime on August 8 at his mobile home on Pine Hill Road and resulted in a $728 loss.

Damage in the amount of $150 was done to the trailer door and items stolen included mostly tools. Deputy J. Murphy is investigating that theft.

The theft of a bicycle, valued at $107, was reported by Mary L. Bittinger, 41, Crellin, which reportedly occurred Tuesday sometime between 1 and 10:30 p.m. at her residence behind Henline's store.

The bike is described as a 15-speed Murray bicycle, black in color with pink trim. The investigation is being handled by Cpl. L.E. Gnegy.

In other news from the Sheriff's Office this week, two persons were arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated.

Franklin L. Hockenberry, 39, Cumberland, was arrested Saturday at 12:15 a.m. on Rt. 135 by Deputy J. Murphy.

Randy J. Knotts, 23, Oakland, was arrested last Thursday at, 12:50 a.m., on Pleasant Valley Road by Deputy J.L. Green.

A SPECIAL BOOK was donated this week to the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland by three local youth who played an integral part in the creation of the book's cover. Artist Laura Stutzman, Mtn. Lake Park, was commissioned to design the cover for the book, entitled Matthew Pinkowski's Special Summer. She called on three local young people to serve as models for the cover artwork. Pictured left to right above are: Becca Gangler, Matthew Sincell, and Jennifer Thorn, who were the models; Edith Brock, Ruth Enlow librarian; and Ms. Stutzman. Becca is the daughter of Dave and Nan Gangler, Matthew is the son of Don and Suzie Sincell, and Jennifer is the daughter of Don and Carolyn Thorn, all of Mtn. Lake Park. Written by Patrick J. Quinn, of Minnesota, the fiction book was published by Kendall Green Publications, Washington, D.C., and is available for $5.95 per copy.

Vehicle Theft Investigated By State Police

The theft of a pickup truck and several other items from Marsh Run Nursery is currently under investigation by Maryland State Police.

Sometime Friday night or Saturday morning, a breaking and entering and theft at Marsh Run Nursery, owned by Bryan Hesselbach, occurred, resulting in an estimated loss of $1,700. According to investigating officer, Tfc. Gordon Chaney, a 1981 Ford pick-up truck, located at the rear of the business, was stolen, along with a Statesman push mower, a Stihl chain saw and a circular saw.

The keys to the truck were reportedly located by the thief somewhere on the premises.

In other news, a breaking and entering was reported by Raymond Bender that occurred at his unoccupied cabin on Rabbit Hollow Road on Friday. Six juveniles have since been tracked down, with the assistance of the K-9 Unit, and charged with the crime by Tpr. Seaman.

A theft that occurred between August 1 and 5 was reported by Joseph H. Hardesty, who told police that a lawn tractor was taken from his residence.

Given Ten Years

represented in court by Attorney Bill L. Smith.

In other circuit court news, Edward R. Friend, 30, Oakland was sentenced to three years in the Garrett County Jail for three counts of battery. The years are to be served concurrently, by order of Thayer. Friend was also sentenced to 60 days in jail, to run consecutively to the year term, for the charge of intimidating and/or influencing a witness.

The defendant was found guilty of these charges in a June hearing, and a presentence investigation was ordered at that time.

Friend received the charges after a December 22, 1990, incident at which time he reportedly came home late, and began behaving violently when asked where he had been. He struck a crib where a nine-month old male was sleeping, and also picked up a 2-year-old boy and threw him down on a bed, causing him to strike the wall.

The defendant also battered Gloria Friend during the incident, and threatened to kill the children and Ms. Friend if the police were called. He again threatened Ms. Friend in February of this year when she was preparing to testify against him in court. He was at that time charged with intimidating a witness.

Thayer recommended mental health and alcohol counseling in addition to the jail term.

Robert C. Hesson represented Friend at the sentencing.

Two Kitzmiller women were given jail terms for the charge of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS), according to the court documents.

Charlotte L. Fishel, 30, and Kathy Lynn Hartman, 33, were both sentenced to three years in the Maryland Dept. of Corrections with two years suspended. The remaining year will be served by both women in the Garrett County Jail. Fishel and Hartman will then serve two years on supervised probation with the condition of drug therapy and random drug testing.

Other charges against the women included possession of marijuana, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of cocaine, and possession of drug paraphernalia. These charges were not prosecuted.

The violations stemmed from the results of a search and seizure of the women's home, which was carried out on January 31 by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

The task force used an informant to purchase a CDS from the defendants, and the sale was followed by the search and seizure. Several CDS items were located in the home, as well as marijuana and a small amount of cocaine, according to the report.
report.

Robert C. Hesson represented both defendants.

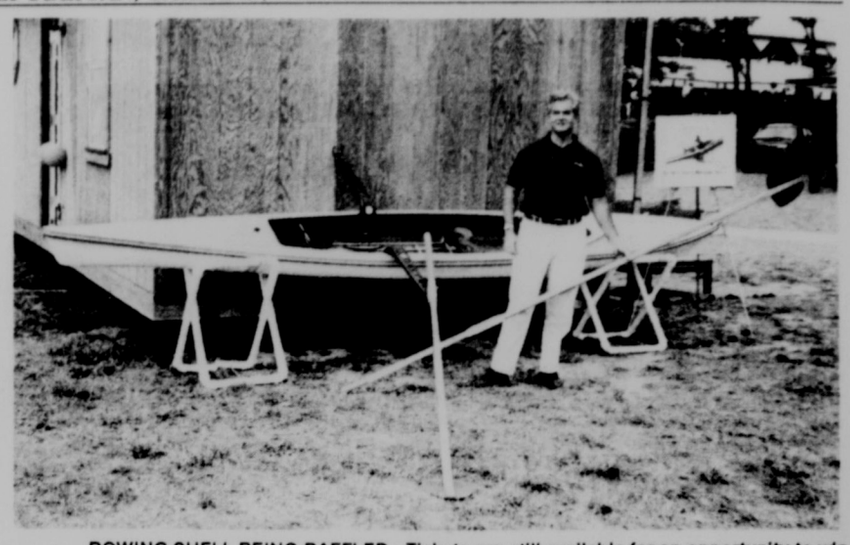
In a jury trial last week, Robert M. Martin, 22, Grantsville, pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of cocaine. The plea was accepted by the jury, and Thayer ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Bail for the defendant was revoked.

Martin was charged in December 1990 following an investigation by the narcotics task force. He had apparently sold cocaine to an undercover agent on September 25, 1990.

A date for sentencing was not noted in the court document. Defense attorney for the defendant was R. Steven Friend.

Donald G. Duckworth, 44, Swanton, received a suspended sentence of 60 days, was ordered to one year of supervised probation, and was fined $250 for the charges of trespassing at a public agency and disorderly conduct/failure to obey a police officer.

Duckworth was found guilty of the charges in a June hearing, and was also at that time found not guilty of threatening a state official.



The defendant received the charges in November 1990 after he refused to leave the Garrett County District Court building after a police officer repeatedly instructed him to do so. Duckworth was apparently intoxicated at the time of the arrest.

Defending Duckworth in the case was J. Dennis Murphy Jr.

Glenes E. Dumire, 58, Oakland, was fined $300 plus court costs and given a suspended 30-day jail term for driving a vehicle while under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol.

Dumire pleaded guilty to the charge, which he received on March 7 by Garrett County Sheriff Deputy J. Murphy after the officer observed him driving erratically on Jasper Riley Road. He was also charged with driving while intoxicated, and operating an uninsured, unregistered vehicle. These charges were not prosecuted.

Robert C. Hesson represented Dumire in the case.

Tell Your Kids...

A funeral service was held this week in Salisbury for 15-year-old Brian Ball, a young man who attended a drinking party at a friend's house and, probably acting on a dare from his peers, consumed 26 shots of hard liquor. He passed out in the yard where he lay for some time before finally being taken to the hospital by a 16-year-old friend. But it was too late. Nothing could be done for the young man whose blood alcohol content was a lethal .37.

We wonder if Brian Ball even knew that alcohol is indeed poison to the human body and that it is possible to literally drink oneself to death. There is so much emphasis placed on the dangers of excessive alcohol consumption in relationship to driving an automobile, and on the long-term effects to one's health. Nearly everyone knows what can happen when one drinks too much and then drives a car. Nearly everyone knows that drinking excessively for a long period of time will cause damage to the liver, heart, kidneys, brain, and other organs. Nearly everyone knows how alcoholism destroys lives and rips families apart. But how many of us, particularly young people, know that a person can be killed just by consuming a large quantity of alcohol in a single sitting?

It takes just one party, just one dare by a peer, to cause one to make a fatal mistake. Our children are the most vulnerable to this situation because of the nature of the adolescent, who thinks he is invincible and will do almost anything on a dare in order to maintain good standing in the eyes of his friends. For all we know, this may have been the first time Brian Ball had ever consumed any alcohol.

We use this column today to request - to beg - all parents reading it to speak to their children and make sure they understand ALL of the dangers of excessive alcohol consumption, particularly the little-known one described above. Perhaps if Mr. and Mrs. Ball had done so with their son, Brian would still be a vibrant young man today with a whole lifetime ahead of him.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Message to Garrett County property owners: It is time to get behind your local authorities who are trying so hard to get rid of the Bradley Manor problem.

How did this project get foisted onto Garrett County in the first place? Drive by and you will notice that one hundred modular units were planted in a "wash" where no structure not on stilts should have been built.

The units are set low to the ground and have flat roofs though twelve inches of snow in a single storm is not uncommon.

So water came up from below and melting snow came down from above and after a few years the units were not fit to live in. Then came the builder -- who was from Baltimore, not Garrett County -- galloping to the rescue. He offered to rehab the project for more than two million dollars.

Garrett County officials said, "Thanks, but no thanks."

But the matter keeps coming back like a cancer that is in remission, but not cured. Now, in Baltimore, a judge says, "compromise." Why? Can't Garrett County condemn the project and raze the units?

It was said in Baltimore there is no affordable housing in Garrett County. The real estate ads put the lie to that notion.

Perhaps someone or everyone together can find out why Garrett County's welfare doesn't seem to count.

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the letter in the August 7 Republican concerning the "horror" story about Triax Cable.

First of all, I think one should "cause waves" in a case like this, it would probably prompt a better response. I truly feel that all of the Triax Cable customers in Oakland feel the same way that this couple and my husband and I do. If they do, we should all band together and demand better service for our money.

Continuously, Triax Cable is "working on the lines." While they do we are without cable service. Too often we are without service for a whole day. What good is it

CAPTAIN ..COURAGEOUS

HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVES
Douglas A. Cohn

The leaderless opposition

WASHINGTON — There is much to say, but no Democrat willing to say it. In fact they are dropping out more rapidly than new candidates can be recruited, West Virginia's Sen. Rockefeller being only the most recent casualty. Meanwhile, Pres. George Bush marches merrily along with the highest third-year-of-term popularity ratings ever. Why?

Is the public enamored with his packing of the Supreme Court and all federal courts with anti-choice judges? Did the public approve of his post-Tianamen Square overtures to Communist China and his subsequent bestowing of Most Favored Nation status on that decrepit gang of dinosaurs who rule that hapless nation. If they are most favored, who can be least?

Are Americans proud of the Willy Horton campaign Bush ran in '88? Did such a campaign bring dignity to the highest office in the land?

Perhaps Americans' memories are thought to be so short that by '92 they will have forgotten the most blatant of campaign lies in history: "Read my lips: no new taxes."

Or will the electorate remember Commander-in-Chief Bush who masterfully organized an international consensus and military organization to liberate Kuwait, but ignore his failure to oust Saddam Hussein when he had the chance? Or that he urged the Iraqi Shiites and Kurds to rise up, but ordered coalition forces to stand by as Saddam's still-intact military machine destroyed them?

And the list goes on. But where are the Democrats to nail it to the doors of the White House and in the mind of the electorate?

Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, whose second position on the Democratic ticket in '88 brought him so much acclaim, is nearly invisible. Sen. Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine occasionally speaks, but fails to "close the deal," always backing off in the face of Bush's popularity polls. And now he will be most remembered for engineering or at least allowing — and he stands aside and allows much — the late-night vote for a Senate pay raise.

Speaker of the House Tom Foley of Washington is by all accounts a nice guy. So is George McGovern. But the soft-spoken Foley has failed to inspire the rank and file to rise up in the opinion polls.

In fact these three leaders — Bentsen, Mitchell and Foley — have done their party a gross disservice. They the leaders of the Loyal Opposition have all but ignored the second word of that phrase — at least until now. With Foley's announcement of an investigation into allegations about an October Surprise, we have at last a leader willing to call the president to account. It is a high risk gamble. If a smoking gun or at least some publicly compelling circumstantial evidence is not forthcoming that the Reagan-Bush campaign of 1980 conspired with Iran to delay the hostage release until after the election, then Foley in particular and Democrats in general may as well concede Campaign '92.

Meanwhile, where are those who would actually run? Foley has drawn the line in the sand, and it is time for those who would carry their party's banner in '92 to join him. Or shall their party simply become the leaderless opposition.

Maryland's New Law Of Love

GARRETT COUNTY MARYLAND HEALTH DEPARTMENT

MARYLAND'S NEW LAW OF LOVE

On July 1, 1991, Maryland's newly strengthened Child Passenger Protection Law, commonly referred to as the "Law of Love," went into effect.

This new "Law of Love" states that all infants and small children under the age of four or weighing less than 40 pounds must be secured in a federally approved child safety seat. It also states that all children under 10 years old must be secured in a child safety seat, seatbelt or seatbelt/shoulder harness.

This law applies to all seating positions in the vehicle and includes passenger cars; multi-purpose vehicles, such as vans; and pickup trucks. As a primary law, a police officer may cite the driver for a violation of this law.

One of the biggest reasons that parents give for not keeping a child in a carseat is that the child won't stay in the seat. Allowing a child to ride unrestrained is no more reasonable than letting a child poke pins in an electrical socket. It is up to the parent or caregiver to teach the child to stay buckled up.

Here are some helpful pointers.

1. Start early. Your infant should come home from the hospital in an approved car safety seat and never ride without one from then on.

2. Be consistent. Always buckle your child. Not using the restraint because you are only going a few blocks confuses the child. Children learn from consistency.

3. Use words. As your infant turns into a toddler and starts using language, explain in simple words why he or

Barry Rascovar's
Maryland Commentary

Maryland is broke

BALTIMORE — These aren't happy times in Annapolis' State House. The recession keeps rolling along with no end in sight. Yet the government's "business" is booming with more citizens on welfare, unemployment, Medicaid or in prisons. Revenues are down, and will stay down, while expenses continue to rise.

Maryland is in bad shape. Almost unnoticed, the state's economy has shifted dramatically. Fundamental economic assumptions have been proved wrong. The courts and Washington, meanwhile, are imposing mandates without considering the financial implications.

It's a mess. Maryland's leaders thought they were living in a fairy tale land in which the state was virtually immune to any recession because of Maryland's huge federal work force and its diversified economy. Thus, they never planned for a bleak tomorrow.

But this recession has hit Maryland hard. The federal work force is being squeezed. Defense contracts have plummeted. A glutted real estate market has sent banks and developers reeling. Tax revenues have dropped faster than at any time in this half-century.

Maryland doesn't know how to cope. Not until last week did Gov. William Donald Schaefer belatedly appoint a panel to ferret out waste and inefficiencies in state government too late to help him out of his current $1 billion predicament.

Recession meant zero growth in tax revenues this year. Little change is expected in 1992 and only moderate improvement in the next five years. Analysts point to vacant offices, meager housing sales, mounting bankruptcies and high consumer debt as impediments.

There also has been a marked shift in Maryland from a producer of goods to a producer of services. Jobs in the service industry have leaped from just under half of total state employment to two-thirds. Consumers now spend more on services than on basic goods. This translates into less tax revenue: Service-industry jobs are lower-paying, which hurts income-tax coffers; more consumer spending on services hurts sales tax receipts because few services are taxed in Maryland.

Last year's drop in revenue, $500 million, was made up by taking all the money from the state's piggy banks, freezing spending and eliminating 3,300 vacant slots. But now, one budget official says, "We're out of easy solutions."

Yet just as the state needs to cut back on services, the demand has never been greater. Those segments of society who need the most help the young and the elderly are growing rapidly.

So are other obligations. Medicaid cases are up 22 percent; the main welfare program, up 24 percent, and foster care cases, up 50 percent. The number of retarded individuals seeking state services has ballooned in 15 years from 2,300 to 23,000. The prison population has leaped from 14,000 three years ago to 20,000.

Program costs mandated by law or court orders account for 80 percent of the budget. These expensive programs: aid to local schools, Medicaid, welfare, health and social programs and public safety rose $669 million.

Areas of government that could be cut higher education, general government agencies and capital programs fell by $268 million. But overall spending still jumped $400 million.

The situation is so severe that even if all public colleges closed, there would still be a $300 million deficit next year. If the state then eliminated all capital spending and non-essential mandates, there'd remain $100 million of red ink. "Downsizing" alone won't do the trick.

Will the public stand for the massive tax increases required to balance the budget without severely curbing programs? Not at this stage. Political leaders have a major sales job on their hands as they try to resolve Maryland's biggest financial bind in decades.

fall. She spent several years in Germany singing at the Detmold Opera House. She currently studies with Cornelius Reid.

she must be restrained. A good line is, "I'm buckling you up because I love you."

4. Set an example. If the adults that the child adores are consistent users of seatbelts, then the child will try to be like them. Show them that you are buckled also.

5. Be firm. Almost every child at some time will try to get out of the restraint. Don't panic. When this happens, immediately pull the car over and stop. Tell the child in a very firm, serious voice that the buckle must be buckled. Then rebuckle. If the child again unbuckles, repeat the procedure. This may happen several times within a few days. Be firm and consistent.

6. Be smart. If a week of consistently applied discipline doesn't work, you will have to outsmart your child. Examine your car safety seat and see what you might add to it to make it escape-proof. You might have to add a ribbon knotted around the straps for a short time. This won't be necessary for very long -- just until the child gets the message that you mean business.

7. Use a travel bag. Keep them busy and they will be content. A bag of travel toys, books, coloring papers, etc., will fill the time.

8. Let them see out. Choose a car safety seat that elevates the toddler and preschooler. This allows the child to see the countryside, cars, trucks, signs, and people.

9. Be comforting. Pat your child, jostle the seat, sing, hum, and play games. It will make your child feel loved -- which is what this new law is all about.

Dr. Rex Archer, Garrett County Health Officer, said, "The bottom line is that these federally approved carseats for young children and seatbelts for older children work. It helps everyone to have encouragement when starting new habits or breaking old ones. This Law of Love was passed in order to protect our children."

two of the four current teachers, which caused concern and anger among several parents in the county.

Although the re-instatement was welcomed by parents, some visitors at the meeting continued to question the future of the gifted and talented program. One woman asked what the board's reaction would be if parents continued to fight for more funding to keep the program in full operation.

"I don't want to keep fighting for this program if the board ultimately does not want to keep it going," she said.

She then asked McCartney what her own philosophy was concerning the program, and if she felt the program would continue next year and the year after that. Ryscavage answered the question, stating that the education board has always supported the program and stood behind it, but with ongoing budget constraints, he could not promise that the current arrangement for the program will be the same next year.

In a later interview, McCartney stated that the board of education is not in the habit of cutting programs, and that these are "very complicated times" because of the budget problems. Concerning the feelings of the school board about the program, McCartney said that she has not seen any sign of "non-commitment" for the program by the board.

to have cable when you can't enjoy it when you want to?

Several months ago we wanted to trade the HBO channel for Disney. One would think, how hard could that be? Have you tried it lately? Like this couple, we rearranged our schedule to be here when the serviceman came. The first time he was to show up he never did. We called the office only to find out that supposedly he was here, but we weren't and left a note on our door stating what time he was here and to call the office to reschedule.

Of course, the next available date was a week and a half away. But you know the funny part about it? My husband was here and we found no such note -- nothing. This went on for several weeks. After the unnecessary run-around and the rescheduling, we called the office to complain. My husband, highly upset and out of patience, told the receptionist that by the time we got the Disney channel our children would be too old to enjoy it!

The ridiculous side to this story is, after all that time, this receptionist told my husband that all he had to do is take the box to the office in Oakland to trade the box in. My husband told them "if you had told me this to begin with, I would have."

Two weeks later a serviceman showed up. This is the kicker. Two men pulled up to the house. They did not bother to knock on the door, but simply left a door hanger on our door. I sat in our living room and watched this happen. When they got back in the truck I decided to take action. I went to the door and asked, "Can I help you?" In a doofy kind of attitude one of them said, "Uh, we're here to get your box to give you the Disney channel." I told them if they waited any longer my children would be too old to enjoy it." This guy just chuckled! Give me a break!

I'm sure if you were to call the cable company and ask them who they hear from the most, one of the names that would pop up would be the Nutters. See, every time you call, it goes on the computer. And still our service is not up to par.

For three days now the reception has been poor and the sound on some of the stations has been such that you can't understand it. And then there are some channels that are completely out. My husband called and they said they are working on the lines -- again. This time, they are supposed to call us and let us know when they are done. We'll see!

I hope that enough citizens get together and take action.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nutter Jr.

P.S. I would also like it to be known that when a friend of ours called Triax Cable to complain, they hung up on him!

On Saturday, July 13, a group of local volunteers joined together for a fund-raiser to aid fellow Garrett Countians. Garrett County Commissioner Brenda J. Butscher, The Republican editor Don Sincell, Mt. Lake Mayor Dave Turney, WXIE/WMSG personality Steve Williams, Garrett County Health Officer Dr. Rex Archer (accompanied by children Becky & Eric), Habitat homeowner Janet Friend, A&A Realtor Joanne Ashby, St. John's Lutheran Church (Red House) Pastor Rick Rutkauskas, and future Habitat homeowner John Millican (with Kelly, Rachael, Jennifer and Tammy) washed cars from 10-2 at the former Chubby's Inc. at Deep Creek Lake. Their effort was worth $10 an hour in volunteer time to Habitat.

To the Editor:

I have been impressed with many of your editorials recently and I am grateful! I am especially impressed with many of the columns by Sherry Frantz and Pam Ashby! They are really doing a grand job! The Mind Wanders, "Stop it Now," is outstanding,as are many of the two writers' columns! I recall Pam Ashby's suggestion several weeks ago that with all the few people speaking out, objecting, protesting here and there, 6 or 8 or 16 or so, if they could all come together and join forces maybe we could really do something about some of the messes here and there! It's a great idea! The older people see and know and have learned a few things, but health-wise and energy wise they generally are not able to spearhead a drive. Younger people have to be willing to take up the "gauntlet" and that is not happening in America because as Sherry writes they are all too busy playing the game of survival and trying to fit a quality of life into the scenario. This is where the whole object of it all is misguided. If our USA goes down the drain, as we are fast proceeding, where is the survival and what kind of survival will it be and what will be the quality of life?

There is not enough thinking today among many people beyond what's in it for me and mine!

The millions for Sarubin, upon the millions he has already had, frightens me, in a worthless mess of Bradley Manor! It was from the beginning a worthless mess and 20 years ago still, and now and we put more taxpayers millions into it, to further push our national government into trillions of debt! Where are our rational thinkers? A million or two here and there for Pork Barrel projects in what has always seemed to be corrupt, via HUD, which has been proven to be one of the many corrupt agencies of our government apparently, but perhaps only because it has seen more light of day exposure! How can responsible citizens continue this mess?

All Garrett Countians should be pulling with the Oakland Council to fight this Sarubin project. Where and how is it being done?

I agree with Brenda Butscher, the commissioners in the recent years have spent money like "drunken sailors." The enormous salaries paid to certain employees is unconscionable while the state's attorney and sheriff get peanuts! The health insurance is outrageous for the few "big shot" county employees.

Why don't the county commissioners put back their raise and some of the raises of the high paid salary employees and cut back on the court house employees and Mr. Grove's educational funds and we could then do a lot for education and the mentally ill. Get rid of several administrative personnel everywhere, especially in education and it would have to improve - dead wood could go!

They tore down the bleachers at Northern, so two county commissioners decided they had to use our taxpayer's money to rebuild them, knowing the lobby power of some people and sports. Thank you Brenda for not going along! Did any of those making the decision think they could figure out another way to get them built, than out of the taxpayers pockets? Why not let the ones who tore them down come up with the way they'd be rebuilt? They are supposed to be educated to think beyond taxpayers, aren't they?

In Preston County, Kingwood, W.Va., volunteers are building the bleachers for their brand new school program. How does that sound taxpayers? Someone used their education talent and some real mental exercise is being exerted! Could we ever do that here? Think, please.

Thank you,
Mrs. Louise V. Harvey

HEARING AIDS
DO YOU HAVE FEEDBACK OR WHISTLING WITH YOUR HEARING AID?
ARE YOU CONTINUALLY ADJUSTING THE VOLUME?
This is a common complaint that we hear from many hearing aid users. With the new Cleartone hearing aids you will not have feedback once the hearing aid is completely in your ear. You will not have to continually adjust the volume control, because the hearing aid will automatically reduce the loud noises for you.
We have found that it even helps those who have Tinnitus "ringing ears".
Come in today for a no-cost hearing evaluation and demonstration of the hearing aid!

Sweet Truths

Brochure Tests Nutrition-Knowledge of Candy and Snack Foods

Think you know the truths about the nutrition value of popular candies and snacks?

Many Americans automatically assume candy is high in fat, calories, sodium and cholesterol, when in fact it is not.

A recent national survey shows Americans are confused about nutrient levels in popular confectionery and non-confectionery snack foods.

To clear up some of these misconceptions, the National Confectioners Association has published an informative booklet that helps dispel common myths about confectionery and discusses how candy can be part of an active, healthy lifestyle.

"The Sweet Truth About Confectionery" brochure contains a nutrition chart, confectionery myths and truths and a confectionery quiz. It's available free to those who send a self-addressed stamped envelope to National Confectioners Association, 450 Park Avenue South, Suite 600, New York, NY 10016.

"I'm three months pregnant and I work all day at a computer. How can I protect myself and my unborn baby against computer radiation?" "What can I do to eliminate computer radiation from the front of my monitor?" These kinds of questions are asked often these days—and a new free booklet may provide some of the answers.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Staff Sergeant Joe Mechem of Oakland's Company C 121st Engineer Battalion (CBT), Maryland National Guard, was recently awarded the Army Commendation Medal for outstanding performance as head cook for Company C.

The certificate accompanying the medal noted that Staff Sergeant Mechem's "dedication and devotion to duty" aided in presenting a quality field kitchen. "He worked unsupervised with little direction from the state representatives in completing and preparing for the Connelly Award. His professional performance in the preparation of the Connelly Award was directly responsible for the unit winning the award for 1990. Staff Sergeant Mechem's accomplishments reflect great credit upon himself, the Maryland National Guard, and The United States Army.

Mechem has a total of 29 years of service in the military.

U.S. Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Brian T. Shillingburh, son of Lyndol J. and Roy K. Shillingburh, Route 1, Elk Garden, W.Va., recently returned from deployment to the Middle East in support of Operation Desert Storm while serving aboard the destroyer USS Caron, homeported in Norfolk, Va.

Operation Desert Storm was the largest deployment of U.S. military forces since Vietnam. The operation was in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and threat to Saudi Arabia.

The 1985 graduate of Elk Garden High School joined the Navy in February 1986.

B&L Team Wins First Big Bros., Sister Tourney

The First Annual Big Brother/Big Sister Corporate Softball Tournament was held recently at Broadford Lake Park fields, with eight teams participating in the slow pitch, double-elimination competition. Bausch & Lomb went undefeated through the pairings and topped the team from Mettiki Coal Company in the championship series.

The Garrett County Branch of Big Brothers/Big Sisters was the recipient of the proceeds of the tournament. Dan Seib, coordinator of the local organization, said that over $540 was raised by the tournament.

"I thank all the teams and the players who helped make the tournament a huge success. I especially thank Denny Skeweris and Keith Andrews of Garrett Mine Service, who organized and ran the tournament." said Seib.

Seib said Rick Minnick supplied the equipment, Don Stemple provided the plaques, and Keystone Paving Inc. donated the softballs. G&H Masonry Inc. sponsored the team from the Sheriff's Department.

Teams participating in the tournament were from Bausch & Lomb Inc., Mettiki Coal Company, Glotfelty Enterprises Inc., Garrett Mine Service, Metropolitan Tire Company, Wolf Welding Company, Sheriff's Department, and Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

"I think a good time was the main purpose of the day, with a good cause in mind," Seib said. "The proceeds of the tournament will go a long way in helping Big Brothers/Big Sisters provide service to children here in the county."

Procedure For Obtaining Doe Permit Changed

This year's Guide to Hunting and Trapping in Maryland, 1991-92, includes a new style of antlerless deer permit application. This permit is required for hunting antlerless deer in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Carroll counties during the deer firearms season.

In response to difficulties experienced last year, the two-part application includes a return notification card. This card will be sent back to hunters once their applications have been received, thus confirming that the Department has received their applications.

It is important to understand how this new system works and important to complete the forms properly. Of the applications received to date, many applicants have not completed the return notification cards with their addresses.

Additionally, a space for street address on the permit application was omitted. The street address information can be transferred from the return notification card, but only if the return notification card is completed.

When completing the Antlerless Deer Permit application please: (1) follow the instructions as listed at the top of the permit application; (2) write the street address on the permit application card (either in the space for "city" or in the empty space below); and (3) be sure and complete your name and address on the facing return notification card.

The "application number" on the back of the card will be completed by DNR's Wildlife staff and does not need to be completed by the applicant.

Person may call DNR's Wildlife Division, 301-974-3195, for more information about the application process.

A RARE ZEBRA WHISTLE PIG? - While it appears this local woodchuck carries markings like its cousin the raccoon or perhaps a zebra, in actuality he is perched behind some tall blades of grass, the shadows of which are responsible for his stripes. The six-week-old "youngster" was captured on film by Craig Speicher.

ground. Lewis again allegedly attempted to run away and dispose of the suspected marijuana. The deputy was able to retrieve the remainder of the bag and suspected marijuana.

Charges of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, possession of drug paraphernalia, resisting arrest, and escaping from confinement were not prosecuted because of a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office.

In other District Court news, Mark R. Fazenbaker, 23, Cumberland, formerly of Mtn. Lake Park, who had been found guilty of vehicular homicide in April court proceedings was granted work release by the judge.

Fazenbaker had initially been sentenced to three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections with two years suspended, fined $1000, and placed on three years of supervised probation.

The charge against Fazenbaker stemmed from a December 23, 1989, accident on the White Church-Steyer Road when his vehicle crossed the center line and struck another vehicle head on. Killed in the accident was Eric C. Stemple.

In a court case involving selling liquor to a minor, Judy C. Broadwater, 44, Frostburg, had her case placed on the stet docket.

Broadwater is the owner of the Wildwater Inn where a Maryland State Police cadet purchased liquor from one of her employees. The incident occurred on February 8.

Rabies Clinic

These clinics are being offered to allow cat owners the opportunity to bring their animals to a low-cost clinic without the fear of having them frightened by barking dogs, according to sanitarian Tina L. Buckel, who added that cats and only cats will be vaccinated during this series of clinics.

According to Dr. Rex Archer, Garrett County Health Officer, it is crucial that cats or kittens over three months of age be adequately protected against rabies. Since 1983, over 116 cats have been confirmed positive for rabies in Maryland. As of May 31 six cats have tested positive for the virus. This far exceeds the number of dogs which were confirmed positive during that same time frame. This may in part be related to the lower overall percentage of cats vaccinated as opposed to dogs, said Buckel.

Another important reasons is related to the fact that cats can be exposed to a rabid animal without the knowledge of the owner, Buckel added. Since the cat owner is not aware of the exposure, appropriate control measures are not taken and the animals go on to develop the disease. Human exposure often occurs when a cat becomes rabid, and expensive treatment is often necessary to prevent the occurrence of the disease in those individuals.

The importance of this issue was recently seen in the Barton area. In July, 1991, Allegany County experienced a case in which a cat tested positive for rabies. Ultimately, 13 people underwent post-exposure rabies treatment.

In 1990, Garrett County had a record number of laboratory confirmed positive rabies cases. So far, in 1991, a variety of wildlife species, including a beaver, have tested positive for the virus. The vaccination of domestic cats, whether they be household pets or barn animals is imperative, stated Buckel.

Maryland law also requires that the owners of these animals have them vaccinated by the time they reach four months of age. All cats three months of age and older, pregnant or nursing, can be vaccinated at the Health Department Clinics, she added.

The cost for vaccinating a cat at the clinic is only $4. When coming to the clinic, cats should be confined in a wire cage, tightly secured box with air holes provided, or in the case of particularly wild animals, in a cotton sack or pillow case which is tied securely at the top.

Is Chronic Fatigue Syndrome a Disease?

Within the last few years, a condition referred to as "chronic fatigue syndrome" has been described in the medical literature. According to recent articles, there is debate as to whether or not this is a disease. The debate revolves around its cause, how to diagnose it, and how it should be treated. On one side are experts who claim that the condition may not exist at all. An equal number of experts seem to point to a health problem with sudden onset in previously otherwise healthly individuals. According to these experts, people of all ages, occupations, and income are affected, with women experiencing the condition more often than men or children.

It is speculated that some type of viurs causes the victim to become very tired. Bed rest may not help. The fatigue may be so severe as to cause the person's normal acivity level to be less than half of what it was for the previous six months. There may be mild fever, sore throat, muscle weakness, joint pain, and sleep disturbances. One of the most common symptoms of chronic fatigue syndrome is mental depression. Treatment of chronic fatigue syndrome varies with symptoms. Prescription antidepressant medicines have helped a number of individuals. Other treatments may become apparent as we learn more about this interesting, yet poorly described condition.

Adorable Adoptables

from the Garrett County Animal Shelter

DON'T WORRY, WE'LL FIND YOU A HOME, says Cheryl Fearer, Garrett County Animal Shelter employee, to the latest forlorn pup in search of some love and kindness. This female bloodhound has been shy about her age and hasn't told anyone exactly how old she is, but her friendliness and obedience are enough to overlook that little shortcoming. She was abandoned and nearly choked with an undersized collar when she was brought to the shelter. She is ready and willing to be someone's best friend. Persons may contact the shelter at 334-3553. (The last adorable adoptable was given a home.)

The July meeting was brought to order by Jennifer Barnard. Pledges were led by Kellie Heatherman.

Under old business, a report on steer camp was given by Sarah Pysell; Danielle DeBerry gave a report on the sewing class. The next sewing class was set for July 31 at the Ex. office. Bryan Barnard and Nick Glotfelty went to 4-H camp out of our club. Alicia DeWitt gave a report on the rocket meeting. Fair clean-up was scheduled for August 6.

Under new business, we are going to have a picnic at the fair for the club. All club members and their families are invited. It is to be on the Friday night of the fair. Our club will do the refreshments at the Fashion Review again this year.

Alicia DeWitt and Sarah Pysell gave demonstrations. Alicia DeWitt gave one on how to make Dirt Dessert and Sarah Pysell gave one on how to sew a skirt.

There will be club picnic August 25, on the DeBerry Farm. We will be eating at 1 p.m. and set our rockets off later in the day.

Terra Alta Bank Receives Bauer's Four-Star Rating

Bauer Financial Reports, Inc., a Coral Gables, Fla., research firm, has announced that The Terra Alta Bank, Terra Alta, W.Va., has been awarded its four-star rating. This award identifies the institution as one of the strongest, credit-worthy banks in the United States, according to a Bauer spokesman.

The award is based on a zero to five-star rating assigned by Bauer Financial Reports based on its analysis of the December 31, 1990, financial data as filed with federal regulators.

A four-star rating indicates that the bank's adjusted tangible capital is between 6% and 9% of tangible assets, that there are no excessive delinquencies or repossessed assets and that the bank is profitable, or suffered an insignificant loss. Paul A. Bauer, president, said, "Our four-star rating is most often awarded to community banks and strong regional banks-well-capitalized, federally insured banks that serve their local markets.

"Out of 12,342 banks reporting for the period ended December 31, 1990, 6,538 banks, 53%, received our four-star rating, said Bauer.

All the banks that qualified for a four-star rating received an award certificate in recognition of their achievement to display on their premises.

Bauer Financial Reports, Inc. analyzes and compiles data on all U.S. banks, thrifts and credit unions.

Friday, August 23, during the third concert of the four-concert series. The student will then perform the Haydn C Major Concerto as Parisot directs. A second prize of $500 will also be awarded. Following the night's concert, a "Champion's Circle" dessert buffet will be held at the McHenry House in honor of the winner. Audience members will have the opportunity to congratulate the winner as well as sample many exotic desserts prepared by the McHenry House chefs, according to a GLAF spokesperson.

Persons should make reservations for the Champion's Circle by noon on Tuesday, August 20, by calling the GCC box office at 387-6666.

Other musical offerings on Friday night will include popular works by Corelli and Borodin, as well as a Carmen medley by Bizet.

Aldo Parisot has appeared regularly with such orchestras as the London Philharmonic, the Berlin Philharmonic, the Pittsburgh Symphony, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and the Chicago Symphony, under such conductors as Hindemith, Mehta, Monteux, Stokowski, and Bernstein. He has had numerous contemporary composers dedicate works to him, Quincy Porter and Villa-Lobos among them. His appearances number nearly a dozen with the New York Philharmonic.

Parisot's major label recordings number over 50 works.

"It is quite an honor to host a musician of Mr. Parisot's calibre," Erick Friedman stated.

A BRAND NEW SCHOOL? Not quite, but the renovated look of Southern High School does give the building a much needed facelift, and returning students will most likely appreciate the "new school" appearance. One disadvantage of the renovation is the fact that the entire school could not be over-hauled, as can be plainly seen in the boys' locker rooms, the old gymnasium, and the cafetorium. However, the remaining area of the school is newly tiled, painted, and the walls and windows have been made heat-efficient. The rooms are aesthetically pleasing and are attractively color-coordinated. Pictured above is the new physics lab, where students will stand at modern lab tables to process experiments. John Morris, assistant superintendent of schools, is shown above as he explains the new facilities to county commissioners, media personnel, and education board members, all of whom recently visited the school. The lab tables, Morris said, are designed so all materials that go down the drain will be collected in holding tanks and will be removed as hazardous waste. There are several new safety features in the room as well. Shown in the foreground are several of the new desks available in some of the classrooms. The funds for furniture were limited, so old desks will be used in some areas, and there are no new desks for the teachers. Pictured below is the new band room, complete with several practice rooms, storage areas, and an enlarged performance room. The walls in the music area are filled with sand, Morris said, to provide more sound-proofing between rooms. The renovation project is approximately two months ahead of schedule, and Morris commended the Carl Belt Company for the speedy work. The builders are continuing their labor and will be working on the school for several more months, but all of the school, excepting the vocational-agricultural area and some of the shop area, will be ready for the students' return on September 3, and the school will house all students, grades 9-12.

In Memory Of
who passed away Aug. 18, 1971

Dear Dad,
It seems only yesterday since you were taken from us, but it has been 20 years now.
So many things have happened since then, all are too numerous to mention. You already know all about them. We have all become adults and are raising our children (your grandchildren) as strong, healthy, responsible adults, just as you raised us.
Our memories are all we have to hold on to now, but our love for you is as strong now as when we were able to reach out and hold you.
As the days quickly go by and the return of our Lord is close at hand we rejoice in Him because we will be able to say, "I Love You Dad" once more.

Your Family,
Gary, Phyllis, Carla & Grandchildren

Dear Dad,
It seems only yesterday since you were taken from us, but it has been 20 years now.
So many things have happened since then, all are too numerous to mention. You already know all about them. We have all become adults and are raising our children (your grandchildren) as strong, healthy, responsible adults, just as you raised us.
Our memories are all we have to hold on to now, but our love for you is as strong now as when we were able to reach out and hold you.
As the days quickly go by and the return of our Lord is close at hand we rejoice in Him because we will be able to say, "I Love You Dad" once more.

A BRAND NEW SCHOOL? Not quite, but the renovated look of Southern High School does give the building a much needed facelift, and returning students will most likely appreciate the "new school" appearance. One disadvantage of the renovation is the fact that the entire school could not be over-hauled, as can be plainly seen in the boys' locker rooms, the old gymnasium, and the cafetorium. However, the remaining area of the school is newly tiled, painted, and the walls and windows have been made heat-efficient. The rooms are aesthetically pleasing and are attractively color-coordinated. Pictured above is the new physics lab, where students will stand at modern lab tables to process experiments. John Morris, assistant superintendent of schools, is shown above as he explains the new facilities to county commissioners, media personnel, and education board members, all of whom recently visited the school. The lab tables, Morris said, are designed so all materials that go down the drain will be collected in holding tanks and will be removed as hazardous waste. There are several new safety features in the room as well. Shown in the foreground are several of the new desks available in some of the classrooms. The funds for furniture were limited, so old desks will be used in some areas, and there are no new desks for the teachers. Pictured below is the new band room, complete with several practice rooms, storage areas, and an enlarged performance room. The walls in the music area are filled with sand, Morris said, to provide more sound-proofing between rooms. The renovation project is approximately two months ahead of schedule, and Morris commended the Carl Belt Company for the speedy work. The builders are continuing their labor and will be working on the school for several more months, but all of the school, excepting the vocational-agricultural area and some of the shop area, will be ready for the students' return on September 3, and the school will house all students, grades 9-12.

Wellness Program Invites All To Stop By Booth

Wellness Together Program officials invite the public to stop by their booth at the annual Garrett County Agricultural Fair this week. The colorful booth features a cast of stars -- the Healthstars -- that can be seen throughout the pages of the 1991 Wellness Together Calendar.

The message being shared with fair-goers by the Wellness staff is that everyone has the potential to be a "healthstar" by making lifestyle changes for improved health. Interested people can get a computerized health risk appraisal, find out their percentage of body fat, pick up free related health information as well as take home items such as school book covers. The staff is giving away a variety of items with the no smoking message to young people.

The fair booth staff will also be collecting nominations for the Healthstars 1992 Contest. The Wellness

Together Program mailed out over 20,000 flyers to area residents announcing the second Healthstars Contest. These flyers have a mail-in card that can be used to nominate people, worksites, or organizations that have made changes or helped others make changes for improved health.

The 1991 Healthstars selected represent a wide variety of lifestyle changes. Many had lost weight, started exercise programs, quit smoking, lowered cholesterol levels and blood pressure or helped others learn about the importance of safety programs like wearing safety belts.

Once again a panel of judges will select from the nominations submitted. The Wellness Together 1992 Calendar will tell the success stories of area residents in making improvements to their health. The deadline for nominations is August 24.

Englander's Pharmacy donated the space for the Wellness Together booth.

The Wellness Together Program is a cooperative effort of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Garrett County Health Department.

Don't Let SUMMER slip away!

Endless summer is unfortunately a mirage that too soon vanishes before our eyes. Most people with demanding work schedules, meals to prepare and a home to maintain find those "lazy, hazy days" a wistful dream. What ever happened to those carefree childhood afternoons spent running barefoot through the grass?

If your badminton and croquet sets have been gathering dust from too many summers in the garage, it's time to rethink your plans to schedule those leisure hours we all desire.

Precious summer weekends and vacations are meant to be savored, not evaporated with chores or fretting over complicated meals. Now is the time to plan that lawn party or simple getaway in the woods or park. To help you create time for bike trips, ball games and other "memory makers," use these tips to organize a schedule that will leave weekends more carefree.

- When possible, finish household chores on weekdays, or perhaps Monday through Thursday evenings. A written weekly plan can help keep these responsibilities on track.
- Leave the china in the closet and put the silver polish away until after Labor Day. Patios and picnics are the stuff of summer, so use tableware that's meant for these informal meals. Rubbermaid's Casual Dinnerware line of break-resistant and transportable plates, bowls, mugs and clear drinkware is available in a rainbow of popular colors. Unlike paper or plastic coated paper, this dinnerware's durability will spare the environment a mountain of throwaways.
- Stock up at the supermarket and plan weekend and vacation meals in advance. Take advantage of recipes that can be prepared ahead of time.
- Use summer's fresh bounty of fruits and vegetables in all your leisure meal planning. And take advantage of the nutritious ingredients that may already be on hand in the pantry. KELLOGG'S® ready-to-eat cereals can add variation to the simplest recipes. Ready-to-eat cereals can be used as crunchy toppings, crispy coatings or extenders for many recipes; they can enhance the taste and texture of your favorite dishes.

A meal that makes elegant fare for a gathering of friends, or travels easily to a picnic setting, can be surprisingly easy to prepare.

For starters or a tasty dessert, serve fresh fruit in a crunchy pastry cup made with cereal. As a main dish, chicken marinated in a blend of lime juice and herbs can be quickly grilled and served over a bed of fresh romaine lettuce. To accompany this tasty dinner salad, try fresh Cheesy Hot Pepper Bread with a touch of Southwestern spice. Cheesy Hot Pepper Bread is made with a whole grain wheat cereal, and is sure to add texture and variation to any meal.

If you're traveling to a picnic site, pack the fresh fruit, chicken, salad greens and bread in separate food containers to help maintain optimum freshness. Rubbermaid's food containers stack neatly in an ice chest and will help you avoid the necessity of disposing of plastic wrap or aluminum foil.

Don't forget snacks! Crunchy Minglers is a great combination of ready-to-eat cereal, nuts, pretzels and bite-size crackers that makes an unbeatable mix to serve before the main event. Make up a large batch in advance and store in Servin' Saver™ food containers to preserve freshness. The leftover mix is easy to pack for road trips, bike trips and days at the beach that a well-planned summer will allow.

PICNIC PACKERS' TIPS

- THE PACKABLES Choose salads with vinaigrette dressing instead of creamy ones...fruit pies instead of cream or custard pies...pound cakes instead of layer cakes with cream fillings...pasta salads tossed with vinaigrette...marinated potato salads, not the creamy varieties.
- THE SANDWICH FIXINGS For fresher sandwiches, pack fixings such as meats, cheeses and lettuce and tomatoes separately in plastic bags or tightly sealed food containers.
- THE PERISHABLES When in doubt, pack it on ice. Place foods like fresh fruit and vegetables, salads, sliced meats and chicken in tightly sealed food containers. Line the bottom of a cooler with ice and put the containers on top. This will help keep foods safe and cool for several hours, even on the hottest days. Chill foods and beverages, even containers, if space allows, prior to setting off on your picnic adventure.

PROPER SLEEP IS ALWAYS IMPORTANT

With few exceptions, it is not true that the older one gets the less sleep is needed. Older people usually need more sleep to help limit tension, fatigue, dizziness and headaches which senior citizens often get because they may sleep less than seven hours each night.

Once in a while a mild home remedy for sleeping can be helpful. But, if getting to sleep is a constantly recurring problem, you should consult your physician. We have many prescription medicines he may prescribe to better solve your problem.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

TIME WELL SPENT

"If I could save time in a bottle . . ."

The wish expressed in the lyrics of this song is often shared by most of us. No, we cannot harness time. The minutes and the days pass surely and swiftly by, like sand in an hourglass.

Yet, unlike the sand in the hourglass, we cannot invert the flow of time and begin anew. We cannot turn back time and "do it over," but we can use our time wisely by learning from all of our experiences and "do it better" the next time.

The only true failure is the one from which we do not learn and grow. There is a Latin phrase which, when translated, means "Through adversity to the stars." Thus, not a moment of our lives, even the less pleasurable moments, need ever be time wasted.

There is one sure way in which we may spend our time wisely. Each Sabbath, attend your chosen house of worship. Time with God is always time well spent.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PROMISES, PROMISES!

August 18, 1991

Background Scripture:
Nehemiah 9:38; 10:28-39.
Devotional Reading:
Deuteronomy 30:15-20.

I once had a parishoner who told me he had never joined the church because he didn't believe in making commitments that he wasn't sure he could keep. It was ironical because he was a faithful participant in my church, though he never actually joined. He came regularly to church school and worship, gave liberally, pitched in wherever he was needed, loved God and witnesses to what God had done for him.

Lots of Christians, I've found, resist tooth and nail the challenge to make commitments. I'm not thinking of just commitments to the church's budget—although that is certainly a prime example—but any kinds of commitments or promises. I have known people who haven't wanted to have their children baptized because the parents regarded the baptismal vows as "too demanding."

THE UNCOMMITTED LIFE

I'm sure this is hardly a new phenomenon, but in our own era it is a growing problem. Since the 1960's, many pursue the uncommitted lifestyle. This is the reason for the decline of marriage and the home. People want to be "free" to act spontaneously and not to be encumbered by promises.

I don't know of anything that can long survive without commitment, including a society which tolerates those who want to be uncommitted. Nations, schools, cultural institutions and churches simply cannot survive without people making and keeping promises. This is particularly true of the Judao-Christian religious tradition. Judaism first and Christianity after it began as religions of commitment. In the Old and New Testaments these are called covenants—vows to do and/or be something.

In its earliest form, the covenant that God made with Abraham and his descendants was that he would be their God and they would be his people. Later, Moses and his successors added the laws to this covenant relationship. Whenever God wanted to remind the people of what he had done for them, he would speak about their covenant. Unfortunately it was a rather one-sided covenant: God always kept his promises, but the people frequently failed to keep theirs.

IN, BUT NOT OF

In Nehemiah 10 we see the people amplifying the covenant with the Lord. They make certain promises to buttress their side of the agreement. They promise to avoid mixed marriages with the non-Jews who live in the land. Apparently they believed that mixed marriages would bring pegan influences and practices into their homes and communities. They wanted to keep free of these.

This is one of the biggest problems that face us today—how to be in the world without becoming of the world. How to maintain our Christian spiritual values in the midst of a culture that is blatantly materialistic. How to keep the church unstained by godless values and lifestyles. It isn't easy and sometimes we lose this battle.

(If you question that, ask yourself how much secular values predominate in the way we run our churches: what's the "best church"? The "biggest church," of course! Who's the "most successful minister"? The one with the "biggest church," to be sure!)

The people of Israel also promised to observe the sabbath, which was not easy in a land where they were surrounded by enemies. And they promised to materially support the temple and its personnel. Some people would say it would have been better for them not to make promises, because later on they would only break them. I disagree. Even if you fail, the promise keeps you on track much better than if you had made no promise at all.

Breaking our promises to God is an offense against him. Failing to make promises is probably an even greater one.

COVER STORY

Going through ceiling no high point to Ruttan

BY LYNN HOOGENBOOM

During the five years that Susan Ruttan has played Roxanne Melman on "L.A. Law" (airing Thursdays on NBC), fans have bombarded her with one question: "When are you and Arnie going to get together?"

Susan Ruttan

On the season finale last May, it finally happened. Arnold Becker (Corbin Bernsen), his marriage in ruins, realized that he had been ignoring the only person in his life who truly understood him: Roxanne, until recently his longtime, long-suffering legal secretary. He made a pass at her, they moved to a more secluded spot, and, what with all the construction going on in the firm's offices, crashed through the ceiling.

"I'm reading the script," Ruttan recalls. "I get to this part and I go, 'What? Wait! Through the ceiling?' "

It wasn't, obviously, the easiest scene to film.

"When you're on camera with very few clothes on – that's not been my experience in acting," says Ruttan. "So the whole thing I found to be truly embarrassing. Your clothes are sort of flying up in the air – what few you have on."

But Arnie, for the time being anyway, belongs to Roxanne. So guess what Ruttan's fans have been telling her this summer?

"They finally get together and everybody's going, 'How could you fall for that bum?' " she says with a laugh.

Actually, Ruttan isn't about to argue with that assessment. "I absolutely agree that she should never have had an affair with Arnie," she says. "I think she would have learned that by now."

But in spite of all that, she admits to feeling a bit pleased for Roxanne.

"There's a certain satisfaction," she says. "She is the right person for him, really. She's the one who understands him, yet at this point in her life is unwilling to tolerate any bull from him."

Memorable as getting together with Arnie was, Ruttan doesn't see it as the high point of her years on "L.A. Law." For her, the high point will always be the first season, when what she thought would be a small guest role on the pilot turned into a featured role on the hottest series on television.

"I remember the first night after the pilot had aired standing in a restaurant waiting to be seated. I looked around and saw people looking at me. I said to my friend, 'Is there something wrong with me?' Then someone walked up and said, 'We saw "L.A. Law" and just want to tell you how great it was.'

"It was exhausting and exhilarating and terrifying and loads of fun – getting to go places you'd never think in your life you'd be invited to."

On "L.A. Law," Corbin Bernsen plays divorce lawyer Arnold Becker, and Susan Ruttan portrays administrative assistant Roxanne Melman. It airs Thursdays on NBC.

Little League World Series gets big-time TV exposure

BY CHRISTOPHER HULL

The 45th Little League World Series gets underway at Lamade Stadium in Williamsport, Pa., this week, and the championship game will air live on "ABC's Wide World of Sports" Saturday, Aug. 24. Brent Musburger will be on hand to call all of the action. ESPN has live and taped coverage of the semifinal games on Thursday, Aug. 22.

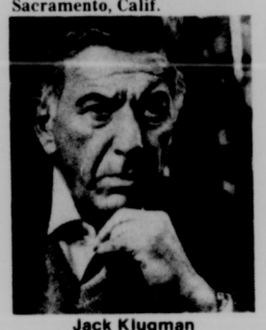
Hopeful Little Leaguer

According to Steve Weller, director of communications for Little League Baseball, the eight regional champions that make it to Williamsport for the final series of eliminations are truly the tip of the iceberg.

The eight, representing the East, South, West and Central regions of the United States, as well as Canada, Latin America, Europe and the Far East, have played their way to the front of a 7,000-team field that is spread across 46 countries. Once in Williamsport, the teams play in two single-elimination brackets – one comprised of the four American teams, the other made up of the four non-American teams.

The Little League World Series began in 1947 as a strictly American affair. The first foreign team to come to the tournament was from Montreal in 1952, and a short five years later, a club from Monterrey, Mexico, became the first non-U.S. team to win the title.

In recent years, teams from the Far East have dominated the competition, with teams from Taiwan, Japan and South Korea winning 19 of the last 24 championships. Their mastery prompted organizers to close the series to international teams in 1975, but a general outcry opened it back up the following year. And that is as it should be, with Little League baseball now being played around the world.



• Most of the kids playing at Williamsport this week have at least entertained notions of one day making it to the bigs, where there's a full slate of nationally televised games this week. On Sunday, Aug. 18, ESPN airs the Oakland-Minnesota game, and on Saturday, Aug. 24, CBS has coverage of either Cincinnati-New York or Minnesota-Baltimore. ESPN has its usual games on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

• Two weeks and counting until the start of the NFL season, and teams will be giving a last, hard look at their rosters before the final-cut deadline on Aug. 26. Here's this week's televised pre-season games: Sunday, Dallas-Houston (TNT); Monday, Miami-Denver (ABC); Thursday, L.A. Rams-Houston at Memphis (ESPN); Friday, San Francisco-Seattle (NBC); Saturday, Chicago-Buffalo (CBS).

TV DIALOGUE

BY TONI REINHOLD

JACK ON THE BOX – My husband says that long before Jack Klugman got his part in "The Odd Couple," he had another TV series. If this is true, what was the name of that show? Also, can you tell me a little bit about him? – F.R., Sacramento, Calif.

Jack Klugman

From 1964-65, Klugman starred in the comedy "Harris Against the World," part of ABC's "90 Bristol Court" trilogy of Monday-night comedy series. He played Oscar Madison in "The Odd Couple" from 1970-75 and went on to portray a medical examiner in "Quincy, M.E." (1976-83). He also starred in the 1986-87 sitcom "You Again?"

Born on April 27, 1922, in South Philadelphia Pa., Klugman served in World War II, then went to work as a stage actor in New York City, where he shared an apartment with another young actor named Charles Bronson. Klugman appeared in a number of "Golden Age" TV shows, including "U.S. Steel Hour," "Playhouse 90" and "Kraft Television Theatre." During 1954 and 1955 he was a regular in the soap "The Greatest Gift." In 1964, he won an Emmy for a guest performance in "The Defenders"; he also won Emmys in 1971 and 1974 for his work in "The Odd Couple." Klugman recently has been battling cancer of the throat.

BARBARA GAZZARA? – Please settle an argument for me. Was Barbara Eden ever married to Ben Gazzara? – W.S., Galesburg, Ill.

No. But she was married to actor Michael Ansara from 1958-73.

STARS OF 'CHICO' – A few years ago there was a TV show called "Chico and the Man," about an elderly man who ran a garage and a young man who worked for him. We believe the young man later committed suicide. Can you give us their names and tell us if the young actor killed himself? – R.M., Buffalo, N.Y.

"Chico and the Man" (1974-78) starred Jack Albertson as garage-owner Ed Brown and comedian Freddie Prinze as Chico Rodriguez. Prinze killed himself with a shot to the head in 1977, when he was 22 years old. Prinze grew up in New York City. He was the son of a Puerto Rican mother and Hungarian father, which, he said, made him a "Hungarican." His mother contended that he had not committed suicide, but that he was under the influence of drugs and unaware that the gun would go off.

Gish stars as victim of acquaintance rape

BY FELICIA A. FEASTER

Annabeth Gish stars as New Yorker Lyn McKenna, a freshman away from home at a California college who is raped by her best friend's boyfriend (Jack Terlesky), a collegiate jock, in "When He's Not a Stranger" (CBS, Aug. 20). Produced with the cooperation of the Santa Monica Rape Treatment Center, the dramatization details McKenna's struggle against the university and the legal system for justice. Despite the emergence of rape-education programs like HBO's "Rape: Cries From the Heartland," it appears the popular consciousness requires additional raising in the area of acquaintance rape.

Annabelle Gish

• In the TV movies "Double Take" and "Internal Affairs," New York City detective Lt. Frank Janek (Richard Crenna) battled police corruption while solving grisly murder cases. In "Murder in Black and White" (CBS, Aug. 18), the third installment of the crime drama, when a recently appointed black police commissioner is murdered, his widow (Diahann Carroll) figures prominently as she and Janek develop a strong attraction to each other.

• Televangelical couple Tammy Faye and Jim Bakker were the first indication that television ministry wasn't all force-fed wholesomeness and blissful honesty. The tabloid-ready story that begged for a television movie, "Fall From Grace" (NBC, Aug. 18) is the unwashed tale of Jim (Kevin Spacey) and Tammy Faye (Bernadette Peters) and the collapse of their PTL empire.

• In "Romancing the Stone" (ABC, Aug. 18), Joan Wilder (Kathleen Turner) is a wimpy romance novelist with a penchant for creating amazing scenarios her real life doesn't quite measure up to. But when her sister is kidnapped in Colombia by a band of thieves, Wilder must travel to the South American wilderness and exchange a map to buried treasure for her sister. Along the way, Wilder hooks up with the swaggering man-of-her-dreams, Jack Colton (Michael Douglas), an entrepreneurial rogue who's either after Wilder's money or her love.

• "In the Best Interest of the Child" (CBS, Aug. 23) concerns an architect mother (Meg Tilly) who believes her daughter has been sexually abused by her ex-husband, Walt (Michael O'Keefe). When the court grants him unsupervised visitation rights with the child, Jennifer Colton (Tilly) is jailed for her refusal to comply with the court order. Later, she flees with her daughter via an underground network devoted to protecting abused children.

SOAP SCOOP

BY CONNIE PASSALACQUA

Jack. Jack. Jack.

Sure, this column and the entire soap world had been obsessed with the shocking announcement that Jack Wagner would jump from that sinking ship "General Hospital" (on which he had played Frisco Jones) to NBC time-slot competitor (in most areas) "Santa Barbara" (as Warren Lockridge). And that was even before Wagner's July 1st debut. Since then, Wagner – whose Frisco had been a wimpy cop and a simpy singer – has been absolutely sensational as journalist/adventurer Warren.

Jack Wagner

"Yeah, it can be kind of tiring, but who cares?" Wagner says of his schedule. For perhaps the first time in soap history, "SB" featured its new acquisition in every episode last month. Wagner, with a new clipped hairstyle and clipped beard, fairly ate up the screen.

"Warren's based on Ernest Hemingway, but that's easy for me to play," Wagner says. Truth be told, the smart and slick Warren isn't too different from Wagner. Since coming on the soap scene in 1983, Wagner has always had an air of supreme self-confidence.

Wagner says he took the role "because when I met with the Dobsons, I locked in with them right away." "SB" writers and creators Jerome and Bridget Dobson are known for their creation of spicy characters with literary subtexts. Wagner says he didn't leave "GH" because of ABC's new 5 percent pay-raise cap on daytime talent contract renewals.

"Well, that whole thing didn't hold true, because they promised me a substantial raise. They made a nice offer, but NBC topped it," Wagner says. When asked if he thought ABC was going to lose other stars due to the new policy, he says, "What's going to happen to them is what happened with me. Other networks are going to come along."

Wagner was not happy with the latest doings of his "GH" character, Frisco. "When Gloria (Monty, the soap's executive producer) came back to the show, a lot of actors were forced back into molds they already graduated from." Frisco went back from being an intelligence operative to a foot patrolman. Wagner also said the parting from Monty, a close friend who gave him his big career break, wasn't easy.

Still, Wagner evidently relishes playing Warren, a newspaper owner who seems to have a bit of the young Charles Foster Kane (of "Citizen Kane") in him. Citizen Lockridge may have something to prove in Santa Barbara, but on "SB" Jack Wagner has reconquered the soap world.

IN FOCUS

In "Crazy From the Heart," Christine Lahti stars as a Texas high-school principal whose love life is in the doldrums. Adrift in a seven-year relationship with the noncommittal school coach, her settled but unsatisfying life is turned upside down when she is wooed by the school's janitor (Ruben Blades). "Crazy From the Heart" is warm and funny, and Lahti and Blades are great together. It premieres Monday, Aug. 19, on TNT.

Alcohol And Cigarette Tax Revenue Shared

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said his office has mailed checks totaling $5,243,945 to Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City, representing their share of alcohol and tobacco tax collections for the final quarter of fiscal year 1991 (April, May, and June, 1991).

Garrett County received the following amounts for the fourth quarter: $13,335.03 in tobacco tax revenue, $8,257.87 in distilled spirits tax revenue, and $6,352.46 in beer tax revenue.

"This distribution brings the total local share of distilled spirits, beer and cigarette tax revenue for fiscal year 1991 to $21,332,271," Goldstein said. "That's 3.9% less than the $22,201,045 the subdivisions received during fiscal year 1990."

Alcohol and tobacco tax collections for the fiscal year just ended totaled $87,986,360, a slight increase of 1.6% over the $86,586,057 collected during fiscal year 1991. The 1991 fiscal year tax collections also include $1,141,499 cigarette floor tax.

"The floor tax is a one-time collection of the three cents per pack tax increase that went into effect June 1, 1991," Mr. Goldstein said. "The floor tax was collected on cigarettes in inventory as of midnight, May 31, 1991."

For fiscal year 1991, distilled spirits taxes produced $12.9 million, down almost five percent; wine taxes yielded more than $4 million, up 1%; beer taxes produced $9.5 million, up one-third of one percent, and cigarette tax receipts amounted to $61.1 million, up 2.4%.

SUMMER YOUTH PROGRAM STAFF RECOGNIZED -- The staff of the 1991 Summer Youth Employment and Training Program (SYETP) were recognized for their efforts last week by the Garrett County Commissioners as this year's program came to a successful conclusion. Since 1965, the Garrett County Board of Education has been operating the Summer Youth Program in cooperation with the Western Maryland Consortium. The SYETP is funded through the Job Training Partnership Act and local programs are approved by the Private Industry Council. The total awarded to Garrett County this year was $129,977. The program served 60 public sector worksites in the community, with 106 youth participating in the regular program and 21 in the Learning Alertness Program. This year's staff has a combination of sixty years experience working with the SYETP, and included John Ledden, program director; Gail Dixon, secretary; Elmer Redinger, lead field advisor; Sheila Miller, Doug Oxford and Dent Huber, field advisors; Gary Reichenbecher and Jill Evans, learning alertness assistants; Harry Biggs, training advisor and Maryland's Tomorrow case manager, Patricia Yoder, Maryland's Tomorrow case manager; Kevin Wassel and Ralph Miller, bus drivers. Pictured above with the county commissioners are staff members and youth participants. Seated in the front row, left to right are commissioners Brenda Butscher, Elwood Groves and John Braskey. In the second row, same order, are Catherine Coddington, Robert Beachy, Catherine Collins, Nancy Lewis, Mary Lou Stemple and Elmer Redinger. In the back row, same order, are Gary Reichenbecher, John Ledden, Harrison Foy, Robert McCombie, Jason William McCombie, Dwight Lewis, Doug Oxford and Sheila Miller. Not present at the time the photo was taken was Roger Riley, supervisor.

"Of the slightly more than $21 million shared with the subdivisions as a result of these revenue collections, tobacco tax distributions accounted for $12,726,838, down 4.3% from the previous fiscal year. The subdivisions' share of distilled spirits tax revenue for fiscal year 1991, was $4,398,193, down 2.6%. Beer tax distributions to the subdivisions were down by $4.2% to $4,207,240," the comptroller said.

Cigarette tax revenue is shared based on a formula returning three cents of the 16¢ per pack tax to the subdivisions based on population.

Approximately one-third of the $1.50 per gallon distilled spirits tax and one half of the nine cents per gallon beer tax is returned to the local governments.

AHEC Slates Workshop For Area Physicians

Physicians in the region who serve as medical preceptors with the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center (AHEC) are invited to a workshop addressing the recent changes in the University of Maryland at Baltimore's Ambulatory Care Requirements. The invitation to physicians is extended by Raul Felipa, M.D., chairperson of the Western Maryland AHEC Medical Caucus. The workshop is planned for August 28, at 6 p.m. at the Western Maryland AHEC, 11 Columbia Street, Cumberland. It will address program changes created by the addition of a Clinical Preventive Medicine component to the existing curriculum.

The workshop, entitled "Clinical Preventive Medicine," will be presented by the University of Maryland at Baltimore faculty members Sallie Rixey, MD, assistant professor and chairperson of the Ambulatory Care Program, and Stephen Havas, MD, MPH, MS, associate professor and coursemaster. The workshop is approved for two prescribed hours of continuing medical education by the American Academy of Family Physicians.

According to B. Ruth Wood, MS, RN, director of Clinical Education and Placement, in addition to working with medical students the AHEC coordinates clinical education experiences for students in pharmacy, dentistry, occupational therapy, physical therapy, public health administration, social work and many other health professions. The AHEC "custom designs" the clinical education preceptorship for the students and residents coming to Western Maryland. The one-on-one preceptorship is enhanced by the student participation in a seven-point interdisciplinary curriculum which includes weekly seminars. All programs are designed to increase the student's knowledge not only in clinical skill content, but in awareness of the human relations skills essential for successful patient care and interprofessional cooperation.

Wood added that the student/preceptor relationship and student's preference in practice setting are primary considerations in designing the rural clinical experiences. "We are encouraging these students to establish their practices in Western Maryland or in similar small city/rural areas where they are most needed. Our preceptors are very important and successful in fostering this link to the professional communities in Western Maryland. Forty-four percent (44%) of the students who participated in the Western Maryland AHEC Clinical Education Program and who are now licensed to practice have established their careers as in small city/rural area," stated Wood.

The AHEC maintains a residence facility for students on placement in Allegany County, and surrounding areas, at 11 Columbia Street, Cumberland, and coordinates housing arrangements for students studying in Garrett and Washington counties.

Currently, over 100 area health care professionals serve as preceptors in the Western Maryland AHEC's Clinical Education Program. This past year over 80 students, from various universities and programs, choose this region for their clinical experience. Many based their decision to come on the word of mouth endorsements of past students. Physicians serving as preceptors for medical students in the program are eligible for faculty appointments through UMAB, and are eligible to receive CME's for their precepting services. For more information on the program or the workshop, call (301) 777-9150.

Peak Condition!

Imagine that you plan to purchase a second car, one that is pre-owned. When you first see the car, you noticed the windshield is cracked, and there is a small "ding" on the front fender. Inside, the dome light does not work, the upholstery is stained, and the glove compartment won't stay closed.

Although you find no major problems, you decide not to buy the car. You reason to yourself that if the owner has not corrected minor visible problems, there may be other invisible "deferred maintenance" which could affect the car's performance.

Home buyers make the same value judgments when inspecting a home for purchase. They reason that a broken doorbell, overgrown yard and broken pane of glass are warning signs that more serious repairs may be needed in other areas such as plumbing, heating and electrical systems.

Since most buyers are looking for their "dream" home, it follows that they will probably not even make an offer on one which displays owner neglect. In fact, such a home invites low offers.

It is assumed that the asking price reflects a home in excellent condition. Buyers who encounter one in need of repairs tend to discount their offer to compensate for anticipated outlays. A common rule of thumb is to offer $2.00 less for each $1.00 in anticipated repair costs. A home needing $1,600 in repairs might attract an offer that is $3,200 less than the asking price.

When selling a home, make needed improvements before placing the home on the market. By offering a home in unquestionable condition, buyers are more likely to pay full price and feel good about it.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give us a call at 387-5303 or come by our office located at McHenry Plaza.

Film Showing Set At Local Church

Caught, the newest film from Billy Graham's World Wide Pictures, will be shown this Sunday, August 18, at 7 p.m., at the Kitzmiller Assembly of God, 4th & Main Sts., Kitzmiller.

The true-to-life dramatic story portrays the power of one person caring for another, according to a church spokesman.

An 18-year-old American, Tim Devon, goes to Amsterdam in search of the father he has never known. In this city, far from his home, he slips into the self-destructive drug culture, but is encountered by Rajam Prasad, a person who finds a way "to share Christ's message of love, hope and forgiveness in a way that Tim could not ignore," the spokesman said.

The public is cordially invited to attend this showing. For more information, persons may call 453-3156.

Boat Launching Ramp Closed At Randolph Lake

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Jennings Randolph Lake has announced that, because of low water conditions at the lake, the Howell Run Boat Launch has been closed to boats that require trailers to launch. The lake is still open to boats that can be carried to the water by hand.

For further information, persons may call the Park Office at 304-355-2346 or 301-359-3861.

Funds Available For Owners Of Underground Tanks

The Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) is continuing to accept applications from individuals and firms interested in Maryland's new Underground Storage Tank Upgrade and Replacement Fund. Low-interest loans of up to $50,000 are available to qualified underground storage tank owners who need to improve or replace tanks.

The Underground Storage Tank Upgrade and Replacement Fund -- created during the 1991 session of the General Assembly and formally established July 1, 1991 -- is designed to help tank owners upgrade operations in an effort to make underground storage tank insurance more affordable. Current federal law requires that all underground storage tanks be properly insured.

To be considered for the loan program, interested applicants must notify MDE in writing no later than September 1, 1991. Tank owners seeking more information can call MDE's Underground Storage Tank Division at (301) 631-3442.

WIC Program Funds Increased By 20 Percent

The Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) has announced that the state's WIC Program will be able to increase enrollment by nearly 20 percent, thanks to $630,000 in supplemental funds received from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

These funds will be used to increase the number of pregnant women, infants and children receiving program benefits by approximately 10,000 between now and September 30, 1991.

"The challenge we face now is to make sure that we get as many eligible families as possible enrolled in this program to take advantage of this additional funding," said health secretary Nelson J. Sabatini. "Our success will determine whether we receive increased funding from the federal government next year in expanding this much-needed service."

The WIC Program provides supplemental foods such as infant formula, milk, juice, eggs and cereal to pregnant women, infants and children through their fifth birthday who have a low income (less than $24,790 a year for a family of four) and who have a medical/nutritional need.

The WIC Program serves approximately 55,000 women and children throughout Maryland.

"Prior to the receipt of these additional funds, several counties were not able to serve children over one year of age," said Joan Salim, Director of the Maryland WIC Program. "These older children who were on a waiting list can now be offered program benefits."

The extra money comes from collections made by the USDA from surpluses in other states' WIC Program. The federal agency makes these collections annually and redistributes funds to those states indicating a need.

Of the total grant amount, $485,500 will be used to provide food for additional applicants throughout the state. The balance of the funds will provide personnel and support services.

Anyone interested in obtaining information about the WIC Program should contact their local health department or call the state WIC Hotline at 1-800-242-4WIC (4942) for information.

Zion's altar flowers were given Sunday by Clara Durst in memory of her late husband, Patrick Garlitz.

A member of the Crisis Pregnancy Center from Oakland will speak at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church this Sunday at 7:30. The public is invited to attend.

Lottie Brenneman attended special services of worship at Kurtz's Chapel on Sunday afternoon.

The annual Bittinger picnic will be held this Saturday, August 17, at Brenneman's Grove. Donations of pies, cakes, and baked beans will be appreciated. The beans are to be at the fire hall by Friday morning.

Lectors for Sunday services were: Carole Peck, St. John's; Emmanuel, Vickey Teets; and Zion, Clara Durst. Communion assistants were Leora Yaste and Jenny Weller.

ZION WOMEN MEET

Zion's Women of the ELCA held their monthly meeting in the church on August 6, with five members and one visitor, Becky Durst, attending.

The meeting opened with Alta Broadwater leading the hymn, "Children of the Heavenly Father."

Ruthella Resh led Bible studies. Taken from the prophecies of Isaiah and Joel, the studies related to the future of nations, their relationship to God and to one another; and also individual relationship in the future.

Mrs. Resh also presided over the business meeting.

Subscriptions were submitted for the devotional guide, "Christ in Our Home."

The items for the Lutheran Home in Kane, Pa., (washcloths, bibs, and invalid gowns) must be in by September.

A birthday offering was presented by Ruthella Resh.

A gift offering was received from Lucretia Stanton in memory of her husband, Stanley Stanton, on his birthday anniversary. A tribute to the memory of Verta E. Durst on her birthday was made through a gift offering from Leota Baker. These offerings will be forwarded to Women of the ELCA-Churchwide, for specific ministries, designated for Missionary Support.

The next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, September 4.

Government In Tourism Week Now Underway

The Maryland Office of Tourism Development today announced "Government in Tourism Week" to be held August 15-19. Elected officials throughout the state have been invited to participate by working one-hour shifts in the Maryland travel information center of their choice, greeting visitors and distributing promotional materials.

George Williams, director of the Office of Tourism Development (OTD), part of the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development, said, "We believe Government in Tourism Week will provide an opportunity for elected officials to develop a first-hand knowledge of the importance of tourism in Maryland's economy. It also will give them a terrific opportunity to 'sell' our great state to visitors."

"Maryland's travel information centers are an important part of our efforts to market the state to tourists," added Williams. "They are the first point of contact for many visitors to Maryland."

There are now 12 state travel information centers in Maryland following the August 2 opening of the Sideling Hill Exhibit Center along the new Interstate 68 between Hancock and Cumberland. One is also located just east of Friendsville along U.S. Rt. 68. More than 1.5 million tourists visit the centers each year, picking up brochures on local and statewide activities, as well as obtaining lodging, restaurant and other travel information.

Government in Tourism Week is part of the "Tourism in Maryland . . . With Pride" awareness campaign launched by OTD this past May. In addition to inviting all elected officials in the state to participate, including Governor William Donald Schaefer and Lieutenant Governor Melvin A. Steinburg, members of the lodging industry also have been asked to participate.

More than 33 million tourists visit Maryland each year, resulting in a total economic impact to the State's economy over $8 billion.

Storing Up Additional Corn Silage Is Good Business In A Drought Year

There are three good reasons for dairy producers and livestock farmers to store up more corn silage than normal in a drought year like this one, and only one pitfall.

So says Richard A. Erdman, professor of animal sciences at the University of Maryland College Park. Dr. Erdman is nationally known for his research work in dairy nutrition and feeding.

Contrary to popular belief, Erdman declares, silage made from drought-stressed corn has feed value that is at least equivalent to the feed value of corn produced during a normal growing season.

And, with good-quality alfalfa hay now selling at more than $160 per ton, corn silage is much cheaper than hay. Erdman urges livestock farmers to buy standing drought-damaged corn from their neighbors as soon as possible, if they don't think they'll have enough feed to last through next spring.

Standing corn in the field probably can be purchased for $20 per ton. This would be the equivalent of paying only $60 to $80 per ton for alfalfa hay, Erdman says.

A third reason for storing up extra corn silage now comes from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Stabilization and Conservation Service. James C. Richardson, state ASCS director in Maryland, reports that federal regulations have been changed regarding farmer eligibility for possible drought disaster payments.

In the past, farmers who stored up extra feed in early fall were penalized by not receiving as much drought disaster financial assistance as farmers who had not stored up extra feed. This is no longer true, according to a memo sent recently to county ASCS offices.

Richardson now says that farmers who store up extra feed will not be penalized, as long as they can show a verifiable receipt proving that they purchased the extra feed from another farmer.

Nitrate poisoning is the one pitfall to feeding drought-damaged corn, Erdman acknowledges. But this hazard can be overcome by careful management.

Three to four weeks after ensiling, the fermentation process should have reduced nitrate levels by nearly one-half. But proper moisture levels are necessary to make sure that adequate fermentation occurs. The optimum moisture level is 65 percent. Oxygen-limiting silos, however, work best at 60 percent; bunkers at 68 to 70 percent.

At the proper moisture level for silage, corn ears should have the milk line (dark area) about halfway down each kernel. In severely drought-stricken fields where no kernels have formed on the ears, dried leaves may not be an accurate indicator of moisture in the stalks. Instead, try one of these methods:

- For precise measurements, use a silage moisture tester. You probably can order one through a local farm supply store in a range of $200 to $300. Those at the high end of the price range provide digital readouts. Grain moisture testers are not adequate for the job.

- For an estimate of silage moisture, try drying out a silage sample in your family's microwave oven. This method requires an accurate scale for weighing the sample before and after microwaving.

For more information on ensiling drought-stressed corn, check with your county office of the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System. Ask for Fact Sheets 433 and 483. Single copies are free to Maryland residents.

Nitrate Poisoning Can Be A Danger During Drought Years

Most livestock farmers know that nitrate-poisoned forage feeds are a definite possibility in drought years like 1991. But timing of the harvest and proper feed management afterward will cut the incidence of sick animals to almost zero.

So says Lester R. Vough, forage crops specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System. Dr. Vough notes that nitrate poisoning occurs when livestock eat too much forage that is high in nitrates which have not yet changed to protein in the forage plants.

This situation occurs when plants have not been growing normally because of stress--usually drought stress. It is most common in corn that has been fertilized for high grain yield and then harvested for silage because its stunted growth has shattered hopes for a profitable grain yield.

Other forage plants, such as sudangrass, sorghum, pearl millet, oats, orchardgrass and tall fescue also can accumulate nitrates at high levels. The same applies to most weeds found in cornfields--including redroot pigweed, common lambsquarters, ragweed, velvetleaf, witchgrass, Canada thistle and black nightshade.

Drought conditions during or immediately after pollination usually cause the highest accumulation of nitrates in corn plants, Vough says. And the heaviest concentration is typically found in the bottom one-third of each stalk.

Resumption of normal plant growth after a heavy rainfall will reduce that accumulation considerably. So Vough advises farmers to delay forage harvest in a drought year for three or four days after heavy rain.

If soaking rains have not occurred, set the cutter bar high to avoid the heavy nitrate concentrations in the lower part of each stalk. Make sure cutter knives are sharp, with the length of cut set at 3/8 to 1/2 inch.

Dry leaves do not infer dry stalks or dry kernels, Vough cautions. When at the proper moisture level for silage, corn ears should have the milk line (dark area) about halfway down each kernel.

After harvest, consider these management practices to further reduce the risk of nitrate poisoning:

*Store chopped forage as silage. Allow three to four weeks for the fermentation process to be completed. This will reduce nitrate concentrations by one-third.

*Add 20 pounds of limestone per ton of silage going into the silo to reduce nitrate levels still further. More limestone than this, however, could adversely affect fermentation and silage quality.

*Assure proper moisture level in forage before ensiling. Adequate fermentation will not occur if forage is either to dry or too wet. Optimum moisture level is 65 percent. Oxygen-limiting silos, however, work best at 60 percent; bunkers at 68 to 70 percent. Adding water to dry forage is usually not worthwhile.

*Test all drought-stricken forage before feeding it to livestock. Laboratory analysis is necessary. Measure nitrate level as silo is being filled and again just before you start feeding it to livestock. The latter test should include a full nutrient analysis, since a balanced ration is good insurance against nitrate toxicity problems.

Dilute known high-nitrate forage with low-nitrate feed such as grain or legumes. Grain is especially helpful in the process of converting nitrate to protein in an animal's rumen.

*Feed high-nitrate forage in limited amounts at frequent intervals. This will help animal rumens adapt to nitrate toxicity. Extreme caution should be used, however, with dry cows and bred heifers.

For more free information on nitrate poisoning, persons should ask for Fact Sheet 426 at the county office of the Cooperative Extension Service. The county Extension agricultural agent also can help in locating a feed-testing laboratory.

There is at least one commercial feed-testing laboratory in Maryland and several in Pennsylvania. Testing services are also available from the New York DHIC laboratory on the campus of Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y. Most major feed companies offer free testing service to their customers.

Western and North Central Maryland averaged 72.2 and 75.9 degrees respectively, 3.9 and 4.1 degrees above the normals. Southern Maryland West of the Bay and the Eastern Shore averaged 75.5 and 75.9 degrees respectively for June, 2.6 and 3.1 degrees above their respective normals of 72.9 and 72.5 degrees.

Over Half Of Field Corn Crop In Dough Stage

By August 11, 67 percent of Maryland's field corn acreage had reached the dough stage, ahead of last year's 58 percent and the five year average of 54 percent. An average of 5.2 days was suitable for fieldwork during this past week, according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Across the state, six percent of the topsoil was very short of moisture, 28 percent was short, 55 percent was adequate and 11 percent was surplus. Subsoil moisture ended the week as follows: 11 percent was very short, 39 percent was short, 44 percent was adequate, and six percent was surplus. Oats were in poor to fair condition across the state. Hay supplies were adequate. Pastures were in very poor condition. Peaches and apples were in good condition.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture market newsline (1-800-638-2207) now reports current crop status information from 1 p.m Tuesday through noon Wednesday. During the remainder of each week, the information line provides an update of the Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market Wholesale Produce Auction sales each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday through October.

WEATHER

Maryland weather for the week ended August 9, 1991 was normal to slightly above with a moderate amount of precipitation. Precipitation averaged 1.3 inch ranging from 0.3 at Westminster to 3.90 inches at Salisbury. Western and North Central Maryland averaged 0.61 and 1.02 inch, respectively. Southern Maryland West of the Bay and the Eastern Shore averaged 1.53 and 1.77 inch, respectively. Temperatures averaged 77.9 degrees, 2.1 degrees above the normal of 75.8 degrees for the August 3 to August 9 period. Minimum temperatures were mostly in the high 50's to low 60's. Maximum temperatures were in the mid to upper 90's except in the Western and North Central areas, where a few stations reached 100 degrees.

FFA Members Attend Washington Conference Program

Dayton Bolyard and Daniel Fint of the East Preston FFA Chapter of Terra Alta, W.Va., attended the 1991 Washington Conference Program in the nation's capital.

The week-long program was designed to help FFA members improve leadership skills, develop an understanding of national heritage and prepare for more effective leadership roles in their chapters and communities. Sessions on human relations, goal setting, and interpersonal communications were combined with discussions on personal outlook, motivation, and values to help members become effective leaders in the science, business and technology of agriculture.

Visits to Mount Vernon, the Smithsonian Institution, Arlington National Cemetery, the Jefferson Memorial and other historic sites in Washington were included in the conference.

A highlight of the week was the visit to the office of Senator Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia.

The chapter's FFA advisor is Terry Hauser.

Processed Vegetable Acreage Up Slighty

Vegetable processors have contracts with U.S. farmers for 1.61 million acres planted to the few major vegetable crops (snap beans, sweet corn, cucumbers for pickles, green peas, and tomatoes). This acreage is up slightly from last year and eight percent above 1989. Acreage planted to cucumbers for pickles came to 97,070 acres, down nine percent from a year ago and 11 percent below 1989. Sweet corn acreage is up four percent, tomatoes gained one-half of one percent, while snap beans and green peas are down two percent each.

Wheat Production Up

Winter wheat production in Maryland, based on conditions on July 1, is forecast at 10,335,000 bushels, up five percent from 1990's production of 9,880,000 bushels. The average yield for the 1991 wheat crop is forecast at 53 bushels per acre, equaling the record for 1988. Winter wheat production in the U.S. for 1991 is forecast at 1.36 billion bushels, down six percent from June 1 and down 33 percent from 1990.

Wye Field Day Scheduled For August 22

The Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station's Wye Research and Education Center is committed to meeting the challenges facing Maryland's agricultural base, natural resources and environment.

Cawley To Remain Agricultural Advisor After Retirement

In announcing his intention to retire as Maryland's Secretary of Agriculture November 1, Wayne A. Cawley Jr. said he was pleased to be staying on as a senior agricultural advisor to Governor William Donald Schaefer and the Department of Agriculture.

"I will continue to work hard to promote agriculture in Maryland and work on the agricultural side of our Chesapeake Bay restoration effort," Cawley said.

"We have made a lot of progress in the 13 years I served under Governor Harry Hughes and Governor Schaefer. We moved into a new headquarters building and started many new programs to strengthen agriculture's economic position in our state. I am particularly proud of both our domestic and international marketing efforts which have increased options for Maryland farmers," said Cawley.

"I am confident that Robert Walker will make an outstanding Secretary of Agriculture. He knows both the working of Government and agribusiness in our state. He and the MDA team will be more than up to meeting the challenges ahead," Cawley said.

Besides his government service, Cawley has been a grain farmer for more than 30 years at "Controversie" in Denton. Together with his sons, he farms more than 2,000 acres. His awards include Caroline County's "Outstanding Farmer" in 1974 and the American Society for Public Administration's State Administrator of the Year for 1990.

"What I will miss most about no longer being Secretary is the employees at the Maryland Department of Agriculture. They are a great group of people and over the years they have made my job easy," Cawley said.

Northeastern Forage Studies Review Length Of Grazing Season

Beef cattle producers in the northeast may be able to extend the grazing season by two or three months, as well as increase stocking capacity by 25 to 30 percent, according to Dr. Edward Prigge of West Virginia University.

In a report prepared for the American Society of Animal Science, Prigge summarizes the results of studies on grazing techniques and forage utilization from universities throughout the northeast. His review concludes that warm-season grasses and brassicas may be the key to more efficient pasture management systems.

Native cool-season grasses grow well in the spring and again in the fall, but slow considerably as temperatures heat up during the summer. Many cattle and sheep producers will stock pastures with fewer animals to allow for this summer slump. Consequently, they don't use their cool-season grasses to full capacity in the spring when the quality and growth rate are very high.

Warm-season grasses peak during the hot summer months. Their use can help insure a uniform forage supply that allows a higher stocking rate throughout the season. Switchgrass and big bluestem are among the warm-season grasses suitable for this purpose.

Extending the grazing season is possible, too. Producers can use fescue stockpiled from the first hay cutting to feed cattle in the fields after a killing frost. If snow cover allows, the animals may be able to graze until January or February.

Brassicas can be used in a similar manner to extend the grazing season or to finish animals for market. Brassica crops such as turnips and kale are very high in nutritive value as well as high yielding.

For his review paper, Prigge looked at work produced at a number of universities in the northeast including WVU, Penn State, Maryland, New York, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Maine.

Forage Testing Can Pay

Forage testing can save dairymen considerable money by allowing you to properly balance rations with the appropriate amount of concentrate and protein supplement. Though you strive to harvest and store high quality forage, quality can nevertheless vary considerably. Protein may range from 14 percent to 25 percent in alfalfa, and even bigger variations in grasses and grass-legume mixtures. Let's use alfalfa hay as an example to demonstrate how quality can affect milk production and the amount of grain and protein supplement required to balance a ration. When harvested in the vegetative stage, alfalfa contains about 29 percent acid detergent fiber (ADF) and 20 percent to 22 percent crude protein. By full bloom, the fiber content is 37 percent and the protein can be lower than 15 percent. And that's if the field is pure alfalfa. Assume that as part of a balanced ration, a cow consumes 27.5 pounds of alfalfa harvested in the late vegetative stage. If instead the cow is fed alfalfa harvested in full bloom, its intake of energy is reduced by 2.256 pounds and crude protein by 1.25 pounds. Consequently, the ration would no longer be balanced, and milk production would drop by 10 to 14 pounds per day. Using a milk price of $10 per cwt, this would amount to a loss of $1.00 to $1.40 per cow per day, or $300 to $420 per cow per lactation. To maintain production, an additional 2.25 pounds of soybean meal and 0.25 pounds of corn would be needed per day to balance the ration.

Emergency Forages

Many farmers are already short on forages. Small grains seeded now up to early September will provide late fall feed. The small grains can be grazed, harvested for silage or green chopped. Spring oats should be seeded in August at a rate of 90 pounds per acre. It can be harvested in approximately 50 days after seedlings appear. The winter grains do not supply enough fall growth, in most cases, to harvest as fall silage, but does make for good grazing. Next spring they will provide plenty of silage. Top-dress 50 pounds of nitrogen in the spring.

Crop Production Costs

Each year the USDA surveys regions of the U.S. to gather data on production costs. I thought you might be interested in the costs on producing corn and oats in our region. For corn the total variable cash expenses, which include seed, fertilizer, etc., is $139.10/acre. When you add in the average fixed costs and general overhead, the costs jump to $170.33/acre. For oats the variable cost is $84.63/acre with the total of variable fixed costs equalling $113.44/acre.

ASCS To Conduct Wool, Lamb Referendum

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will conduct a referendum August 19-30 for wool and lamb producers to vote on continuation of an agreement between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) for a wool market promotion and improvement program.

Kenneth Bachtel chairperson of the Garrett County ASCS office said the agreement authorizes deductions from producers' price support payments to finance the ASI's activities. "These funds are used by the Industry for advertising and sales promotion programs for wool in domestic and foreign markets, and for information programs on production management and market development and improvement"

If producers approve continuation of the agreement, Bachtel said that up to seven cents per pound on shorn wool marketings, and 35 cents per hundredweight on unshorn lambs would be deducted for 1991. "For calendar years 1992 through 1995, the deductions may increase up to an additional one cent per pound of wool marketed and up to an additional five cents per hundredweight of unshorn lambs, per year from the prior year," he said.

To participate in the referendum, producers must have owned sheep six months old or older for at least 30 consecutive days during 1990. ASCS official, Bachtel, said members of cooperatives which cast votes would not be eligible to vote separately in the referendum.

ASCS will begin distributing ballots to Garrett County wool producers on August 16. Ballots may be returned by mail or in person to the county ASCS office.

U.S. sheep producers have approved the market promotion and improvement program in each referendum held since 1954.

A Look At Equine Encephalitis Management And Control

Eastern Equine Encephalitis is a virus that can cause fatal illness in humans, horses and gamebirds. The virus can be found during the summer months but often goes undetected. Maryland residents can discover ways to manage and control this deadly virus at the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station's Wye Field Day on August 22.

Transmission of equine encephalitis has occurred for centuries in the United States, according to Dr. Thomas Scott, associate professor in the Department of Entomology at the University of Maryland at College Park. The virus was first recorded in horses in 1831, and was first detected in Maryland in 1912. The cycle of equine encephalitis is first detected in mid-July to early August, and reaches its peak in transmission in middle-August to early September.

Studies of the virus have shown that it is transmitted by mosquitoes. The mosquitoes locate and feed on a host (usually songbirds or some other type of bird) infected by the virus. After mosquitoes retrieve blood from the host, the virus replicates and infects their salivary glands. During refeeding, infected mosquitoes transmit the virus via their saliva to susceptible hosts, such as horses, which may become infected and possibly die.

Infected horses can die within 24 to 48 hours after being bitten. In fact, an estimated 90 percent of the horses infected by the virus do die. Horse owners do not investigate the sudden death of their horses, thus the course of death goes undetermined.

Humans can also be infected, although it is rare. Symptoms include fever, nausea, vomiting, headache, stiff neck and convulsions. These symptoms may be followed by coma or death. Infected individuals who do recover suffer tremendous neurological problems such as mental retardation.

According to Scott, vaccines and vector control, are the two main ways to manage and control the virus.

The vaccines invented to combat such a virus are only effective if they are used continuously.

"The vaccines do not afford complete protection, but are more helpful if they are given to the horses more than once," said Scott. "Vaccines are only available for horses and possibly gamebirds, but not commercially available for people."

Vector control is also a viable possibility for controlling the virus. The problem is that infected mosquitoes usually live in large swampy areas covered with trees. When sprayers try to treat the area, the trees act as a canopy over the swamp, making it difficult to get to the mosquitoes.

There are relatively new diagnostic procedures for detecting the virus infections. Diagnostic procedures have been developed for horses, but therapy is limited to making the humans or horses as comfortable as possible.

"I strongly recommend people vaccinate their horses in consultation with their veterinarian," said Scott.

The Wye Field Day also offers several tour stops, youth activities, seminars and exhibits. Tour stops include: Field Crops and Soil, Horticulture, and Animal Sciences (which includes Scott's work).

Youth activities include a Horticulture Judging Contest, Mock Agriculture Market, Beef Cattle Evaluation and Selection, and a simulated Angus Auction.

There will be three half-hour seminars highlighting "Horses as an Alternative Enterprise" followed by "Issues in Land-Use Planning" and "Aquaculture as an Alternative Enterprise."

Exhibits include the latest spraying technology and safety equipment for farmers and homeowners, striped bass aquaculture exhibits and other innovative poster displays.

For more information on the Wye Field Day, contact your local Cooperative Extension Service office or the Wye Research and Education Center at (301) 827-6202.

Made-To-Order Building

Garrett Community College is currently accepting request for a made-to-order building to be constructed by this year's carpentry class. The building design must incorporate the following features: wood-frame construction, at least one exterior door, conventional windows, and maximum dimensions of 12 feet in width and 24 feet in length. It is preferred that the building design include at least one interior partition, finished walls, woodwork, electrical wiring, etc., although other interior designs will be considered. Buildings constructed in the past have been used as offices, guest cottages, concession stands, and hunting cabins. The cost of the building will be for materials only; all materials are to be supplied as needed by the owner. In addition, the owner is responsible for all arrangements and costs of moving the completed structure from Garrett Community College. The project completion date will be spring of 1992. Interested persons should contact Ed Norman at 387-6666 for more information.

Building requests will be considered in the order received and on the basis of how well the design incorporates the requirements listed above. In the event that several requests are received, the college reserves the right to make the final project selection based on how well the building design fits course requirements.

Nominated For Life Membership In Legion Group

The Executive and Selection Committee of the Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans in Canada, United States Unit (ANAVICUS) has recommended Lonnie F. Marsh Jr. of Proctor Kildow Post #71, Oakland, for an Honorary Life Membership in the organization for his long service to Veterans Affairs.

Marsh, in his 48th year in the American Legion, has served as post commander for Victory Post #155, Westernport, and Proctor Kildow Post #71, Oakland. He has held the office of Mt. District commander and adjutant, and on the department level he served through the chairs and was elected department commander in 1968. Since then, he has served on various committees and commissions. He is currently chairman of the Military and Foreign Affairs Committee in Maryland, and the national commander's representative on the Military Affairs Committee of the American Legion National Organization.

He is a member of the National Convention Commission for Maryland and was active in that group when the National Convention was held in Baltimore in 1989.

Marsh entered service in October of 1941, serving in Panama, where he trained in jungle warfare with Company K, 158th Infantry Bushmasters, for one year. He then served through the Southwest Pacific and completed his tour in the Philippines in 1945.

The Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans in Canada was originally formed in 1840 by veterans of the Napoleonic Campaigns; that is, Wellington's and Nelson's veterans. In 1840, a special charter was obtained from Queen Victoria, was issued to headquarters, then established in the city of Montreal.

The association, prior to 1917, acted under royal charter from Queen Victoria, and since that time has acted under the Act of Incorporation in Canada. In 1953, the Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans in Canada, through the then Dominion President Alfred J. Wickens, enthusiastically endorsed a proposal to organize a United States chapter. The primary purpose was to foster and perpetuate in a social way the good fellowship between veterans' groups of the United States and Canada.

ANAVICUS has several established scholarship programs and is responsible for the Harry Colmery Memorial located in The American Legion National Headquar-

THEY'RE BACK! The orchestra for the Symphony at Deep Creek, now performing nightly at Garrett Community College, practiced this week in the basement of Oakland's St. Mark's Lutheran Church, filling the rooms with the melodies of Tchaikovsky, Bizet, Haydn, Bach, and more. Erick Friedman, who is pictured above in his role as musical director/conductor of the orchestra, will perform tonight as solo violinist after a five-year leave of the performing stage. Also featured tonight is the premiere of a composition written by Frostburg's Jon W. Bauman, entitled "Variations on a Fiddler's Tune." Tomorrow night will feature the performance of Soviet cellist Nina Kotov, winner of the $1,000 Parisot Prize, followed by a dessert buffet at the McHenry House. Saturday night's performance will be the symphony's grand finale, featuring popular works of famous composers. Tickets are still available for the performances, but persons are urged to purchase them soon, or to make reservations to pick up their tickets at the GCC box office. Reservations may be made by contacting the box office at 387-6666, or by calling Englander's Pharmacy in Oakland. Tickets are available at Beachy's Pharmacy, Grantsville, and Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. The Symphony at Deep Creek is the final offering of this season's Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. See story on Ms. Kotov elsewhere in today's issue.

Two Treated, Released After Thursday Mishap

Two persons were treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, following a single-vehicle mishap last Thursday, August 15.

Linda DeWitt, 44, and Mary DeWitt, 18, both of Mtn. Lake Park, were treated when the 1990 Subaru Linda DeWitt was operating on Md. Route 560 left the roadway and came to rest in a corn field. DeWitt told police she swerved to miss an object in the road.

Tpr. S.H. Anderson of the Maryland State Police, McHenry Barrack, investigated the 10:15 a.m. mishap. Both women were transported to the local hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

DWI ARRESTS

In other state police news, four persons were apprehended and charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs.

Raymond Piper Jr., 26, no address given by police, was charged with DWI last Thursday by Tpr. Wininger.

John Bartles Jr., 56, no address given, was charged Sunday with DWI by Tfc. James Hare.

Sgt. Dave Danner arrested Jenny Wilhelm, 30, no address given, on Sunday and charged her with DWI.

William Forewood, 39, no address given, was charged with DWI on Monday by Tfc. Hare.

Sanitary District Presents Update On Water/Sewer System Projects

Garrett County Sanitary District Administrator Wendell R. Beitzel this week presented an update regarding various water and sewer systems operated by the Sanitary District to the Sanitary Commission, whose members then discussed the status of the various projects. The major items of interest discussed are summarized below.

Deep Creek Lake Storage Facility

Beitzel presented the final cost summary for the newly constructed 900,000 gallon sewage storage tank along Glendale Road. The tank will be used to store sewage in order to reduce the peak flow loading on holidays, weekends and during the summer months when the system experiences its highest usage, said Beitzel.

The project was completed under cost, he said, and the district was able to purchase specialized maintenance equipment with the excess grant funds, which totalled $1,241,800. The excess funds were utilized to purchase a boom truck for use in removing pumps and heavy equipment on the system.

Broadford Sewer Area

Beitzel reported to the commission that the sewer line in the Broadford area is being relocated. The sewer line serving the Broadford area schools is being relocated from Broadford Park because of the deterioration of the pump station and pressure sewer line in the park.

According to Beitzel, leaks and pump failure in the park pose a health threat to the Oakland drinking water supply. A contract has been awarded to Underwood Landscaping to install the pressure sewer line along Broadford Road and work is now underway on that project. The district will purchase and install the pump station and appurtenant facilities. Work is expected to be completed before school resumes in September.

Crellin Water System

The Crellin spring rehabilitation project is also underway, and includes the replacement of the old transmission line from the spring to the town, installation of a control building with new pumps and a chlorinator, and reconstruction of the springs. The contract was awarded to the low bidder on the project, Robert D. Beitzel Excavating. Funding

Lake Property Owners To Meet This Saturday

The Property Owners' Association of Deep Creek Lake will hold its second and final general membership meeting of the summer at 10 a.m. on Saturday, August 24, in Room 307, at Garrett Community College. Refreshments will be available at 9:30 a.m.

According to Jan Finkel, association president, the agenda will focus on the recent decision of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission on the buydown -- the pending suit of the Sky Valley Association against the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, the association's position on the upcoming construction of the Glendale Bridge, and the nomination and election of members to the board of directors.

"As always, there will be ample time for members to express their concerns and offer suggestions," Finkel stated. "A central goal of my tenure as president is to bring about broader participation from our membership than we've had in the past. The opportunity has always been there, but people haven't made as much use of it as we would like. We want to correct that."

Keedysville Man Found Guilty On Numerous Charges

A Keedysville man was found guilty by Judge Jack R. Turney in Garrett County District Court last week on a wide array of charges stemming from several incidents late last year.

Robert Campanelli, 20, had been arrested by the Maryland State Police and the Department of Natural Resources Police. He was found guilty of felony theft, assault, and malicious destruction of property on charges brought by the Maryland State Police. For each count he was sentenced to three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections (all but one year was suspended), fined $25, and placed on three years of supervised probation. The sentences will run concurrently. He was also given credit for time already served in jail.

Campanelli was also found guilty of having a loaded gun in a motor vehicle, shooting from and across the highway, and killing a deer in a closed hunting season stemming from charges brought by the DNR police. Those charges brought fines of $25 on each count.

In a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office, three counts of casting a ray of light with a firearm in possession, two counts of killing and possessing a deer in closed season, two counts of possessing a loaded gun in a motor vehicle, one count of shooting from and across the highway, one count of concealing a deadly weapon, and one count of reckless endangerment were not prosecuted.

Campanelli had been arrested by the Maryland State Police, McHenry Detachment, when they received a call from the Cumberland Barrack stating that Campanelli had stolen a 1988 Toyota pickup from Adam Ingram and was enroute to Friendsville from the White Rock area.

Following a lengthy chase and two apprehensions which resulted in a police officer being assaulted and a

WRA Rep Urges County, Towns To Adopt State Flood Plain Plan

Garrett County Commissioner Elwood L. Groves this week met with a representative from the Maryland Water Resources Administration (WRA), who urged the board of commissioners to adopt the newly revised state ordinance for flood plain management -- which includes more stringent regulations for development in designated flood plain areas than the plan currently used by the federal government and the county.

John Joyce also informed Groves that he was meeting with the appropriate towns this week to discuss their possible adoption of the state ordinance, because, he said, "We need uniformity between the towns and the county." That uniformity, he said, would make the ordinance "easier to read and to implement, and more clearly define the authority."

"If everyone in the state is under the same language, it will make it easier to help them with it," he added.

Joyce also noted that he is currently working with other counties in the state, and that Allegany and Cecil Counties have accepted the state ordinance.

He did say, however, that he realized Garrett County may not want to adopt the state ordinance in its entirety and asked if the county would be willing to adopt the ordinance if it included provisions to better suit the county's needs.

Commissioner Groves responded by stating, "There are things in the state proposal that are in excess of the federal regulations, and we only want to adopt that which is required of us by them. If the state's format can be adopted in such a way as to delete those excesses, then I see no reason not to adopt the state ordinance."

Accompanying Joyce was Jim Torrington, permits and inspections coordinator for the Garrett County Planning Commission, who explained that the flood plain management plan is implemented for the purpose of minimizing flood plain damage. However, he said, the county's permit and inspection process has dealt largely with culverts, bridges and road replacements, and not as much with structures, since there is no county-wide zoning.

Torrington stated that the state ordinance incorporates a definition of recreational vehicles not included in the county ordinance. The state is also advocating a 100-foot buffer on all streams in the 100-year flood plain where no development could take place and a 50-foot buffer on all other streams not included in the flood plain.

Torrington also noted that some of the changes recommended by the state have already been implemented in the county on a policy basis.

The county and the towns have been asked to render a dicision within two months to implement either the county ordinance with amendments or the state ordinance.

Plans are now underway for Garrett County's 24th Annual Autumn Glory Festival, which will be held October 10-13, in downtown Oakland and the surrounding areas.

The Honorary Golden Ambassador program began in 1985 as an opportunity for recognition of local persons who have made major contributions to the Autumn Glory Festival and/or recreation and tourism in Garrett County. Past Honorary Ambassadors have been: Tom Butscher - 1985; R.T. Thayer - 1986; Reverend I. Lynn Beckman - 1987; I.R. Rudy Jr. - 1988; Helmuth M. Heise - 1989; and Dr. Alta E. Schrock - 1990.

Ballots for nomination of persons as the 1991 Honorary Golden Ambassador will be published in local media sources for the next two weeks, and as part of the selection criteria, the nominee must be a resident of Garrett County and have contributed to tourism/recreational development in the county. The 1991 Honorary Golden Ambassador will be announced at the Autumn Glory Festival Golden Ambassadors Reception on Wednesday, October 9, at the McHenry House at Wisp, which is the kickoff event of the four-day festival weekend.

"I THINK THAT I SHALL NEVER SEE, a piece of playground equipment like a tree," (or something like that). These Finzel area youngsters were among those who participated in the SCCP (School Community Centers Program) at Eastern Garrett Park and Rt. 40 School this summer, which involved dozens of special activities, educational presentations, and recreation. With less than two weeks remaining before school starts, these boys are taking full advantage of the "free" time they have left by using their imaginations to turn this tree into a space ship, Tarzan's tree house, or perhaps, a lookout tower. Thomas Named Certified Plant Engineer At FSU

James E. Thomas, assistant director of facilities at Frostburg State University, has achieved the status of certified plant engineer, according to Conrad Best, FSU's director of facilities.

According to Leon R. Martin, Certification Board chair, the CPE designation is bestowed by the American Institute of Plant Engineers (AIPE), which requires candidates prove they have a specific combination of education and plant engineering experience, and a demonstrated standard of competence. The AIPE program recognizes Plant Engineering as a specific discipline within the engineering field.

The CPE designation indicates an expertise in a large body of knowledge, including electrical and mechanical systems, civil and structural components, maintenance, economics, administration and supervision, and environmental management.

Thomas, his wife, Mary Pat, and two sons reside in McHenry.

DNR Arrests Pa. Man, Investigates Skiing Accident

Officer Walter May of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) arrested a Pittsburgh, Pa., man on Saturday at 10:30 p.m. on the charge of illegal transport of a handgun.

Ronald Mountain, 43, was pulled over by May for failing to keep right of center. When Mountain opened his glove compartment to retrieve the automobile registration, May spotted a semi-automatic revolver inside. May then effected the arrest.

Mountain was released after posting a $300 bond, according to the report.

In a separate incident, the DNR police investigated a water skiing accident that occurred on Friday morning on Deep Creek Lake.

Sundee M. Perkins, 23, was water skiing barefoot when she apparently became "stiff-legged," according to Officer May, and fell face-first into the water, sustaining a neck injury. She felt back pain immediately and was taken ashore by her companions.

The Southern Rescue Squad was called to the scene, and transported Ms. Perkins to a landing site. She was then flown to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Medevac helicopter.

A hospital spokesperson stated that she was treated and released on the same day.

Sheriff's Office Notes Arrests; Probes Thefts

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office arrested four persons this week on various charges, and also began investigations on several reported breaking, entering and thefts.

Mark D. Bridges, 32, Cumberland, was arrested on the strength of a warrant on charges of impersonating a police officer, battery, and fourth degree sex offense. Bridges reportedly assaulted a 16-year-old female at a bakery near McHenry on August 8. He grabbed her arms and threatened her, and also told her that he was an Allegany County police officer.

The defendant continued to harass the teenager, forcing her outside to look at his car, and grabbing her on the thigh. The victim later reported the incident to the Sheriff's Office and was able to identify the defendant's photograph among other pictures. The Sheriff's Office then effected the arrest.

In other Sheriff's Office news, Dorsey B. Rose Jr., 42, Oakland, was arrested on the strength of five bench warrants. The bench warrants were issued after Rose failed to pay deferred payments in five district court cases, according to the report.

Stephen M. Duckworth, 39, Swanton, was charged on August 4 for driving an uninsured, unregistered vehicle. Dep. C. Feller made the arrest on Oak Street after he saw that the defendant's license plates had expired.

An arrest warrant was issued for Lisa M. Lindstrom, 20, Berlin, Pa. A criminal summons was first issued for the defendant, but it had expired. She is charged with writing a bad check. The defendant turned herself into authorities on Monday.

Thefts Probed

Several incidents of breaking, entering, and theft were reported to the Sheriff's Office this week. Investigations into the reports are in progress, according to the police log.

Sheridan A. Kight, Mtn. Lake Park, reported the theft of a video-cassette recorder. Kight told police that the VCR was stolen from his residence sometime between August 8-12. The worth of the recorder has been set at $419.

Several personal items were stolen from a vacation home owned by Wendell B. Nix, Springfield, Va. A microwave, radio, coffee maker, and flashlight, all worth approximately $320, were among the items removed from the home on Pergin Farm Road. The theft reportedly occurred sometime between July 7 and August 17.

David W. Cosner, Oakland, called the Sheriff's Office and the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department on August 16 when he and his family returned home to find that someone had apparently set fire to their residence. An electric skillet, turned on high, was found turned upside down on a carpeted floor, and newspapers were discovered stuffed between the walls and smoldering.

The Cosners were able to extinguish the fire before the fire department arrived. A stereo speaker and a ceramic ornament were apparently stolen from the residence.

Damage to the house was estimated at $200, and the items' value was listed at $40. The house is rented by the Cosners, and owned by Ray Zeender, Baltimore.

Kimberly M. Sweitzer, Oakland, reported to police that someone removed her rear side window from her 1985 Renault. She had parked the vehicle at the Plaza Deli in McHenry on Sunday, and sometime between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m., the glass was stolen.

The loss has been estimated at $125.

Rev. Peg Custer Fulfills Ministry At St. John's

The Rev. Peg Custer will celebrate Eucharist and bid farewell to the parishioners of the St. John's Episcopal Church as she finishes her interim ministry there. Rev. Custer will use a special litany of farewell and her sermon theme will be "Is it Stone Soup Yet?"

The Reverend, is assuming the ministry at the Garrett County Episcopal Missions (GCEM), was asked by the Bishop to lead the parish forward into a renewed church with a deeper understanding of what it means to be an Episcopalian in the 1990's; to raise up strong lay leadership; to work with and on the behalf of the Diocese, leading the parish to an understanding that the Diocese and parish are a partnership in Christ.

She also served as consultant to the search committee and helped prepare them for developing a profile and to conduct interviews of candidates.

Among Rev. Custer's pastoral duties was visiting the ill, shut-ins, or those who had disassociated from the parish. She served as one of the volunteer chaplains at the local hospital, her own volunteer contribution to the community. She has participating in the Mt. Top Ministerial Association, preaching at the Lenten services and recently at the Vesper service at the Garrett County Fair.

Rev. Custer will return to her home in Derwood, near Gaithersburg, and will await another call to interim ministry. She is canonically a member of the Washington, D.C., Diocese and expects to return to service there.

A new vicar has not been called at GCEM, so local priests will be conducting Sunday services until such time as one is called. The parish is directly under the supervision of the Bishop of Maryland, who is the rector of the parish. For day to day operations, the ministry is under the guidance of the advisory board and Warden Dave Taylor. All financial matters will be handled by Art Lake, treasurer. Any matters pertaining to the parish should be referred to Taylor. An answering machine will be connected to the number 334-1197 for any person in need of communication.

Alden Shell Winner To Be Named Saturday

The name of the winner of the Alden Shell, the recreational rowing shell being raffled to benefit Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, will be announced Saturday evening, August 24, during the final performance of Symphony at Deep Creek.

Visitors to the area and local residents are invited by GLAF officials to purchase raffle tickets during the final days of the sale. The chances are available at Schoolhouse Earth, at Festival performances, or by contacting Ferne Belmonte, GLAF benefit chairman, at 387-6371, or Ann Englander, raffle chairman, at 334-2515.

Raffle tickets cost $2.00 for one chance or $5.00 for three chances.

Donated by local businessman "Ned" Holloway, the Alden is valued at over $2,000. Designed by the late Arthur Martin in 1971, the Alden combines the best features of the sleek but fragile racing shell and the beamy, sturdy rowboat. With its strong single hull and stable, flat bottom, the shell provides both stability and speed. The Alden is unsinkable with sealed flotation fore and aft, weighs only 40 pounds, and is thus lightweight enough for a man, woman or 12-year-old to carry easily.

Considered the world's most popular recreational shell, Alden owners and rowers range from preschoolers to octogenarians. Roughly a quarter of the owners are physicians who recognize the aerobic value of rowing. Sliding seat rowing involves the entire body with a gentle rhythmic motion quite unlike the constant pounding the body takes from running or other high impact aerobics. Two of the first 10 shells Holloway brought to the area were ordered by local physicians who use them year round for total body exercise.

Prospective raffle ticket buyers who are interested in learning more about the Alden are encouraged to contact Holloway at 387-5844 or 387-6464. A video, demonstrations, and brochures are available.

"Ned's wonderful gift to GLAF will make it possible for us to offer finer theatre on the local level," Mrs. Belmonte said. "We know the Alden is the one boat that can provide healthy, beneficial exercise and fun, too."

Endometriosis: New Medicines Approved

Endometriosis is a painful and frustrating condition which affects millions of women, especially women between ages 30 and 40. Endometriosis results when endometrial tissue (normally found inside the uterus) attaches itself to the ovaries, fallopian tubes, bladder, or other areas in the abdomen outside the uterus. Sometimes blood-filled pockets or cysts (called "chocolate cysts") form on the affected organs.

Until recently, the prescription medicines most often used in the treatment of endometriosis were the oral contraceptives (birth control pills) and danazol. These medicines have proven benefits in halting the condition, reducing pain, and shrinking endometrial tissue. In 1990, two promising new medicines, nafarelin acetate and leuprolide acetate, were approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for the treatment of endometriosis. According to a report in Pharmacy Times, these two medicines are referred to as GnRH (gonadotropin-releasing hormone) agonists. These newer medicines work by reducing body estrogen levels.

If medicines are not effective, surgery may be required to remove endometrial tissue. Sometimes it is necessary to have the ovaries and the uterus removed.

Young Soviet Woman Wins $1,000 In Aldo Parisot Cello Competition

Nina Kotov, a 22-year Russian woman, placed first in Sunday's $1,000 Parisot Cello Competition, held in the Garrett Community College auditorium. Ms. Kotov was among five competitors vying for the top prize in the contest, sponsored by Aldo Parisot, master cellist, and the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. She will perform with the Symphony at Deep Creek on Friday night, presenting the Haydn C Major Concerto as Parisot directs. Alexis Pia Gerlach, New York City, captured the second prize of $500.

Ms. Kotov arrived in McHenry at 6 a.m. Sunday, after having traveled by car all night from Indianapolis, Indiana, where she is enrolled in Butler University's Jordan College of Fine Arts. Not able to get into her hotel room before 11 a.m., the cellist managed to sleep in a companion's car for a few hours, then got one more hour in her room, for a total of four hours. She then arrived at the college, practiced for a short while, and began the competition. When asked how she felt about the contest and victory, Ms. Kotov laughingly said, "Tired!" She then expressed her happiness at the achievement and commended the other players.

The cellist realized on the day following the competition that at the very time of the contest, the coup to overthrow Mikhail Gorbachev began. Ms. Kotov was distressed by the news.

"I did not expect something quite like this to happen," she said Tuesday evening. "It's a terrible, terrible thing." She explained that several family members currently live in Moscow.

"It is difficult to live there now," she said. "There is little food, and people stand in long queues (lines) to buy things. When I was last there in March, I could only purchase bread." She then commented that the recent coup was not the answer to the problems in the Soviet Union.

Born in Moscow in 1969, the musician began cello studies at the age of 7. She was a soloist with the Uljanovsk Symphony (USSR) in 1982, and with the Perm Symphony (USSR) in 1983. She made several radio recordings with her father, a successful double bass player, and was the first prize winner in the 1985 "Concertino Praga." She was a soloist with the Prague Symphony in 1986 and entered the Moscow Conservatory in '87.

The cellist has spent time in Germany, participating in a Valentin Feigin master class and performing solo recitals. She received her bachelor's diploma from the Hochsule School in Cologne in 1990.

Ms. Kotov waited eight months in Russia to receive her student visa so that she could come to the United States. She has been in Indianapolis for approximately four months, and said she is very happy here and has many friends at Butler University. She will transfer to Yale University in January to study under Aldo Parisot.

Alexis Pia Gerlach, second place winner, is a native of New York City. She, too, began cello studies at the age of 7, a student of the Manhattan School of Music. She graduated this May from Yale University, having studied with Aldo Parisot.

Ms. Gerlach made her orchestral debut at age 10 as a soloist with the Livingston Symphony (New Jersey), and has since appeared with orchestras and in recitals in New York City, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Canada, Brazil, Israel, and Taiwan. In 1986, she was selected to be principal cellist for the New York String Orchestra by Alexander Schneider, music director, for performances at Carnegie Hall and The Kennedy Center. This past June, Ms. Gerlach won the top cello prize in the Irving M. Klein International String Competition in San Francisco, California. In September, she will enter the Juilliard School to continue studies with Parisot.

The Parisot Cello Competition was judged by Erick Friedman, musical director of the Symphony at Deep Creek and a professor of music at Yale University; Dale Stuckenbruck, New York City, concertmaster for the Symphony at Deep Creek; and David Calhoun, New York City, principal cellist for this week's symphony. Local judges included Nancy Learey, George McDowell Jr., Dorothy Leighton, Lillian Reckner, and Jim Harvey.

After the competition, Nancy Learey commented that the five competitors were all excellent cellists, and the decision of the judges was extremely difficult. Parisot surprised the competitors and judges by awarding a third prize of $300 and a fourth prize of $200. He also announced that next year's Parisot Prize will offer a first place award of $3,000.

The other competitors in the contest were Timora Rosler (third prize winner), Adam Satinsky (fourth prize winner), and Laura Kenney. These cellists along with several other musicians then participated in four master classes taught by Aldo Parisot early this week.

Tickets for the remaining concerts are available and persons who wish to obtain them should contact either the GCC box office at 387-6666 or Englander's Pharmacy. Other ticket outlets include Beachy's Pharmacy, Grantsville, and Deep Creek Pharmacy, McHenry.

Audience members will have the opportunity to hear Nina Kotov perform Friday night, and then congratulate her at the "Champion's Circle" dessert buffet, which will be held at the McHenry House following Friday night's performance. More information on the events may be obtained by calling the GCC box office at 387-6666.

Two Sentenced For Breaking And Entering

Two area men were sentenced last week in Garrett County Circuit Court for charges of illegally entering buildings and removing property. Also convicted in court was a Garrett County Jail inmate, charged with reckless endangerment.

Michael W. Marrs, 24, Accident, was sentenced to seven years in the Maryland Department of Corrections for the charge of breaking and stealing. Judge Fred A. Thayer suspended two years, and ordered that the sentence run concurrently with the four-year term. Marrs is currently serving in Virginia.

The charge against Marrs stemmed from a November 2, 1990, incident at which time the defendant reportedly gained entry to a storage building at the G&W Lumber Yard, Accident. He then stole numerous tools worth over $2,000. After an extensive investigation by the Maryland State Police, several of the tools were recovered and Marrs was arrested.

Thayer ordered that the defendant also make restitution to the lumber yard in the amount of $1,220. Marrs is currently serving a four-year term in Virginia, having been convicted of larceny and breaking and entering in Dickinson County, Va.

Defending attorney for Marrs was John R. Toston.

Carl E. Robinette, 24, Keyser, W.Va., pleaded guilty to daylight housebreaking in a July 20 hearing, and was sentenced last Thursday to three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections for the crime. Thayer recommended that any part of the sentence to be served prior to the first parole hearing be served in the Garrett County Jail.

Robinette was charged with the offense after he and two other men illegally entered the home of Harland E. Beckman, located on Beckman's Peninsula Road, on March 7. The three removed a satellite receiver, remote control, descrambler, scanner, and two tackle boxes containing fishing supplies.

The defendant was charged shortly after the theft by Maryland State Police.

Representing Robinette was Linda W. Buckel.

William P. Gank, 18, formerly of Deer Park and currently an inmate in the Garrett County Jail, pleaded guilty to reckless endangerment last Thursday. The plea was accepted by the court, a pre-sentence investigation was ordered, and bail was revoked.

Gank was charged with the offense following an investigation by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office concerning a suspicious fire which occurred on February 5 in the Garrett County Jail.

Gank reportedly stuffed toilet paper into a ventilator duct and set the wad of tissue on fire. He was observed by several other inmates as he did so. The duct carried dense smoke throughout the jail, causing an evacuation of all prisoners from their cells. Some prisoners were relocated to the Allegany County Jail while others were held in the parking garage until the smoke was cleared.

Other charges against Gank which were not prosecuted by the State's Attorney were arson of a jail, attempt to burn a jail, and destruction of property.

John R. Toston represented Gank in the hearing.

The Taste of Freedom...

We have once again been privileged to observe a major historical event this week, as the final death knell for the communistic system of government seems to have sounded. The tolling of that bell, which began with reforms implemented by Soviet Union President Mikhail Gorbachev, became much louder with the destruction of the Berlin Wall, and reached its peak this week when a coup attempt by the remaining hard-line communist officials in the Soviet Union failed miserably almost before it began.

We have also witnessed a courageous and impressive show of unity and opposition by the Soviet people, who literally risked their lives this week by amassing in front of advancing tanks and troops, daring them to move against Russian President Boris Yeltsin. It was reminiscent of the time that the American colonists took a similar stand against British troops who were dispatched to restore order and authority in the New World.

It was inevitable that communism would not survive for an extended period of time, especially after the people being governed by that system were given just a taste of freedom. When Gorbachev provided that taste, there was no turning back. Communism was doomed at that moment. The hard-liners, who kept the people in line for so many years via threats and actual force, obviously did not realize that they were dealing with a radically changed public, an enlightened citizenry who would no longer tolerate the oppression that had been endured by the former, uninformed public.

The problems facing the Soviet people are enormous, particularly with their economy that is now in the painful process of being converted from one that is government controlled to one that functions in a free enterprise system. But they must try to be patient. We have been utilizing the free system for over 200 years and we still haven't worked out all of the bugs.

Despite all of their problems, the majority of the Soviet citizens are on an emotional high right now, they are confident, and they seem to be unified. So now is the time for them to really move forward with reform and realize what great accomplishments await them just around the corner.

We Americans should join in their celebration, as we proceed with them into the 21st century hopefully as friends, and not enemies.

Letters to the Editor

Editors note: The writers of the following letter to the county commissioners requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Commissioners,

The Civic Club of Oakland and The League of Women Voters of Garrett County are proposing an educational Recycling Week for September 8-14.

We would like permission to place the County's two unused recycling bins at designated spots donated for that week by Arrowhead Grocery and Browning's Foodland.

The Republican will help us kick off our campaign with the September 5th issue by using green ink and printing the exact dates the bins will be in place. We plan to have many public service announcements on WXIE/WMSG and WKHJ.

The two organizations have volunteers at hand who will stay with the bins from 9-5 promoting "green ribbon" week and passing out already donated fliers with recycling information pertinent to our County with the permanent locations identified.

As soon as we can determine the availability and the delivery date of the bins, we will have addressed the first "recycling basic" as mentioned in The Republican's August 8th editorial.

Respectfully requested,
Constance E. Margison
League President
Roberta Andersen
Conservation Chair,
Civic Club

To the Editor:

Many of us complain about the government and government workers, sometimes with just cause. However, there are times when we should say "thank you" for a job well done.

This letter is to make the public aware of the fine service and dedication of our County Treasurer, Patty Glover, and her staff. For example, during the month of July they took in $5.2 million without being one penny off. This was accomplished along with all of their other duties, such as answering the telephone -- a constant "ring" in July -- transfers, licenses, etc.

We, of Garrett County, should make a special effort to say, "thank you" to Pat and her staff, comprised of Cheryl Uphold, Barbara Boyce, Michelle Peck, Sharon Everd, Phil Rodeheaver, and Jerry Buckel.

We are proud of you!

To the Editor:

Quite recently I received one of the nicest, three color pieces of campaign literature that I have seen in quite sometime. Why am I writing about it? Well, upon inspection I realized that I had paid for the printing, and the postage of the campaign literature, and I wasn't asked by anyone if I wanted to pay for the piece. The campaign literature that I am referring to is the "schedule" of Rep. Beverly Byron's district tour.

The campaign piece was stuffed full of information, that I as a constituent need to know, such as, how one of Rep. Byron's staff had fought in the war. Then there was the article and picture about Rep. Byron meeting with the hikers who hiked across America. There was also a picture and blurb about Rep. Byron meeting with elementary school students. The last page was another slap on her own back at my expense, talking about how Rep. Byron was working on improving the quality of rural health care.

I think that these are all admirable causes, but I strongly object to her using my money, our money, to get herself re-elected.

I have some knowledge of layout and production, and am very aware of the cost involved in producing such a lavish piece of campaign literature. You and I paid for the writing, typeset, printing, three color ink, and then we also paid for the postage. I find this upsetting when so many of the Sixth Congressional District's citizens are facing so many economic difficulties; among these difficulties are unemployment, health care, day care, quality education, not to mention the lost industry in the area.

I sincerely hope that in the future Rep. Byron will evaluate the priorities of her district before she spends our money so recklessly. I also hope that she will return to her pre-campaign stationary, as it is more cost effective for the citizens of her district.

Children Can Fall Into Buckets And Drown

GARRETT COUNTY MARYLAND HEALTH DEPARTMENT

The mops and buckets that accompany spring and summer cleaning may seem harmless, but they pose hidden dangers for curious toddlers.

In the past five years, more than 100 children have drowned after falling into large buckets of water or other liquids, reports the Consumer Product Safety Commission. In only a brief moment away from a caregiver's watchful eye, an infant, usually eight to 12 months old, can fall into a bucket, resulting in death or permanent brain damage.

Rex Archer, MD, MPH, Health Officer for Garrett County, said that the buckets involved are usually the five-gallon, straight-sided, industrial containers. He states, "typically, someone is using the large bucket containing liquid for mopping or other household chores, such as car-washing. The bucket is left unattended with a small child nearby. The child falls in, head first, and is not able to get out."

These injuries and deaths happen even when the buckets have only a few inches of liquid in them. Dr. Archer advises that caregivers should never leave a small child alone with any large containers of liquid. All buckets should be emptied at once after completing household chores.

For a free brochure and warning stickers for buckets in the home, call 1-800-BUCKET-5.

Gov. Schaefer Speaks Out

CELEBRATING TWO PRECIOUS RESOURCES: THE CHESAPEAKE BAY AND MARYLAND'S VOLUNTEERS

August is one of the state's busiest months as far as family fun is concerned. There are so many activities going on in every area of Maryland. Among them is one that highlights the Chesapeake Bay, and another that celebrates the work of Maryland's volunteers. I thought you would like to know a little more about them.

Like thousands of other Marylanders, I have visited the Bay many times this summer -- to fish, to sail, and simply, to enjoy. We are all incredibly lucky to have the Chesapeake Bay as part of our state's heritage. All that's required is that we take care of it.

I'm very encouraged by the progress we're making in returning the Bay to its natural health. Scientists and state officials have been actively collecting data on water quality, measuring populations of wildlife species, and focusing on new steps for controlling future growth and development.

To my way of thinking, though, the most significant progress we have made in recent years is getting more people to understand and help solve the bay's problems. Marylanders have not only realized how vital the bay is to our state and our nation, they are taking personal responsibility for its care and welfare.

That's why this year's third annual "Party on the Bay" is so important. It gives us a chance to reaffirm our commitment to the Chesapeake. From August 8-31 Marylanders are celebrating life on the Chesapeake Bay with more than 30 festivals and activities all over the state.

This party spotlights Bay seafood, Bay recreation, Bay history, and, most importantly, Bay education. That's the key. This party has a purpose. While we are having fun we're going to learn about the Bay and, in many cases, work together to clean up and protect the Bay.

Here's a sample of some of the party events:

August 8-31, Sotterley Plantation Tour - Tour a 300-year-old working plantation, gardens, and orchards with a panoramic view of the Patuxent River.

August 8-31, Chesapeake Bay Nature Cruises - Learn about folklore and history of the Bay on a six or three-hour cruise from St. Michaels.

August 22-24, Bass Master's Classic - Fishing tournaments among the top 41 professional and amateur bass fishermen in the country at the Dundee Creek Marina.

August 31-Sept. 1, Warwick Riverfest - A family festival featuring country music, raft races, a flea market, and food at East New Market.

For more information and a complete schedule of the more than 30 events planned during "Party on the Bay," call 1-800-395-7003.

With Labor Day around the corner, I've been thinking about how the Maryland State Fair symbolizes summer's end. Throughout this season, county and local fairs bring our communities back together after the summer school breaks and vacations.

These festivals celebrate Maryland's best. From children proudly showing their 4-H projects to grandmothers baking blue ribbon pies, people reunite to celebrate the best in their communities.

To me, people who volunteer also bring their best - their time, their talent, and their energy - to their schools, hospitals, museums, and parks. But we need more volunteers, and more people would volunteer if only someone would ask.

That's why we're featuring Maryland's first Volunteer Marketplace at the State Fair in Timonium. The Marketplace, a two-day clearinghouse of caring, celebrates people who give their time as well as shows more people how and where they can volunteer. On August 24 and 25, over 100 non-profit organizations can show you how to get involved, no matter what your interest or schedule.

In addition to the many displays, there will be exciting demonstrations on emergency rescue and fire equipment, a "Clean Bay" obstacle course for children, thoroughbred racing, and a giant invitation card of helping hands that everyone can sign in support of volunteerism.

The celebration concludes Sunday with a free concert featuring The Drifters, The Platters, and the Shirelles. Join me at the Grandstand for this special evening beginning at 7:30 p.m.

As you look ahead to a busy autumn, take time to visit the State Fair, and find out what you can do to make Maryland the very best state in our nation.

For more information on volunteer opportunities in your community and a free copy of the "Volunteer for Maryland" guide, call my Office on Volunteerism at (301) 225-4496. They will be happy to help you bring your best to your community.

If you have thoughts you would like to share with me, write me: Governor William Donald Schaefer, State House, Annapolis, MD 21401.

The Mind Wanders

Pattern For Living
by Pam Ashby

How do you handle a bad situation? Do you shout and pout and make your misery known so everyone within hearing distance may be miserable, too? Do you suffer in silent martyrdom thinking you probably deserve what has befallen you? Do you pull yourself up by your boot straps and turn your negatives into positives with a highly motivated formula for living?

In the past, I tended to be a shouter/pouter or a martyr, but more and more, I see people succeeding who get knocked down and stomped on only to emerge stronger in character. And these positive thinkers seem to have a better handle on life. This line of thinking has prompted me to watch others' reactions to adversity (I'm becoming more of a people watcher as I stare down the barrel of age fortysomething), and what I've seen isn't always a pretty sight. Ouch! Too often I'm seeing my own reactions.

Just the other day I witnessed a married couple's power struggle over who should pay the bills. They argued and argued to no avail. They were equally busy and there seemed to be no easy solution. I wanted so badly to take one of them aside and say, "Look, use this situation to your advantage. Tell your mate you'll gladly pay the bills. Then the next time an argument ensues about who should do a dreaded household chore, simply say, 'You'll have to do that honey, I'm just too busy paying the bills.' See, make it work for you."

Then there's this bright young woman who's extremely impatient with everyone and everything. I often ignore her little fits, but sometimes I could scream when she talks about how unreasonable other people are. I swear I'm on the verge of placing a hidden tape recorder near her and when she starts criticizing someone else for their impatience I could whip out this tape recorder, and smile smugly as I give her a taste of her own medicine. Hey, maybe this tactic could work on my kids. (Blush!) Now I'm afraid I'm delving into revenge. And where does revenge get you?

My people watching has shown me something important, however. After 39+ years, I'm starting to realize how insignificant all this petty stuff is. It's only in math and grammar that two negatives make a positive. Reacting negatively to negative people accomplishes one thing -- more animosity.

"Never answer an angry word with another angry word, for it's the second that makes the argument," the old adage wisely states. Now those are words by which to live. I certainly don't mean to be preachy, but when one of life's lessons sneaks up on me and impresses the hell (literally) out of me, I just have to share that insight with everyone. Boy, I do go on sometimes, don't I?

P.S. By the way, one positive thing you can do is take your family to some or all of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival concerts this weekend. It is music at its best. I was fortunate enough to catch Lenora Eve, Dan McComas, and Kathryn Sincell, accompanied by Heawon Kim Stuckenbruck, with their wonderful opera vignettes last night, and believe me, it was a uniquely positive experience that I won't soon forget. Bravo! I'm looking forward to hearing Eric Friedman on the violin and all the other terrific musicians tonight. Do yourself a favor and show up.

To the Editor:

If the property owners at Deep Creek Lake tolerate this latest move by Sewer and Water Czar Wendell Beitzel to put the county's cost of water and sewer rates on the lake property owners, then they deserve what they receive!

Why did the authority seek the advice of a utility rate consultant from Wisconsin? Don't they want the Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia specialists to find out the true financial situation of the commission?

No two communities in our bordering counties in Pennsylvania have the same water or sewer rates, and that's as it should be. After all, we don't live in a communist state! Mr. Beitzel made an agreement with the property owners association at Deep Creek, and it is his obligation to fulfill that promise. To date, the only people who have profited from the sewer installation are the businesses and residential properties that were built too close to the lake for an effective septic system operation.

The quality of our lake water is no better or worse than it was before the installation of the sewer system.

We are presently experiencing a great deal of algae growth on the lake bottom, as any fisherman will attest to; perhaps it's time for another deep treatment of the lake, as was done some 30 plus years ago.

Why do the heads of the county insist on the lake property owners paying the lion's share of all of the county's expenses? We all love Garrett County or we wouldn't be here, so show a little mercy for your out-of-state neighbors. Please realize that most of us invested our savings in your county when the local residents showed little, if any, interest in Deep Creek many years ago.

We are grossly over-taxed, considering the services provided to the lake, so please do not expect us to pay for the county's water and sewer problems by lumping the overall costs into one basket; after all we don't even have public water at the lake, nor do we want it.

Very truly yours,
John S. Fleming
Connellsville, Pa.

P.S. Your commission is the only one I know of that handles both sewer and water rates! Really a conflict of interest!

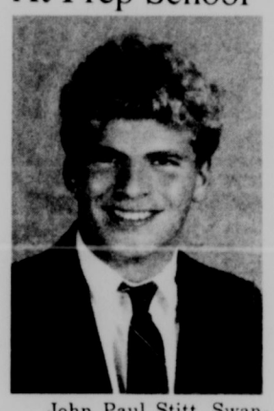
REAL CROWD PLEASERS — The Demolition Derbies (this year there were two) were real crowd pleasers at the Garrett County Fair. Sponsored by the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department, the derbies were held Monday night and again Friday night. Monday night's Feature Winner was Ron Rounds, and Friday night's feature winner was Brent Fratz. Complete placings can be found in today's issue of "The Republican."

MODIFIED TRACTOR POWER — Mike Fitzwater, pictured above, has been a constant competitor over the years in the Modified Tractor Pull at the Garrett County Fair. This year, Mike "hung in there" and placed as high as third in two of his classes, the 5,500 Lb. Class, and the 8,500 Lb. Class. Mike, however, couldn't overtake his brother Doug, who again this year made some powerful pulls. Doug Fitzwater placed first in the 5,500 Lb. Class, the 6,500 Lb. Class, the 7,500 Lb. Class, and the 8,500 Lb. Class. Other first place winners were: Ruger Cullers, 5,000 Lb. Class; Ted Evans, 6,000 Lb. Class; Melvin Schrock, 11,000 Lb. Class; and Danny Ganoe, 15,000 Lb. Class; 17,000 Lb. Class, and the 19,000 Lb. Class. Complete placings will appear in next week's issue of "The Republican."



Adorable Adoptables

from the Garrett County Animal Shelter

A KNOWING LOOK is discernable in this young cat's eyes, a four-month-old female domestic short hair tabby, who is hoping to be adopted by someone anxious to take in an irresistible bundle of fur. Last week's "adorable adoptable" was adopted, according to Cheryl Rexrode of the Garrett County Animal Shelter (who was incorrectly identified last week as Cheryl Fearer.) This week's pet may be adopted by calling the shelter at 334-3553.

Local Student Named Leader At Prep School

John Paul Stitt, Swanton, has been selected by his peers at Christchurch School to serve as student representative on the Honor Council and to serve as a school proctor.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Stitt, Deep Creek Lake, Stitt is a rising senior at Christchurch. He is the grandson of Mrs. J. P. Trach and Mrs. Edwin Stitt, both of Fairmont, W.Va.

Seven students and six faculty members serve on the Honor Council. They enforce the school's honor code and review student misconduct charges which may involve lying, cheating, or stealing.

Upon reviewing the cases, the Honor Council makes its recommendations regarding punishment and restitution to the headmaster. Any honor code violation may result in expulsion.

School proctors assist the dorm masters, faculty, and administration in the smooth operation of the school.

An Episcopal boarding school located in Middlesex County, Va., Christchurch offers a college-preparatory program for students in grades 8-12 and a post-graduate year. Popular programs in addition to the core academic curriculum include learning skills, future studies, marine science, and sailing.

Oakland Street Signs Of Old To Be Replaced

A street and an alley in Oakland will soon be identified with new street signs displaying their original names. This action has been agreed to by the town council in response to a request made by 21 residents with an interest in the preservation of a portion of town history.

The street is located at the intersection of Center Street and Bradley Lane and proceeds west and then south to Liberty Street, where it dead-ends. Although it was never recognized with a street sign before, the short road was popularly referred to by many in the 1930's as "Roosevelt Boulevard." The name was coined because the street was graded, paved, and partially stonewalled as a Works Progress Administration (WPA) project in the mid-1930's. It will now be marked with a "Roosevelt Boulevard" sign.

"Bankers' Lane" will be the title of the alley which extends from Fourth Street to Second Street between Alder and Green Streets. The alley did bear a sign with that name in the '30's and '40's. According to a spokesperson, there are two theories as to the basis for the title. The first theory suggests that, following the closure of the Garrett Bank in the early 1930's, three of its officers who lived on "Quality Hill" did not wish to walk the main streets where anxious depositors tended to stop and question them as to the status of accounts, reopening date, and other uncomfortable topics. As a result, the three walked down "Bankers' Lane" directly and discreetly to the bank (which is the building now called "The Professional Building").

Bank employees were also reluctant to walk the main streets from the bank to the post office (which was then located on Third and Alder Streets), as that necessitated rounding the corner of the open-for-business First National Bank, and so they also chose "Bankers' Lane."

The second theory maintains that since the three aforementioned officers used the alley as a short cut to and from work and to home and back for lunch, it became known as "Bankers' Lane."

Mayor Asa McCain said he did not know the exact time of the sign installations, but that they would occur in the next few months.

Eglon Girl Performs With Nat'l Team

Melissa Frantz, daughter of Neva and Donald Frantz Sr., Eglon, W.Va., performed with the Angel Drill Team, North Chicago, Ill., at the Maple Spring Church parking lot, Eglon, on Tuesday, August 6. Melissa was a member of the team for three years while her family was stationed at Glenview Naval Air Station in Illinois. She was still a member when the team won the National Championship in August 1990 at St. Louis, Missouri.

The Angels are comprised of 28 girls and one boy from the ages of 12 to 17. They perform military routines with nine pound rifles. The team alternates each year from national or international competition to going on tour. This year the team was on tour and performed in Nashville, Tenn., Atlanta, Ga., Charlotte, N.C., Eglon, and then headed to New York City.

As part of the drill team's presentation, the military inspection was completed by Donald Frantz Sr., Jim Harvey, and instructor Nathaniel "Chief" Hamilton.

In addition to performing as a part of the group, Melissa fulfilled a promise to her former instructors "Chief" and Judy Hamilton by presenting to them a special rifle routine she perfected for this occasion. She did the routine to music and used some of her own moves as well as those she learned while a member of both the Bunny and Angel Drill Teams.

Also performing was the local Aurora Twirlettes, under the direction of Cindy Conrad. This group has been active for approximately 10 years with 17 members at present. The group performed a twirling, marching routine to music and also a solo presentation by Christina Forman.

After the performances, a covered dish dinner was shared. The rest of the evening was spent at a campfire with chants, cheers, songs, stunts led by Jim Harvey and Linda Lewis, and a haunted woods excursion. The group and some local girls and boys from the Lightening Bolts softball team and Maple Spring Church youth along with the Frantz, Harsh, and Hartsell families spent the night at the Maple Spring Church. The group left early Wednesday morning.

Bulk Purchases Urged For Those Who Can, Freeze

For those thinking of canning and freezing the summer bounty of Maryland, the word from the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) is: "Do It Now."

A survey of farmers supplying the state's 43 farmers' markets, Maryland Cooperative Extension Service agents throughout the state, and individual farmers indicates produce supplies, particularly sweet corn, are becoming tight.

The reasons for this are drought and high temperatures that hit most areas of the state in July which severely affected pollination in sweet corn planted for August and September pickings.

In some areas, supplies of watermelons and cantaloupes are also short for this time of year. Other crops such as summer squash, beets and tomatoes have also been drought- and heat-pinched as well.

So, for those who haven't put up their planned cannings and freezings of sweet corn and tomatoes, now is the time to make bulk purchases at a favorite roadside stand or at a farmers' market.

Tree fruits - peaches, nectarines and early varieties of apples - are doing well across the state. They are coming to market earlier than usual because of the hot, dry weather. Quality is excellent, with peaches being especially extra sweet.

Found Guilty

police vehicle being destroyed, Campanelli was finally caught and arrested in the October 22, 1990 incident. The DNR charges stemmed from October 21 and 22 and November 22, 1990, incidents at Keyser's Ridge.

Along with his sentence, Campanelli was ordered to pay restitution of $671.30 to the state of Maryland.

In other District Court news, a Newburg woman was sentenced after being found guilty of battery in May court proceedings.

Judith M. Oliver, 39, was given a two-year suspended jail term, fined $50, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

She had been arrested on April 8 and charged with battering a female juvenile. A second charge of child abuse against her was not prosecuted in a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for a Portsmouth, Va., man after he was found guilty of possession of marijuana and possession of a handgun.

Timothy J. Vukovich, 33, had been arrested by the Maryland State Police after a routine traffice stop on U.S. Route 48 near Grantsville. A search of his vehicle revealed a small metal and wooden pipe, a plastic bag with a small amount of marijuana, and a .357 Magnum loaded with six rounds of ammunition.

A third charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted because of a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office.

An Oakland man was found guilty of concealing a deadly weapon in court proceedings last week.

Roy L. Friend, 20, was given a six-month suspended jail term, fined $50, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

He had been arrested on May 4 by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office after a deputy responded to an underage drinking party and found Friend to be in possession of a butterfly knife.

A McHenry businessman was found guilty of selling without a Maryland Trader's License by Judge Turney.

John F. Culp, 29, had his guilty verdict changed to probation before judgment and was fined $50 and placed on 90 days of unsupervised probation.

Culp had been charged by the Sheriff's Office after he failed to obtain a trader's license for two of his businesses -- Reel Video, Deep Creek Lake, and Video Connection, Oakland.

A second charge of failure to obtain a trader's license against Culp was not prosecuted in a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office.

MSP Investigating Trailer Break-In

Maryland State Police, McHenry Detachment, is currently investigating a reported breaking and entering and theft of a trailer located on the Dry Run Road.

Charles E. Bowman, Leola, Pa., told police that someone had entered his summer residence by prying open the front door of his trailer and removed a wooden clock and several kitchen items. He noted that large items like his television and stereo were not taken.

The theft allegedly occurred sometime between July 4 and August 3.

In Remembrance of Eric Scott Lewis who passed away
August 23, 1988

Even though we can no longer hug or kiss Eric, who has preceded us into enternity, we can rejoice in knowing that Jesus will hold him for us. Our hope is not for this life only. Christ has risen and has promised, "Because I live, you also will live."
Remember me with smiles and laughter, for that is the way I remember you. If you can only remember me with tears, then don't remember me at all.
Sadly missed by all who knew him.

Vacation At Deep Creek Provides Fun Experience For Target Group

by Sherry Frantz

We've all met them -- those people who tirelessly, effortlessly (it seems) involve themselves in projects that greatly and positively contribute to other peoples' lives. When we view, first-hand, the work they do, we marvel at their generosity and selflessness.

But we are then quickly reminded that those giving persons are also on the receiving end of some rewarding and life-enriching experiences.

Nowhere is the example more shining than in the case of Dr. Don Rabush, Ed.D. and CEO of Target, Inc., who has been offering his summer home at Deep Creek Lake as a vacation spot for some 30 developmentally disabled adults -- about six at a time for five weeks -- along with six counselors, who work and play and learn along with the disabled individuals.

Dr. Rabush jokingly states that his wife's work keeps her especially busy in the summertime, and so he was forced to keep himself busy and entertained throughout the summer months. Out of that need, he said, was borne the idea to provide a summer vacation opportunity for persons who are unable to take a much needed rest completely on their own. Specifically, the vacation week is provided for those persons who are served by Target, Inc., or who are identified through its outreach services.

Target, Inc., is a non-profit agency with quality residential, recreational and vocational services for developmentally disabled individuals -- a broad term to describe persons with some form of retardation, be it mental, emotional or physical. The organization was created nine years ago by Dr. Rabush, coordinator of the graduate program at Western Maryland College in Westminster, and the vacation component of the program has been operating for the past eight years.

The vacation program is mostly staffed by students at Western Maryland College who are working toward a master's degree in special education, with an emphasis on human services.

The summer vacationers are all employed in their respective communities and all pay for their own summer vacations with the money they've earned. This, coupled with the fact that the vacationers are all voluntary participants, serves to create a rich and meaningful experience for all. It is a vacation they all look forward to and one where they are allowed as much freedom as possible.

When Dr. Rabush was asked about the schedule followed by each group during vacation, he responded that "the schedule is loose," adding that when someone requests something not on the schedule (like going into Oakland for some shopping) it is usually granted. "We're here to make sure they do everything they want to do," he said.

The one-to-one nature of the relationship between counselor and client is part of what makes that arrangement workable. It also seems to provide an atmosphere conducive to the making of lasting friendships. It truly appears to be a mutual exchange between individuals who all have something to offer and contribute to the world.

A remark made to Dr. Rabush about how wonderful it is that he's providing such an opportunity for these developmentally disabled individuals elicited the quick and sure response that he was the lucky one.

Each week's "loose schedule" begins on Sunday. The vacationers arrive sometime during the afternoon or early evening and are treated to a home-made turkey dinner, followed by a few rounds of miniature golf. "A lot of socialization happens that first night," stated Rabush.

The week's activities include boating, fishing, swimming, picnicking and many the other activities usually associated with summer fun at Deep Creek Lake. Last week, the group enjoyed themselves at the Garrett County Fair.

In fact, the various groups who have been hosted at Deep Creek Lake by Dr. Rabush have been welcomed into the community by many permanent residents and business owners.

For instance, Dave Butt, co-owner of A&D Dairy Delite, allows each group some extra golfing privileges each week of each year they've been coming to the lake. He was not, however, without some initial skepticism, said Dr. Rabush, who explained that the first time the group showed up for some miniature golf and archery, the group included a man with a motor function disability. Butt was reluctant to allow the man on the field with a bow and arrow in hand, but some gentle coaxing from Rabush convinced him to at least allow the man to come back in the morning when no one else was around. Butt became a believer when the man hit the target on his first try.

Since then, a friendly relationship has ensued between all of Dr. Rabush's groups and the people at A&D Dairy Delite. "I've never seen anything like it," said Butt, adding, "A lot of similar types of organizations have brought groups here, but this organization has its act together. The staff-client ratio is excellent. I think the world of those people and each one has something special about him or her."

Indeed, according to Tom Buttner, director of the vacation program and graduate of the special education program at Western Maryland College, each group -- vacationers and counselor -- interact like a family. "Living and working with these people brings you in touch with a lot of issues you may not normally have faced," he stated, adding, "You learn a lot about yourself through these interactions. You also learn that everyone truly is an individual."

Along with all the fun are problems to be handled on a daily basis. Rabush explained that some persons with retardation are unable to express their emotions in ways generally thought to be acceptable forms of behavior. "Because of that, you sometimes witness an acting out of their feelings." Those kinds of problems are dealt with in the most humane, compassionate ways imaginable (if a casual observation renders an accurate observation).

In fact, the Target vacation program seems to be carried out in such a "humanly professional" way that it likely accounts for the wide acceptance the group has received in the county. Other fans in the county include Mike Iden, local fisherman, who routinely guides the groups on fishing expeditions at the lake. A neighbor, Dave Houston, has been providing the group with a much needed and much appreciated golf cart, used to transport mobility-impaired vacationers.

Another supporter of the group, District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards, introduced a bill during the 1991 Maryland General Assembly that provides grant funds for the construction of a fully accessible seven-bed recreational facility at Deep Creek Lake. District 1 Senator John Hafer submitted a sister bill for the same purpose.

Dr. Rabush announced just two weeks ago that ground has now been broken for the construction of that new "state of the art" facility, which will be located adjacent to the beach at Sky Valley. The new facility, says Rabush will offer more room and privacy to the vacationers, as well as provide more ease in accommodating each vacationer's needs.

The idea of providing vacations for developmentally disabled persons is a simple and elemental one, and without questioning the more complex and sophisticated treatment theories, this uniquely generous act seems to have produced some far-reaching and valuable benefits to every single person who has come into contact with the program and the people involved.

One element that surely contributes to the success of the program is the respect that is so evident among and between the clients and the counselors. The interactions all seem to be direct, natural and candid. As Dr. Rabush stated, "There are no facades here. That's refreshing."

DON'S FAMOUS FLAPJACKS start the day off in a most pleasant way for the developmentally disabled persons enjoying a week of vacation at Deep Creek Lake. Dr. Don Rabush, shown above, hosts five weeks of vacation time for persons unable to manage such an adventure completely by themselves. The vacationers are identified through the organization Target, Inc., created by Dr. Rabush to provide residential, recreational and vocational services to developmentally disabled individuals. After eight years of providing his own summer home as a vacation spot, Dr. Rabush recently announced that ground has been broken for a new and improved facility at the lake. The construction of the facility was made possible, in part, by virtue of sister bills introduced into the 1991 Maryland General Assembly by District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards and District 1 Senator to obtain grant funds for the effort. Shown below are some of the vacationers and counselors as they enjoy the breakfast from Don's kitchen. Clockwise, they are Charles Page and Mike Buzerski, both vacationers; Kelly Taggart, counselor; Tom Buttner, director of the vacation program and senior counselor; Phil Boner, general helper; Jennifer Fine, counselor; Randi Benzel, Mike Bolton and Victor Mazzocco, vacationers; and Mark Titus, counselor.

THE FINE ART OF PUTT-PUTT GOLF is being shown to some of the vacationers in a group hosted by Dr. Don Rabush, CEO of Target, Inc., an organization devoted to serving the needs of developmentally disabled individuals. The organization is headquartered at Western Maryland College in Westminster, and part of the program includes a vacation opportunity at Rabush's summer home at Deep Creek Lake. The construction of a new facility, however, is underway, and will provide easier access and more space for the vacationers and counselors in the future. Shown above are several of the vacationers with the program director and senior counselor Tom Buttner, pictured second from left.

Sanitary District

for the project has been provided from a Housing and Urban Development block grant, a grant from Maryland Department of the Environment and a small loan for the local portion, said Beitzel.

A meeting was held recently in the Crellin community to address the problem of an "acute" water shortage problem there, Beitzel noted, adding that the situation is partly attributable to the drought-like conditions this summer. He stated, however, that the rehabilitation project should take care of any water shortage problems in the future.

Bloomington Water System

The Sanitary District was recently informed that a grant request, in the amount of $145,250, has been approved. The funds will be used to relocate the water intake at Savage River. The local portion of the project, $20,750, is expected to be provided by the U.S. Bureau of Mines. Construction will begin as soon as the documents are officially completed.

According to Beitzel, Maryland Associates has agreed to provide surveying for the project at no cost because of the problems experienced with the intake structure, designed by the firm. The problem with the current location, noted Beitzel, is the poor quality of water located in and under the river bank. Aaron's Run, located downstream from the site of previous mining activity and landfill operations, also poses a potentially harmful impact on water quality there.

Trout Run

The Sanitary Commission executed the service agreement to provide sewage treatment for the town of Mtn. Lake Park for fiscal year 1992, and that agreement has been accepted by the town, according to Beitzel.

Response To MDE's Violation Charges

The Sanitary District has recently responded to charges made by the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) of violations at the Deep Creek Lake, Trout Run and Kitzmiller sewage treatment plants.

The problems at those facilities, said Beitzel, originate from the use of "innovative and alternative (I/A) technology systems -- particularly the ultraviolet disinfection system, design defects in the systems that were constructed from plans approved by MDE, and violations that occurred at Trout Run while improvements were being made to the system."

Beitzel noted that the Sanitary District made application to MDE and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) over a year ago to make improvements at both the Deep Creek Lake and the Kitzmiller sewer plants, and there was no response to the requests.

Beitzel added, "A condition of the grant awarded for the innovative and alternative systems was that MDE and EPA would fund 100% of the replacement cost of correcting I/A components that fail to meet design parameters. The ultraviolet systems at both plants are the cause of the majority of all of MDE's alleged violations."

Local Counselor Emphasizes The Spiritual, Christian Approach

by Craig Speicher

"Everything that happens to us in life has a relationship to eternity."

So says Seth Ramer, of Grantsville, a licensed clinical social worker who has opened the county's first counseling service that overtly stresses Christian values. Ramer opened Christian Counseling Services of Western Maryland, at 130 Penn. Ave., in Cumberland last winter, then in the spring at the Casselman Ventures building on Main St. in Grantsville.

He explains that his professional philosophy surpasses such traditional goals of therapy as improving self-esteem, enhancing social functioning, and managing problems in living. "There is also the component of reconciliation of God and man," he says. Additionally, Christian Counseling stresses the Biblical view of man while embracing spiritual principles, divine hope, and inward transformation.

A native of New Jersey who has spent most of his life in Harrisonburg, Va., Ramer obtained multiple B.A. and B.S. degrees in social work, paramedics and French, before earning his master of social work degree.

His professional experience is similarly broad, extending even to Europe. Twice he has worked as volunteer counselor at a home for mentally and physically handicapped children in Wissembourg, France, along the French-German border, where his fluency in the French language proved helpful. (Apart from this work, he has travelled from America to France nearly a dozen times.)

Ramer came to this area to serve as a psychotherapist for the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Grantsville, where he remained until launching Christian Counseling. He now helps individuals and families deal with such diverse needs as emotional illness, abuse, marital conflicts, school and occupational problems, and child and adolescent issues.

A wisp of a physical presence whose much modesty instantly disarms, Ramer is an intellectual heavyweight. He finished at the top of his master of social work class of 150 students at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, Va., with a perfect 4.0 grade average. The faculty there bestowed upon him the Elaine Rothenburg Leadership Award, given annually to the most academically successful and clinically effective student. Similarly, the highly elitist Phi Kappa Phi national honor society for professionals selected him for membership. Nonetheless, Ramer emphasizes that "counseling is not limited to an intellectual relationship. People need to know they're cared for."

Ramer also recently became the mental health consultant for the Head Start Program in Cumberland. He lives with his wife, Judith, on Doresy Hotel Road.

More information on Christian Counseling Services or appointments is available by calling (301) 895-3117.

You are a little angel who God sent here for whatever reason you left is still unclear.
We will always miss your sweet little face
For there is no other that could take your place.
We were filled with great sorrow from your dear depart, you will always be in our hearts.
We will always love and cherish the memories
we have of you, for that is all we can do.
You are an angel as bright as a shining star and we know you are still shining where you are.

Until now, there was something missing in the design of pellet stoves. Convenience, efficiency and clean burns simply weren't enough to satisfy those who desired the traditional aspects of a wood fire. The Earth Stove has changed all of that with our Natural Fire™ line.
Now you don't have to settle for glowing beds of pellets or "blow torch" flames. We've developed an innovative system using our "flame spread" firepot and realistic high temperature ceramic logs.
We've put the romance back into the fire and created a line of pellet appliances that will burn most biomass fuel...including corn!
It just makes sense...Our entire Natural Fire™ line includes these important features: -Self cleaning "flame spread" stainless firepot -Realistic high-temp ceramic logs -High efficiency heat exchange system with quiet, variable speed circulation blowers -Standard 3-setting control or optional remote thermostat -Multi-fuel option.

August 20, 1991
"I purchased a pellet stove for my office. I wanted the fireplace atmosphere without the dirt, worry and hassle of a woodburner. People who see my stove are amazed at the ease of use and the cleanliness of the pellets.
I do not have to worry about a chimney fire or cresote build-up. When you measure all of the features the pellet stove has over a woodburner, there truly is not a comparison. I will never own another woodburner. Pellet stoves are the way to go.
I bought my pellet stove from a true professional. They depend on making their living from their sales and service. They are not part time reps. They care about you.

BPW Sponsors Workshop At GCM Hospital

As part of their Community Affairs Project, the members of the Garrett County Business & Professional Women's Club contributed $250 toward an educational 1 and 1/2-day workshop to benefit local nurses and other health care providers.

The workshop, entitled "Embracing the Healing Arts," had in attendance local health care providers, nurses, hospice volunteers, clergy, and those who deal with terminally ill patients and their families. It was held June 6 and 7.

The speaker and leader of the workshop was Miriam Custer, who has an M.A. degree in nursing from the University of Maryland, has studied pastoral counseling at Loyola, is a part-time hospice worker at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, and is an adjunct faculty member at Penn State.

BPW MAKES DONATION -- Laurel Grant, director of Nursing Education at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, accepts a check for $250 from Barbara Flinn, BPW Community Affairs chairperson, while BPW President Peggy Jamison looks on. The check was used to sponsor a 1 1/2-day workshop, "Embracing the Healing Arts," to benefit local nurses, hospice volunteers, clergy, health care providers, and those who deal with terminally ill patients.

The local B.P.W. has been a regular contributor to Garrett Memorial since its first year when members assumed the responsibility of planting on the grounds. They continued their contributions to this cause for a number of years, sponsored the Candy Striper program, and more recently purchased two crash carts. Sponsorship of the education seminar is BPW's latest contribution to the county's health care.

Any working woman may join the BPW organization by contacting President, Peggy Jamison, 334-1648, or any BPW member for information.

Nordeck Memorial Scholarship Donated To GCC Students

Gladys "Happy" Nordeck, Oakland, has recently donated a $10,000 memorial scholarship to Garrett Community College in the name of her husband, James H. Nordeck, who died in October of 1990. The state of Maryland will match the donation resulting in a gift totaling $20,000 in endowed scholarship funds.

The scholarship will be awarded annually to selected graduates of Garrett County high schools and early college admissions program students. Students must compose an essay on educational goals, submit a list of extra curricular activities and accomplishments, and have a cumulative grade point average of 3.0.

Mrs. Nordeck stated she is hopeful her gift will "help Garrett County youngsters achieve a higher education."

Paugh Reunion Held Aug. 10

Fifty descendants of the late Columbus Lafayette and Mary Lucinda (Moon) Paugh held their first reunion and picnic at Swallow Falls State Park pavilion on August 10.

Miss Nina Auburn Paugh, Huber Heights, Ohio, only surviving child of C.L. and Lucinda, attended. Mrs. Bernice (Friend) Paugh, Deer Park, wife of the late Boyd Paugh, together with several members of her family, also attended.

Descendants of the late Scott and Mabel (Browning) Paugh, James V. and Maude (Browning) Paugh, and Fred and Lois (Paugh) Schenk were present. Members of the Lambert L. and Emma (Paugh) Kimmell family sent their regrets that they were unable to attend this year.

Evening hayrides and a corn roast, hosted by Oma and Don Moses at the Scott Paugh farm on Paradise Point Road, completed the day's activities.

Police Urging Youth To Obey Drinking Laws

Maryland State Police are calling on Maryland's underaged youth to obey state law prohibiting alcohol consumption by those under 21 years of age.

"Our primary concern is to deliver a strong message to the underage youth of Maryland (under 21) that it is illegal to consume alcohol," stated trooper First Class Michael J. Krionderis (Kree-un-deris) of the Maryland State Police Chemical Test for Alcohol Unit. Appearing on the Maryland State Police Radio Program, a weekly public service broadcast, TFC Krionderis said the anti-alcohol message is simple.

"If you are under 21 in Maryland, your blood alcohol content should be zero," added TFC Krionderis. "We are putting Maryland youth on notice that we will be working the local law enforcement authorities in search of underaged alcohol violations."

Maryland State Police promise strict enforcement of laws dealing with alcohol consumption by minors. Under Maryland law, it is a misdemeanor to furnish alcoholic beverages for consumption to a person known to be under 21 years of age. Violators can be cited with a first time penalty which includes a maximum $500 fine. After the first offense, the penalty increases to a maximum fine of $1,000.

The Maryland State Police Chemical Test for Alcohol Unit reports 1,321 drunk driving arrests among drivers under 21 years of age for the first six months of 1991. Under Maryland law, an alcohol restriction is imposed on licensed drivers under 21 years of age prohibiting an alcohol concentration in excess of .02 percent.

The Maryland State Police Radio Program is a weekly pubic service broadcast carried on approximately 50 radio stations in Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Farming In Maryland

New Treatment Found For Serious Horse Disease

The disease is called equine degenerative myeloencephalopathy or "EDM." It results in nervous system degeneration and is one cause of a "wobbling" syndrome that can make an animal unstable, prone to fall at any time and dangerous to its handlers. As the number one neurological disease of horses, the wobbler syndrome affects thousands of thoroughbreds and purebred horses across the United States every year, including many valuable racing or show animals.

The onset of EDM wobbler disease has been definitively correlated to low metabolic levels of Vitamin E, according to Dr. Linda Blythe, a professor of veterinary medicine at Oregon State University. The findings of a three-year study should enable the equine industry to effectively address this widespread horse disease problem, researchers say, resulting in a major economic impact on the industry. The research findings have been accepted for publication in the American Journal of Veterinary Research, the scientists said. "We've clearly demonstrated that horses with EDM problems had a Vitamin E deficiency during their young, rapid stages of growth," Blythe said. "A supplementation with high levels of Vitamin E at the right time can prevent this disease problem."

Although horses that develop EDM digest and absorb vitamin E normally, Blythe said, they apparently have some problem in transport or metabolic use of the nutrient. Supplementation levels of 2,000 I.U. of Vitamin E per day appears to prevent EDM from developing in young horses, and levels up to 6,000 I.U. daily can help treat the disease even after symptoms have begun to appear.

Blythe and A. Morrie Craig, an associate professor of veterinary medicine at OSU, were co-principal investigators on this research along with Dr. Duane Lassen, an associate professor of veterinary medicine and Dr. Lori Walker, a research associate at OSU. The OSU scientists are international leaders in the study of this "wobbling" syndrome, partly because the university has cultivated a unique herd of Appaloosa horses with genetic predisposition of the disease.

While EDM can be the cause of wobbling in up to 50 percent of affected horses, the clinical signs can also be caused by spinal cord inflammation and bony abnormalities, the scientists say. Veterinarians must conduct diagnostic tests to determine the exact cause of the syndrome. According to Craig, wobbling caused by EDM can strike horses aged five months to two years old, causing premature aging in some brain and spinal cord neurons and resulting in weakness of movement and loss of coordination.

Preventive Vitamin E supplementation is most effective when given to horses between the age of two and 18 months, Craig said. Partly as result of this research and other studies like it, the National Research Council has already dramatically increased the "minimum daily requirement" recommendations for dietary Vitamin E in horses, Craig said. Horse owners should be aware of the genetic characteristics of EDM and contact their veterinarian if they believe any of their animals have a history of the problem. Blood tests can help identify nutritional deficiencies at an early age, when the problem can most easily be addressed by Vitamin E supplementation. In continuing studies, OSU scientists plan to further outline the most effective levels of Vitamin E supplementation for prevention and therapy, and hope to identify the exact mechanism for the metabolic vitamin deficiency.

Farm Bureau's Latest Publication Tells American Farmer's Story

The latest edition of Farm Bureau's "Farm Facts" is fresh off the press and ready to tell the latest chapter of the American farmer's story. A colorful 32-page book, "Farm Facts" tells the story of American agriculture through a series of high-quality, easy-to-understand graphics.

The computer-generated graphics are based on up-to-date agricultural statistics and production information from a number of public and private sources. Subjects in the publication include statistics about today's farms, modern agricultural production, agricultural trade, agricultural economics and today's consumers.

Included in the magazine-style booklet are facts such as:

•86.7 percent of all farms in the U.S. today are owned by individuals. Only 0.3 percent of all U.S. farms are owned by non-family corporations.

•The U.S. government and state and local governments own more than 40 percent of all the nation's land.

•Farmers and ranchers provide food and habitat for 75 percent of the nation's wildlife.

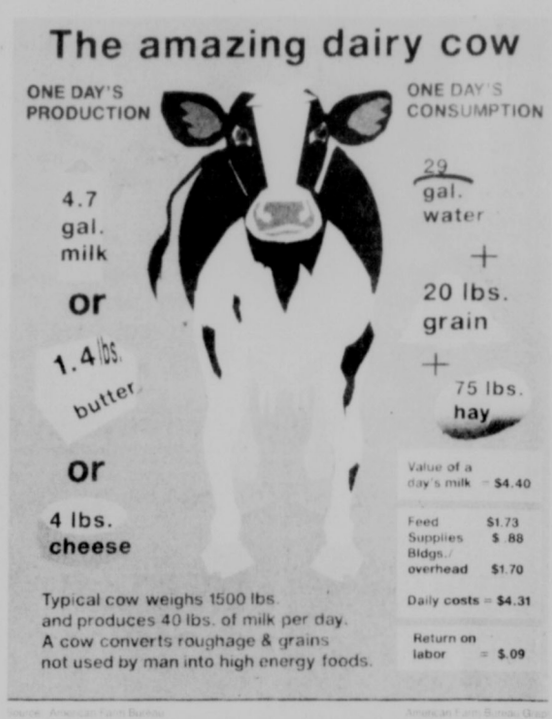
•The typical central-Kansas wheat farm yields enough wheat to produce 2,450 loaves of bread per acre.

•In one day, a dairy cow produces 4.7 gallons of milk or 1.4 pounds of butter or 4 pounds of cheese.

•More than half of USDA's 1990 budget of $46 billion went to social programs such as food stamps and nutrition assistance.

•The farmer's share of the consumer food dollar held steady at 24 cents. That compares to 35 cents for labor and 8 cents for packaging.

•Today, each U.S. farmer produces food and fiber for 128 people — 94.3 in the United States and 33.7 abroad.



•Farming is more than food. Farm products supply items such as ink for printing, fuel for cars, bio-degradable plastics, road de-icer, lubricants, safe cleaning solvents and even cosmetics.

In addition to the four-color graphics, "Farm Facts" includes a pull-out poster that shows production of farm commodities across the United States. The poster also ranks each state by farm income and by production of the nation's 10 top agricultural commodities.

The publication is a natural for projects such as Agriculture in the Classroom, Farm-City events and media distribution. Sporting an attractive die-cut cover featuring a photo of crop artist Stan Herd's "The Harvest," "Farm Facts" would look as comfortable on a coffee table as it would on a school desk.

A single-copy price for AFBF's latest print endeavor is $3. Discounts are available on a volume basis. Orders may be placed by writing: "Farm Facts," ATTN: Rita Walaszek, AFBF Information Division, 225 Touhy Ave., Park Ridge, IL 60068. Orders also will be taken by phone (312-399-5858) and FAX (312-399-5950).

August 28 Is Last Day For Feed Grain Comments

"Farmers and other interested people still have time to submit recommendations on acreage reduction percentages for corn, sorghum and barley," Kenneth Bachtel, chairperson of the Garrett County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said. The public comment period ends August 28.

Bachtel said farmers should state whether the acreage reduction percentages for corn should be 5, 7.5, 10, 12.5, or some other percentage within the considered range. "They should also comment on whether the sorghum and barley percentages should be 0, 5, 7.5 or some other percentage within the considered range." By law, the 1992 oats ARP must be 0, he said.

The Feed Grain Program comments should be mailed to the Director, Commodity Analysis Division, USDA-ASCS, Room 3741-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Horse Feed Tradeoffs Needed To Cope With Drought Effects

The art of feeding horses may need some adjustment in a drought year like 1991, says Malcolm J. Commer Jr., equine economics specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System.

"Regardless of weather patterns between now and early fall, we know there's going to be a shortage of good quality hay," Dr. Commer notes. "The amount of rain between now and then will merely determine the severity of that shortage."

Most horses don't need the high-protein content of good quality alfalfa hay, Commer declares. Notable exceptions are race horses, other high-performance horses, and lactating brood mares -- and then only when peak performance is required.

Hay or grass should be considered the primary feed for horses -- not concentrates, which are only a supplement to achieve a balanced ration.

Good quality hay can provide both nutrients and roughage in fairly adequate amounts for horses at a reasonable cost, Commer points out. But, as the price of hay increases -- as it is doing this year -- the cost of added concentrates becomes more affordable. Thus, a tradeoff can be made between cheaper, lower quality hay and a higher percentage of concentrates in the ration.

With high hay prices almost a certainty by winter, Commer thinks this would be a good year for even backyard horse owners to lock in a price now for good quality grass hay. It also would be a good year to build extra hay storage -- even a temporary shed to keep hay bales off the ground and protected from the weather.

Keep in mind that tight baled hay requires 167 cubic feet of storage space per ton; loose baled hay needs 333 cubic feet per ton. For moderately loose bales, use some figure between these two extremes.

AI And ET In Sheep And Goats In The US

Artificial insemination (AI) and embryo transfer (ET) are biotechnologies that have had significant impacts in the cattle industry in the United States. They have been used over a long enough period of time to allow an objective evaluation and to identify advantages and disadvantages. Compared to cattle there has been very little use of these technologies in sheep and goats. There are several reasons for this. A major reason is economic. The unit value for sheep and goats is much less, on the average, than cattle but the cost of the technologies is not proportionately less. Also, in many cases, management is more extensive and a larger proportion of sheep and goat producers may be more reluctant to adopt or try new technology.

Other reasons for the low level of use relate to problems of applying these technologies to sheep and goats. Historically it has been more difficult to successfully freeze semen from sheep and goats than from cattle. This has now been largely overcome, particularly in goats. Another problem relates to size. It is not possible to access the reproductive tract manually for manipulation via the rectum in sheep and goats as it is in cattle. An additional problem in sheep is the anatomy of the cervix which greatly complicates the passage or "threading" for deposition of semen or collection and transfer of embryos. For all of these reasons and particularly in sheep, some surgical procedures are routinely involved: laparoscopy in AI and laparoscopy or laparotomy in ET.

The advantages of AI and ET can be classified into the following categories: (1) Increase or augment the rate of genetic improvement. However, this can be effective only when the traits to be improved are clearly identified and can be accurately measured. (2) Increase the rate of production of offspring from a limited population or from individual animals. These technologies extend the contributions of animals that have been determined to be of superior genetic worth. (3) Storage or movement of germ plasm. (4) Production of specific pathogen free (SPF) germ plasm. The efficacy of this procedure must be determined for each pathogen separately for sheep and goats. The majority of this research is yet to be completed. These last two advantages have great potential value for use in international movement of germ plasm such as US import and export. It is expected that importation of sheep and goat embryos and semen into the US from countries affected with scrapie will soon become a reality. Such technologies could also be used to salvage germ plasm and establish SPF populations from genetically superior, but disease exposed or infected animals or flocks. (5) These technologies provide gametes (sperm and oocytes) and embryos for use with other technologies such as in-vitro fertilization (IVF), cloning and gene manipulation.

The disadvantages or limitations to the use of AI and ET in sheep and goats include the following categories: (1) Results are not always consistent and repeatable. This is more the case with ET than AI and is particularly true on an individual animal basis. Average responses for groups of animals are more predictable. Results with AI, at least with goats, can be comparable to that of cattle. (2) Cost effectiveness to producers. This must be based on demonstrated increased production of animals produced by these technologies. This factor must be evaluated on a case by case basis and is more likely to be a problem with ET and with AI.

The biotechnologies of AI and ET can each be subdivided into several biotechnological procedures. For AI these include semen collection, evaluation, extension (dilution), freezing, estrus detection or timing in the female, thawing and insemination. ET biotechnologies include synchronization of reproductive cycles among and between donor and recipients, superovulation of donors, fertilization by AI or natural mating, embryo collection, evaluation, processing and culture or freezing, thawing and transfer. The success of each of these technologies is essential for overall success.

AI has been practiced in sheep and goats in the US for many years whereas ET is a newcomer. However, neither has been accepted to any significant extent, primarily for the reasons mentioned above. Increased use in the future will depend on the quality of technology provided and its acceptance by the sheep and goat industries. At present, neither technology is having a significant impact. This is not true of some other countries such as European countries and Australia and New Zealand. New Zealand has just recently released from quarantine in their country populations of several breeds of sheep that were imported and propagated using ET.

Garrett Farmers Eligible for Emergency Feed

Although all the details on the mechanics of the Federal program have not been completed at this time, Garrett County farmers have been declared eligible for Emergency Feed Assistance for crop losses suffered due to the drought. Mike Kozier, ASCS, should have all the details on the program by the first of the week. You can contact Mike by calling the ASCS office at 334-1901. If you need assistance in the preparation of the required materials, please feel free to give me a call.

Nitrate Testing for Drought Stressed Corn Silage

In response to this year's drought conditions the Extension Service will be offering nitrate testing of silage. A fee of $5.00/test will be charged to cover cost of material and labor. We will need approximately ½ gallon of chopped silage. The highest concentrates of nitrates are usually in the lower portion of the stalk. However, you will need to collect a good random sample of the whole plant. Bring the sample to my office and I'll handle it from there. The testing is done at the Wye Research Center on the Eastern Shore. If you would like additional information on Nitrate Poisoning, contact my office and request Fact Sheet 426 "Causes and Prevention of Nitrate Poisoning of Livestock."

Agreement In Writing!

What if you thought your home was sold and you made a firm commitment to purchase another one, then just before the transaction was to be finalized, the buyer decided to purchase a different home? What if you were buying a home and planned to move on the day the transaction was closed, only to find that the sellers planned to stay for another month? Selling your home "By Owner" can leave you open to experiencing such a situation.

Because buyers and sellers have different needs, each transaction for the purchase and sale of real estate is unique. Before agreement is reached between them, the buyers and sellers discuss many items including price, special terms, personal property, a closing date, possession date, condition of the home and much more. Each item is discussed, negotiated and agreed upon.

A REALTOR® plays an important part in the agreement between buyers and sellers, carefully reducing their agreement to writing in the form of a contract. That written contract, signed by both buyers and sellers, assures all parties that the terms and conditions of the agreement will be carried out.

Even before a contract is signed, the REALTORS® may assist buyers with mortgage financing by arranging a pre-qualification interview with a loan officer. Once buyers have been qualified for a specific mortgage, sellers are more likely to react favorably to them. The REALTOR'S® knowledge of local lenders, current interest rates and available mortgage programs can speed up the approval process and assure a smooth, worry-free transaction. Before you attempt to buy or sell a home alone, call a REALTOR® for complete information.

Understanding real estate dilemmas and their solutions is our business, and we'll happily share our knowledge with you. Why not give us a call at 387-5303 or drop by our office at McHenry Plaza.

Made-To-Order Building

Garrett Community College is currently accepting request for a made-to-order building to be constructed by this year's carpentry class. The building design must incorporate the following features: wood-frame construction, at least one exterior door, conventional windows, and maximum dimensions of 12 feet in width and 24 feet in length. It is preferred that the building design include at least one interior partition, finished walls, woodwork, electrical wiring, etc., although other interior designs will be considered. Buildings constructed in the past have been used as offices, guest cottages, concession stands, and hunting cabins. The cost of the building will be for materials only; all materials are to be supplied as needed by the owner. In addition, the owner is responsible for all arrangements and costs of moving the completed structure from Garrett Community College. The project completion date will be spring of 1992. Interested persons should contact Ed Norman at 387-6666 for more information.

Building requests will be considered in the order received and on the basis of how well the design incorporates the requirements listed above. In the event that several requests are received, the college reserves the right to make the final project selection based on how well the building design fits course requirements. 24-2r

NO. 26

THERE WAS LOTS OF CYCLING going on in Garrett County this past weekend, with three separate events involving this and other sports. The annual Best of the West Triathlon was held Saturday at Broadford Park and around the Oakland area, while the Youth Triathlon and the Mid-Atlantic Mountain Bike Championships were held at Wisp in McHenry on Sunday. The shot above was taken by Craig Phillips at the start of Sunday's race, which took competitors up and down the slopes and trails of Marsh Mountain. The results of the triathlons and more photos can be found on the sports pages in this section. The results and more photo coverage of the mountain bike event will be published in next week's issue of The Republican.

Alleged Armed Robber Arrested By Local Police

An Oakland man suspected of armed robbery at a local liquor store was apprehended Monday and remains incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail in lieu of $25,000 cash bond, according to Chief John K. Sines of the Oakland City Police Department.

Frederick Louis Gregory, 26, was taken into custody Monday at approximately 1:30 p.m. by Pfc. Shawn Groves of the Oakland City Police, assisted by Garrett County Sheriff's Deputy Randy Sines, and charged with robbery, reckless endangerment, assault with intent to rob, and assault.

The charges were brought in connection with an alleged armed robbery Friday evening at the Town Beverage Center. Sines indicated that a utility knife was used in the commission of the crime. He further stated that Gregory allegedly told the clerk to "give him all the money and she wouldn't be hurt."

It was estimated that approximately $1,000 in cash was taken during the incident, according to police reports.

Police are continuing their investigation and a preliminary hearing is set for September 18 in Garrett County District Court.

State Budget Deficit Growing, County May See Significant Cuts

With the state budget deficit for the current fiscal year now being estimated at about $350,000 and projected to be somewhere between $600 million and $700 million for the coming fiscal year, the real possibility exists, according to Garrett County Commissioner John Braskey, that the local jurisdictions will be forced to take part of that brunt.

Braskey spent last week at the annual Maryland Association of Counties (MACo) conference where, he said, the state's financial problems "over-shadowed the entire conference," and added, "Governor Schaefer had no good news for us about the budget."

Braskey was appointed to MACo's Special Committee on Revenues and Expenditures during the conference and is a member of the MACo Board of Directors.

He explained that Garrett County might well see cutbacks in state aid of several thousand dollars if other alternatives to either raise more revenue or cut funds elsewhere at the state level fail. One cut currently being considered is for the state to withhold the 11-cent portion of the 21-cent real estate tax that currently goes back into county coffers. That alone, said Braskey, would amount to about $550,000 for one year in cutbacks to Garrett County.

Consideration is also being given to the possibility of state legislators holding a special session in November to raise taxes. That session, stated District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards, is "questionable," and also noted that "Everything is being put on the table right now. In the past, local government hasn't been touched to amount to anything."

Edwards shared his point of view about the state's budget problem, outlining, in order, three major considerations he felt would best solve the deficit dilemma. "The very first thing that needs to be done is to downsize state government and determine just how much would be saved by that measure."

Secondly, he continued, the recommendations for tax restructuring made by the Linowes Commission should be "thoroughly reviewed and considered before any tax increases take place. I'm opposed to a carte blanche tax increase and I think that should be the last resort."

When Braskey was questioned about where the cuts might be made in the county if state funding is withheld, he responded, "I don't know where we'd make it up exactly but we'd probably be looking at some lay-offs of county employees as well as major department cuts -- especially in the county roads department."

He also noted that, during the MACo conference last week, it was requested of Governor Schaefer and the state legislators that they "hold up on state mandates that require funds to implement." As Braskey explained, "We are required to do certain things through state mandates, but we are not provided with the money to do them."

One avenue of generating more revenue for the state might come in the form of a one-cent increase in the five-cent state sales tax. Also being looked at by state legislators is the possibility of cutting aid to municipalities or to local police.

"We also talked about giving the local jurisdictions the authority to increase income taxes and other sources of local revenue-generating tactics," he said, adding, "Although my stance of wanting to raise local property taxes to help keep local services and programs in place has been an unpopular one, it may have to come to that."

Local Family Burned Out For Second Time

A family who lost their home to fire about two years ago in Carroll County experienced the same nightmare again Tuesday evening when fire destroyed the single-story house they were renting, located along Fairview Church Road, and nearly all of their possessions.

According to a family spokesman, James Shoemaker was working on an automobile in his attached garage when the blaze erupted. Shoemaker was apparently draining the gas line of the car when a trouble light caused gasoline fumes to burst into flame, setting the car and surrounding area on fire. Shoemaker attempted to extinguish the fire with a garden hose and burned his hands in the process; however he declined medical treatment later.

Responding to the 7:43 p.m. alarm were the Gorman and Bayard volunteer fire departments, and summoned quickly thereafter were the Oakland and Mt. Storm departments. Also responding were the county air cascade vehicle, presently being housed at Kitzmiller VFD, and the Southern Rescue Squad.

Fire fighters quickly brought the blaze under control; however, the entire garage and a significant portion of the rest of the house were destroyed. Gorman VFD personnel remained on the scene for about three hours.

Voters' League Requests Support To Update Land Management Plan

The League of Women Voters (LWV) of Garrett County, along with Garrett County Planning and Zoning Director John Nelson, met this week with the Garrett County Commissioners to request support for a proposal to update The Garrett County Development Plan, a comprehensive land management plan prepared in 1974. A letter written by the LWV board of directors outlining that request was also submitted to the commissioners.

"We believe The Garrett County Development Plan must be promptly updated so that you, our elected officials, through our county government, can manage land use and development in Garrett County," the letter stated.

League members pointed out that Garrett County is the only county in the state of Maryland without county-wide zoning and, they said, without a subdivision ordinance. "We not only do not manage growth and development in most of the county, we do not have an up-to-date land use plan. The one land use plan that the county has done was completed in 1974 and is based on the 1970 census," according to the letter.

League member Dorothy Leighton urged the commissioners to "back the proposal and do so in a timely fashion," explaining that the county currently has no way of determining how the land is being used. "We should at least be conducting a windshield survey," she said, since numerous changes have taken place since the master plan of 1974 was developed.

Nelson agreed, stating that it is critical for the county planning office to determine what the development trends are in the county. He also noted that officials from the Maryland

Public Invited To Participate In Health Goals

The Garrett County Health Department has invited all county residents to participate in the "Year 2000" health objective-setting process by signing up for one or more of the 12 health-related task forces now forming.

The 12 task forces will be setting health objectives by first looking at the county's health status in various areas at the present time and then deciding, as a group, where the county residents want to be by the year 2000.

According to a spokesperson from the Health Department, "residents may begin taking more control over their health destinies in a significant way."

Clarksburg, W.Va. Man Found Guilty On Drug Charges

A Clarksburg, W.Va., man was found guilty of possession of marijuana by Judge Jack R. Turney in Garrett County District Court proceedings last week, according to court documents.

Paul S. Miller, 28, was sentenced to 90 days in jail. The judge suspended all but 48 hours of the jail term and fined Miller $100, and placed him on six months of supervised probation.

In a plea agreement with the State's Attorney's Office, a second charge of possession of drug paraphernalia against Miller was not prosecuted.

Miller had been arrested on May 14 at the weigh station on Savage Mountain by the Maryland State Police Drug Enforcement Division. He reportedly consented to a search of the 1988 Peterbilt tractor he was operating and the search revealed a small amount of marijuana.

In other District Court news, an Oakland woman was found guilty of theft after she reportedly accepted a check from Garrett County Circuit Court, signed her sister's name to it, and had

Senior Citizens And Handicapped Programs Cut

Executive Director of Garrett County Community Action Duane Yoder this week reported that state funding of certain programs designed for senior citizens and handicapped persons have been severely cut from state funding. In addition, said Yoder, funding for the local energy assistance and weatherization programs will be cut significantly.

Community Action is one of many of state and county agencies experiencing cutbacks in funding because of the growing state budget deficit, now estimated at approximately $350,000 for the current fiscal year.

An approximate 25% has been cut from the senior citizen transportation program and 50% has been cut from the weatherization program, according to Yoder. Exact amounts have not yet been determined for other areas, but Yoder noted that the state has also requested that each county submit a list of cuts that could be considered in other programs operated by Community Action.

Yoder was concerned about the nearly 2,000 households in Garrett County that have relied on special state funding, which was established to deal with the county's cold weather history. That energy assistance program may experience a 20%-40% cut, he said.

First Stage Alert Issued For MLP Water District

Wendell R. Beitzel, Garrett County Sanitary District Administrator, announced this week the issuance of a "first stage alert" for residents of the Mtn. Lake Park water district -- a district which includes Loch Lynn -- because of the drought conditions experienced in the county this summer.

Beitzel reported that water stopped flowing in that system momentarily Friday which, in part, prompted the emergency water conservation measure to be enacted. He noted, however, that he doesn't anticipate having to take more drastic measures there.

In addition, he said, the Kitzmiller district is also experiencing a water supply problem, because of a lowered flow of stream water at the source. "We may end up instituting conservation measures there, as well," he stated.

Although the water supplies in other systems around the county appear to be adequate at this time, it was reported that individual county residents have experienced some drying up of water supplies.

Lake Property Owners Displeased With "Buy-Down" Situation, Bridge Project

Between 125 and 150 members of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners' Association (DCLPOA) met Saturday to discuss the refusal by Pennsylvania Electric Company (PENELEC) to sell strips of land to individual lake property owners, in what is known as a "buy-down." They also again discussed the Glendale Bridge project proposal, and have now delivered a letter to the Garrett County Commissioners voicing their disapproval, as a group, with the decision to reconstruct the bridge on its old alignment.

Approval to purchase that land, according to DCLPOA President Jan Finkel, was recently given to four area developers along the lake but, he said, PENELEC has not given the same option to individual property owners.

Finkel explained that the recent decision of PENELEC to allow "a handful of developers, and not individual property owners, to buy down is discriminatory," and added, "We're going to be aggressive about the buy-downs."

The land in question, currently owned by PENELEC and managed by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR), is located four feet over the high water mark and extends 25 feet from that point away from the lake. Thus, those buffer strips with steep slopes would not be as wide, on land, as those where the slope is more gradual.

Mark Rothman, member of the DCLPOA board of directors, presented an update on the situation to the group, stating that a petition has been refiled for a hearing on the matter in order to allow the DCLPOA representation on any such land acquisitions. According to Rothman, a comprehensive plan must be developed by PENELEC, DNR, and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) before any more purchases of PENELEC-owned land may be made. Rothman noted that concerns over possible "environmental degradation" were cited by FERC as being a possible consequence of selling the land to individuals.

"I think we can show that no damage will be done to the environment because of individual buy-downs, if we can just be involved in the process," stated Rothman.

As it stands, he noted, "PENELEC has totally stonewalled us -- we can't get into the system." He also added, "It does look discouraging at this point but it isn't hopeless."

A member of the group pointed out that most individuals interested in the buy-downs would not want to own the property for purposes of more development but would likely be more apt to want to protect the strip of land from development. In that case, stated the member, the environment would suffer no damage from the owners buying down and PENELEC could actually be helped in accomplishing its environmental goals.

"PENELEC should work with both DNR and DCLPOA on the comprehensive

NY Man Charged For Fleeing, Eluding Officer

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office arrested a Fulton, New York, man on August 21 on charges of fleeing and eluding a police officer, driving with a suspended license, speeding, reckless driving, and failure to stop at a stop sign. The officers made other arrests this week as well, and investigated an automobile accident.

James B. Thomas, 20, reportedly failed to stop at a stop sign in Mountain Lake Park, and was observed by Dep. J. Murphy. When Murphy attempted to flag the defendant down, Thomas apparently did not stop. A chase ensued throughout Mtn. Lake Park, and the defendant drove off the road, struck two stumps, and traveled into a field.

The officer attempted to follow Thomas into the field, but his vehicle became stuck in the mud and he was unable continue the search for some time.

When the officer reached the defendant's car, it was abandoned in the field. The defendant was found a short time later at a residence on H Street, according to the report. He was incarcerated at that time on a $1500 bond.

In a separate incident, police responded to the Tilton Wilt residence in Oakland on Saturday to investigate a report of a disorderly person. Upon arrival, officers found Donna L. DeWitt, 25, Oakland, to be apparently intoxicated and yelling obscenities outside the residence. When the officers approached her, she reportedly pushed one officer and was belligerent to him. She continued to verbally harass the officers and resisted their attempts to arrest her, according to the report.

DeWitt was then arrested and charged with assault, resisting arrest, and disorderly conduct.

James M. Casteel, 34, Friendsville, was arrested on the strength of a warrant on Monday. The warrant charged him with battery against Gerri Powell of Oakland.

Steven V. Glotfelty, 19, McHenry, was arrested Sunday at 12:35 a.m. for driving while intoxicated (DWI). Officer J. Sowers observed the defendant cross the center line of Oakland Avenue, according to the report, and after stopping him, discovered him to be intoxicated.

After the arrest, Glotfelty was released into the custody of a sober companion.

A warrant was issued for Jack R. Helms, Jr., 24, Oakland, for assault and battery against Tammy J. Helms. The incident reportedly took place on August 20.

A bench warrant was issued for Roland L. Bonner, 34, Bowden, W.Va., for violation of probation. Original charges against the defendant were DWI and driving under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol (DUI).

Weldon K. Nicholas, 32, Deer Park, was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant for violation of probation. Original charges against the defendant were DWI and DUI.

Donald W. Cotrell, 31, Berlin, Pa., was issued a bench warrant charging him with failure to pay $500 in deferred payments to the Garrett County District Court. Cotrell was issued a second bench warrant on the charge of failure to appear in district court on August 6.

Auto Mishap

The Sheriff's Office responded to an automobile accident last Thursday at 2:10 p.m. that sent two persons to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Patty S. Glotfelty, 42, Aurora, W.Va., was apparently traveling east on Oakland-Westernport Road (Rt. 135), operating a 1990 Olds Cutlass in the Deer Park area when she attempted to make a left-hand turn into a private drive. She failed to yield right of way, according to the report, and was struck by a 1987 Nissan Van traveling west driven by Fred W. Woods, 47, Hamlin, N.Y.

Passengers in the Woods vehicle were Karen S. Woods, 44, Eldon A. Bullis, 16, and Mark E. Woods, 15, all of Hamlin. Karen Woods was injured in the mishap, as was Ms. Glotfelty, and the women were transported to the hospital by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad. Both were treated and released, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Lake Mgmt. Office Explains New Boating Fee

The Deep Creek Lake Management Office has received numerous calls concerning the Recreational Vessel Fee recently implemented by the U.S. Coast Guard. In an effort to answer these concerns, personnel from the Lake Management Office has contacted the Coast Guard regarding the fee, and offers the following information.

Effective July 31 of this year, owners of recreational boats longer than 16 feet operated on certain navigable U.S. waters are required to pay an annual recreational vessel fee. These fees apply to territorial seas of the U.S., internal waters of the U.S. subject to tidal influence, and internal waters of the U.S. from which an individual can travel to tidal waters in a 16-foot powered vessel during most of the boating season. The Lake Management Office has been advised by the Coast Guard that this fee does not apply to recreational boats used solely on Deep Creek Lake.

Owners of vessels covered by the law will be required to display valid decals indicating the annual fee has been paid. Failure to obtain or display these decals will result in a civil penalty. This fee does not apply to vessels 16 feet or smaller, public vessels, sailboard, canoes, kayaks, rowboats, foreign vessels operated less than 30 days a year in the U.S. or vessels owned by charitable nonprofit organizations specified by regulation.

Questions concerning the Recreational Vessel Fee can be directed to the Coast Guard at 1-800-368-5647.

SHS Parking Lot Procedures Noted By Ewing

The parking lot at Southern High School has taken on a new look, according to William Ewing, vice principal. Part of the renovation package at Southern involved changes to the parking areas in front of the school and restrictions on parking in and around the building.

Ewing said no parking will be allowed in the rear of the school, an area which now has limited access and fire codes that prohibit parking in the rear of the building in the areas of the vocational shops and the band room, as well as in the areas behind the cafeteria and the former guidance suite.

Staff will be limited to parking in the area along the science classrooms near High Street and in the upper front lot directly in front of the building.

Visitors, parents, and students with approved applications will be restricted to the graveled lower front lot with entrance from Oak Street only, Ewing said. This lot is reserved for approved student parking. Seniors with good attendance and a limited number of underclassmen with near perfect attendance will be given top priority for parking in this area.

All other students who wish to park vehicles on school property must use the football field parking lot as they did last year. Parents who bring students to school should use the part of the graveled lot nearest the new auxilary gym

School buses will use the upper front lot. The arrival and dismissal procedures should be much safer because there will be no other vehicles moving in this lot as students walk to and from buses, Ewing concluded.

LAMB DONATED – The Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross is the recipient of a lamb, purchased at the Garrett County Fair by George and Ellen Zimmerman. The lamb was raised by Seth Fratz. The lamb will be raffled to raise funds for the local chapter. Raffle tickets will be available from Red Cross volunteers and all proceeds will benefit services provided by the chapter for Garrett County residents. More information may be obtained by calling the local chapter at 334-3916. Pictured, left, is George Zimmerman, presenting a certificate for the lamb to Cindy Kutchman, chapter executive.

State Students Perform Well On SATs Despite Nat'l Drop In Test Results

The Maryland State Department of Education announced today that 64% of the students in Maryland's high school class of 1991 took the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT). Maryland's participation rate is 22% higher than the national average (42%). The increase in the number of test-takers indicates that a larger portion of Maryland's high school students are setting their sights on college.

Maryland seniors averaged 429 on the verbal portion of the SAT and 475 on the mathematics portion. Both averages are the highest in the region, with Delaware, the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, and Virginia trailing Maryland. The national average verbal score is 422 and average math score is 474.

Maryland education official are concerned about the decline in Maryland scores, which mirror the national trend. Since 1987, national SAT averages have declined, with verbal scores dropping a total of eight points and mathematics dropping a total of two points. During that period, Maryland scores have declined at the same rate. In past years, the College Board has noted that a decrease in scores generally accompanies an increase in participation.

Acting State Superintendent Bonnie Copeland commented, "We are especially happy about the increase in participation, particularly as Maryland enters the second year of its School for Success program. We want students to set their sights higher. That is the first step in making progress in achievement.

"However, any decline in performance is a top concern. We are encouraged that Maryland is already implementing changes in our public education system to improve - not decline."

Dr. Copeland went on to point out that the School for Success reform package includes several initiatives that have the potential to improve student performance in measures such as the SAT.

"Among our initiatives," she said, "are the comprehensive education accountability program and a menu of other important changes, including an emphasis on early childhood education to give students a strong start in school. We are also emphasizing mathematics and science instruction and teacher preparation in math and science through the Governor's Academy. Very directly related to SAT score improvements are the proposed new graduation requirements, which eliminate the 'general track' and require a more rigorous academic program."

Grantsville Man, Juvenile, Arrested In Breaking, Entering, and Theft Case

A young Grantsville man and a male juvenile were arrested Saturday morning after they allegedly broke into a storage garage owned by the town of Grantsville and stole a late model Chevrolet pickup. Both were injured after wrecking the truck on U.S. Route 219 near the Cove Road.

Merrill T. Bittinger, 19, was charged with breaking and entering a storehouse, breaking and entering to commit a felony, felony theft, malicious destruction of property, and trespassing. Bittinger was also charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DWI). Charges against the juvenile will be processed with the Department of Juvenile Services.

Following the accident, both Bittinger and the juvenile were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. Bittinger was admitted for his injuries, but has since been released, according to an emergency room spokesman. The juvenile was treated at the local hospital, but was later transferred to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., and was reportedly released Tuesday.

Tpr. S.H. Anderson of the Maryland State Police investigated the 2:30 a.m. incident.

DWI ARRESTS

Eight additional persons were arrested this past week by the Maryland State Police and charged with DWI.

Anderson arrested William M. Anderson, 35, and Thomas R. Baltos, 36, on Friday and charged them with DWI.

State police at McHenry reported that Christopher D. Wood, 26, was charged with DWI on Saturday by Officer Milburn of the Department of Natural Resources Police.

James Langgle, 38, was charged with DWI on Saturday by Anderson.

James A. Puffinburg, 25, and Brian D. Kimmons, 30, were both charged with DWI on Sunday by Anderson.

Wayne M. Tabor, 22, was charged by Tfc. W.E. Dixon with DWI on Sunday.

Melissa J. Corley, 19, was charged with DWI on Wednesday by Anderson.

BloodmobileTo Visit Oakland Next Friday

In order to meet the needs of residents and patients hospitalized in its 65 participating hospitals, of which Garrett County Memorial is one, the Johnstown Region of the American Red Cross must collect over 3,000 pints of blood each week. Blood supplies are particularly low right now, according to a Red Cross spokesman, and Oakland area residents will have an opportunity to address that shortage next Friday, Sept. 6, when the bloodmobile visits the National Guard Armory on Eighth Street.

According to Cindy Kutchman, executive of the Garrett County Chapter, ARC, the bloodmobile staff will be collecting blood from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. that day.

Donors must be at least 17 years of age, weight at least 110 pounds, and be in generally good health.

"People often give blood after they hear about a friend or relative who was in an accident," Mrs. Kutchman said. "But then it's too late. Blood has to be on the shelves before an accident occurs."

Kutchman noted that 95 percent of the general population will, at some point, need some type of transfusion and that, on the average, someone in the country needs blood about every 17 seconds.

Woman Violates Probation; Will Serve Two Years

Rhonda R. Uphold, 24, McHenry, was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court to two years in the Maryland Department of Corrections after she violated probation for the third time.

Uphold pleaded no contest in a trial before Judge Fred A. Thayer last Thursday, and the judge found her guilty of the violation of probation charge. The defendant had been convicted of uttering a forged check in 1988, and a two-year jail term was given and subsequently suspended at that time. At Thursday's trial, Thayer reimposed the two year sentence.

The defendant had been placed on two years of supervised probation in place of the two-year jail term, and because she did not report to her probation agent twice in the past two months, and also did not notify the agent of a change of address, she was arrested for violation.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kind word for everyone
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart
That loved us well and true
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
You are not forgotten, dear loved one
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last
We'll always remember thee
We miss you now; our hearts are torn
As time goes by, we miss you more
Your lovely smile, your gentle face
No one can ever fill your vacant place.

Four Ways to Lower Blood Cholesterol

In the past ten years, we have read and heard various reports regarding the negative effects of cholesterol on the body. High blood levels of cholesterol have been associated with coronary heart disease (one of the leading causes of death), stroke, angina pectoris, and leg pain caused by impaired blood circulation.

The negative effects of cholesterol are generally associated with LDL (low density lipoprotein) cholesterol, the type of cholesterol that is capable of being trapped in smaller blood vessels. There are four ways of lowering LDL blood cholesterol:

1. Diet: Reduce the amount of cholesterol in the diet by eating less eggs, butterfat, ice cream and organ meats such as liver and kidney. Focus on foods that are high in fiber. Prepare foods by broiling, poaching, steaming, or stir-frying in vegetable oil.

2. Medicines: Prescription medicines are avaliable if dietary measures do not adequately lower blood cholesterol levels.

3. Weight Control: Losing weight (if obese) can lower blood cholesterol levels.

4. Exercise: Vigorous exercise can lower LDL cholesterol and help strengthen the heart.

Cut Waste Before Taxing...

With just two months of fiscal year 1992 behind us, already the state of Maryland is running about $350 million in the red and we are facing an economic catastrophe if our governor and legislators do not act and act quickly. A three-month study just concluded by the state legislature has revealed that major cuts in spending and/or a major tax increase is needed if we are to pull out of this deficit. It is odd that it took three months to come to such a profound conclusion.

Delegate George Edwards expressed his opinions this week about how to best approach the dilemma, and we liked what he had to say. While admitting that some type of significant tax increase will probably be necessary, he stated that a major tax increase should be the last resort. The first step, he said, should be to downsize state government. While he didn't go into specifics, we assume he means to examine all of the state agencies that provide overlapping services or that have simply been allowed to grow to the point that there is gross inefficiency and waste.

Secondly, he said, the legislature needs to take a long, hard look at the Linowes Commission report, a massive document that took months to prepare, but includes some excellent recommendations on how to revise the entire tax structure. Those revisions would increase the tax burden on the wealthy and broaden the overall state tax base to provide more equitable funding to all subdivisions. The less affluent counties like Garrett, as well as Baltimore City, would benefit from these revisions, while the wealthy counties would receive less state assistance.

The Linowes report was so detailed and lengthy that the legislature literally did not have time to study it. It is also our opinion that, since the recommended tax structure revisions favor the less affluent, those with wealth are against it. We all know how money talks, especially with those in elected positions.

Whatever course is taken over the next several months, we should all be prepared for a reduction of services and a hike in taxes. The effect on Garrett County in terms of lost state revenue and unemployment could be significant. We just hope that waste and inequities are attacked first, before we are forced to pump more of our personal funds into such an inefficient, deficit-producing system of government.

The First Day Of School . . .

by Renelda Frazee,
A Teacher

It's exciting and scary the first day of school.
A new teacher and classmates to follow the rules.

Questions are popping through young little minds,
On what will happen now that summer's behind.
Will school be dull and they'll hate every minute?
Or exciting and neat, that they'll fit right in it?

They come one by one through my classroom door, and take a seat quietly with twenty-four more.

Wouldn't they be surprised, if they only knew,
that teacher was nervous and wondering too.

Was that Sally or Anna wearing the pink barrette, or Phillip or Tommy, who hasn't spoken yet?

How can I help her, the shy little one?
Or the one who is boisterous, someone's son?

It's not just the basics we're dealing with here, but hidden secrets and worries, causing fear.

God give me the wisdom to do my very best, to be a friend, a listener, and all the rest.
To help young lives in these troubled times, help me prepare them for the plateaus they must climb.

A magician, a wizard, a physic, I'm not,
But to teach, love, and guide them is my lot.

To the Editor:

Hospice of Garrett County, Inc., will sponsor a two-day training class for new hospice volunteer caregivers. These classes will be held Saturday, Sept. 7, and Saturday, Sept. 14. These classes are designed to teach new hospice volunteers how to deal with the many challenges of being a caregiver.

Topics scheduled to be taught are listening skills, legal and financial planning, grief counseling skills, AIDS awareness, home care skills, physical therapy, funeral home skills, and a class on "What is Hospice."

Hospice is very much in need of volunteers. We are reaching out to the community as our program continues to grow and expand. Volunteer caregivers are extremely essential to the hospice patient and their families. As we grow, the need for caregivers becomes greater. We ask you to join our classes. I firmly believe that you will find that doing good for others is good for you.

You may register by calling Hospice at 334-5151 or 895-3111. There is no charge for the classes.

To the Editor:

After seeing the class reunion pictures of 1971 and 1981 from Southern High School. Would you please shed some light on my curiosity as to why the ten-year reunion class picture of Southern High School, class of 1980 did not appear in The Republican last year?

I am aware of other pictures that were to appear in The Republican, and did not. Also, stories and pictures not appearing in the paper the week or two after they're taken. Sometimes up to two months afterward, some not at all.

The real news I understand being printed first. But then again isn't that why there are different sections in the newspaper?

To me, and I am sure others, this comes across as favoritism.

Sincerely yours,
Nancy Bernard

Dear Ms. Bernard,

If your class reunion photo did not appear in The Republican, either it was never submitted to us or it was of such poor quality that it would not reproduce. The "other" pictures to which you refer probably fell into one of the above categories, or possibly were not deemed newsworthy by our staff, although the latter situation is rare.

As for photos appearing several weeks after being taken, there are a number of reasons that this occasionally occurs. Sometimes it is a space problem; sometimes we get the photos, but the person(s) submitting them fails to get us the information that goes with them; sometimes the quality is not satisfactory and they have to be re-taken, etc.

No, this is not why there are different sections of the newspaper. Our printing press, like all presses, can print only so many pages at a time. The Republican is printed over a period of three days (Tues.-Thurs.). We try to put stories and photos of EQUAL importance in all sections of our paper.

I assure you, favoritism has nothing to do with our "photo policy." Also, I challenge you to find another newspaper that uses as many photos as ours. If you do, I'll see that you get a free subscription to The Republican.

Thank you for giving us this opportunity to clarify a few things.

Editor

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County commissioners requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Commissioners Braskey, Butscher, and Groves:

The Board of Directors of the Property Owners' Association of Deep Creek Lake, Inc., has asked me to convey to you one more time our views regarding the Glendale Bridge.

We regret that the bridge is not being replaced according to 1991 standards. We believe that the alignment will remain marginal at best and that the approaches will continue to require reducing speeds well below 30 m.p.h.

In addition, the bridge will be closed for nine months, possibly more, and probably for the better part of the 1992 summer season. Such a closure will result in considerable inconvenience to Garrett Countains going through the normal business of living -- traveling to and from work, school, church, doctors, shops, and so on. Even worse, police, fire, ambulance, and other emergency vehicles will be hindered, thus causing loss of property and life.

Further, the designated detour routes of Rock Lodge Road, State Park Road, and Toothpick Road are clearly inadequate to handle the increase in traffic, and no amount of upgrading will make them adequate. These roads are simply too narrow and too curved ever to handle large volumes of traffic effectively. The person who makes a mistake on Rock Lodge Road will be in the lake. The director of transportation for the Garrett County school system will not allow bus drivers to use Toothpick Road; two ordinary cars have difficulty passing each other on it, not to mention trucks or cars pulling trailers or recreational vehicles. And in none of this discussion have we spoken of winter. Granted, efforts have been made to upgrade these roads, but no measure can be genuinely effective since the roads were never designed or intended to handle heavy volumes of traffic. If the pictures we've painted are not grim enough, add to it the lawsuits that will inevitably follow in the wake of losses of property and life.

Finally, it is our belief that the problem of land acquisition has not been addressed. This will not be cheap since building the bridge on its original alignment and original piers will necessitate acquiring already developed land. Such action will require either a large compensatory settlement or a condemnation procedure that would likely result in litigation.

Conversely, building on new piers and a new alignment parallel to but south of the original structure should prove more cost-effective because land acquisition would be simplified by the county's buying the Stanton property, removing the needed land, and putting the remaining, still considerable, property back on the open market. Similarly, acquiring land on the other side of the lake might be effected through a simple trade.

If, despite the above arguments, you are determined to proceed with this project, we wish to offer a suggestion. Since it is already late August, it is logical to assume that work on the bridge cannot begin in early September as is the overall plan. In fact, it seems likely that work might not begin before November or even December, in which case the bridge would be closed through the entire 1992 summer season, an utterly undesirable and indefensible situation for many reasons.

Accordingly, we suggest deferring the whole project until September 1992. This would be advantageous in several ways. First, a thorough inspection of the bridge could be made and appropriate maintenance performed. Second, land acquisition and other matters could be resolved. Third, the tight economic circumstances we are currently undergoing might abate, with sufficient money becoming available to permit doing a first-rate job.

In the meantime, one simple, cost-efficient means to ensure safety (which must always be the prime consideration) on the bridge is at hand. That is, the county can install a system of trip lights at each end of the bridge. The lights would maintain a steady, safe flow of traffic. Enforcement would be easy once people knew that violators would be fined heavily.

As a final note, you would benefit from this proposed action. After all, you would become known for having had the foresight and courage to do the right job and would have a grateful county behind you.

Please consider our proposal and reasoning from all angles. We, as are you, are concerned with the financial solvency of Garrett County and the safety and well-being of its people.

Sincerely,
Jan Finkel, President
Property Owners' Association of Deep Creek Lake, Inc.

To the Editor:

Last year, almost 600 people died on our nation's highways over the Labor Day weekend. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, some 240 of those lives could have been saved if people had simply taken the time to buckle up before turning the ignition key.

When I think of all those tragic and totally avoidable deaths, I am filled with anger and sadness.

Here in Garrett County, we can't -- and we won't -- let that happen again. This Labor Day weekend our law enforcement officers will aggressively enforce our safety belt and child safety seat laws as part of a nationwide "Buckle Up" Program.

President Bush and the U.S. Department of Transportation have called for 70 percent nationwide safety belt use by 1992. I'm calling for 100 percent safety belt use in Garrett County over this Labor Day weekend. Let's set an example for the rest of the nation and have a 100 percent safe holiday weekend.

Sincerely,
M. Van Evans,
Sheriff of Garrett County

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County commissioners requested that it appear in this column.

Dear Commissioners:

On June 8, 1987, a majority of the members of the League of Women Voters of Garrett County adopted a position supporting county management of land use and development (zoning). The League still supports this position. We are all aware Garrett County is the only county in the state of Maryland without county-wide zoning and without an ordinance for subdivision control. As a reasonable alternative to county-wide zoning, the adoption of a subdivision ordinance would take the onus off the county and place it on those who would be doing the actual developing. We do not manage growth and development in most of the county, nor do we have an up-to-date land use plan. The one land plan that the county does have was completed in 1974 and is based on the 1970 census.

This condition continues despite the fact that several times in recent years, due to lack of a plan or management, there has been concern that the State might step in and do it for us. The most recent example of possible state involvement was the Maryland Growth and Chesapeake Bay Protection Act, which was the result of recommendations of the 2020 Commission. When this bill was killed in March 1991, Delegate George Edwards suggested that a bill should be proposed next year that would force counties to enforce their plans, "not particularly in regard to zoning, but at least in land management."

In July 1987, in a meeting with the League, Commissioner Braskey stated that the time had come to update the Master Plan.

The Mind Wanders

A Most Precious Gift
By Mary Sincell McEwen

Last week I had the opportunity to hear a wonderful symphony orchestra and opera trio perform here in Garrett County. The music was uplifting to all who heard it, and the talent of the musicians was much appreciated.

Nina Kotov, a Russian cellist, performed as a soloist on Friday night. I watched her, enthralled, as she used her hands, arms, and brain as vehicles to transform written music into audible sound. Her countenance revealed the intensity she felt as each clear, precise note was produced from her instrument. She was a joy to watch.

Erick Friedman also performed as a violin soloist, and gave a show most won't forget. He made the little stringed instrument sing with such depth and passion - such a fluid and pleasing succession of musical tones.

The entire orchestra, in fact, was exciting to watch. Those earnest yet relaxed faces intent on the sheet music, looking up at the conductor (Friedman) every few moments and occasionally glancing at their companion musicians. Together they created most satisfying music. I've always been surprised to actually feel chills - and see the goose bumps - when a phrase of music strikes me a certain way.

As I watched and listened, I thought what amazing animals we humans are. What other being possesses the ability to create such complex melodies - to write and perform them? No other animal can do it, at least not to our knowledge. We may not be able to fly alone, or to swim deep in the ocean free of artificial breathing apparatuses - no, those gifts are not ours. But music - we can be masters of this wondrous gift.

Orchestral music may not appeal to all, but each and every person finds aesthetic loveliness in some form, whether it be in a pristine painting of a sunrise or an abstract work of bright fluorescent streaks. While square dancing is joy and fun for some, others delight in the ballet. To others still, magnificence may come in the form of a well-trained athletic body. To each his own.

Although this life can be stricken with constant conflict and anxiety, we do have gifts we often take for granted. As Mr. Friedman played, I was moved by the melody - the richness and passion of the sound. I sent a message to the tiny human now growing deep inside my body: "This is the beauty of being human."

The struggles of this earthly life are countless, but gifts are plentiful, too. Music is one of those gifts - a most precious asset of being human.

FRIENDS OF THE RUTH ENLOW LIBRARY

by Sull McCartney

If you don't like bad news skip this paragraph. Art Naylor has provided me with some figures pertaining to statewide funding of public libraries from the June 1990 issue of "Local Government Finances in Maryland Year 1989-1990." According to Art these are the most recent figures available on library funding in Maryland. The average per capita expenditure for the eight counties in Maryland with populations less than 50,000 was $13.47. Garrett County was the second lowest in the state with a per capita expenditure of $6.30. This is less than half of the average amount spent by counties of comparable size. The percentage of the total budget spent on the library for 1989-90 in Garrett County was 0.80 percent, the lowest in Maryland. The average for the previously mentioned eight counties was 1.6 percent. To make matters worse, Garrett County's percentage of total budget spent on the library dropped to 0.64 percent for 1990-91 and 0.60 percent for 1991-92. The amount requested by The Library Board of Trustees for fiscal year 1991-92 was $177,522 which would have been 0.78 percent of the total budget. The amount funded by the County Commissioners was $136,900. This is $33,100 less than the operating funds provided for 1989-90 and is why the library is no longer open on Mondays.

On a brighter note the used book sale held over Oakland's annual sidewalk sale weekend raised more than $300, Mettiki Coal Corporation purchased The Grand Champion veal calf at the fair and donated it to Friends, Bausch & Lomb, Inc., recently donated $250 and Island Creek Coal Company donated $200.

Friends annual meeting is scheduled for September 12 at 7 p.m. The speaker for the meeting, which will be held at the Oakland library, is Sue Baughman, chief of Public Libraries and Branch Network Supervision for the State of Maryland. The meeting is open to the public as well as Friends.

Traditional summer reading normally consists of romances, mysteries, thrillers, etc. Hercule Poirot might say that too much of this type of literature is bad for your little gray cells. To prevent brain atrophy read Beyond the Khyber Pass by John H. Waller. In 1839 a British force invaded Afghanistan from India. They installed a pro-British ruler and left a garrison of 4,500 men along with approximately 12,000 camp followers in Kabul. Following a general uprising during the winter of 1841-42 the invaders attempted to retreat. Other than some prisoners who were later rescued there was one survivor. Beyond the Khyber Pass tells the story of this campaign from the balance of world power at the time to the glory details of the massacre of the British forces in the snow filled passes of Afghanistan.

Since then the Planning and Zoning director has requested the funds to review the Development Plan for Garrett County three times in his department budget, and each time the funds have been denied. In June 1991, a letter to you from Mr. Charles C. Bender, chair of the Garrett County Planning Commission, noted that after discussion on these same issues the members agreed the most appropriate course of action would be to undergo the process of updating the Garrett County Development Plan.

We are aware of constraints on county funds. We have also noted that the Planning and Zoning director's request for funds for this project has grown from $20,000 to $45,000 in three years. This suggests that the amount of money needed for this project should be thoroughly reviewed. We would also like to reiterate the offer of help from the Maryland Office of Planning in developing a revised Comprehensive Plan.

In conclusion, we believe that the Garrett County Development Plan must be promptly updated so that you, our elected officials, through our county government, can manage land use and development in Garrett County.

Respectfully submitted,
Constance E. Margison

To The Editor:

The following letter is a petition directed to Mr. Larry Munson, Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, asking Mr. Munson to take some sort of action that will prevent the Triax Cablevision Company from charging its customers full price for poor service. The petition is located at the Ruth Enlow Public Library on Second St., Oakland, and anyone who is in agreement and wishes to sign it may go there to do so.

Dear Mr. Munson:

Re: Triax Cablevision Co. of West Virginia

We, the signed petitioners, are seeking your assistance to correct a very serious problem here in Garrett County. The Garrett County Commissioners Office suggested that we write to you for assistance, since they have no control over the Triax Cablevision Company of West Virginia.

The problem is unacceptable quality of service provided by Triax Cablevision Company to customers listed on the attached petition. Poor service ranges from NO service to unviewable picture on all TV channels. Most often the poor service occurs during prime time viewing hours, and particularly on weekends when no company service personnel are available to respond to customer complaints. Triax has a monopoly on cable service in the Oakland and surrounding areas. The only other cable company in the area (SRW) does not provide service to areas serviced by Triax.

The problems are not a few isolated events, but occur frequently and repeatedly. On July 1, 1991, the service rates were increased to $15 per month for basic service. Since that time service has become much worse.

The majority of us have reported the problems to the company repeatedly, and also complained individually about the lack of corrective action. We have continually been assured that the company is "making improvements" and that service will be "good this week." Service has NOT improved.

We feel that we are in a very untenable situation:

1. Repeated complaints by individual customers, particularly over the last two months, have not resulted in improvements.

2. Service cannot be obtained from the only other cable company.

3. Withholding monthly payments results in a $3 per month late charge.

4. Termination of service until performance is improved results in a $62 re-connection charge.

We realize that any company can encounter problems; however, to continue to assess full charges when service is not provided is unacceptable. Poor service is not represented by a few isolated events nor is it confined to a few service areas. It occurs frequently and is widespread through the service areas as evidenced by the number of signed subscribers. Each of us can list specific examples of our attempts to get satisfactory service from Triax, but they are too lengthy to list here. Triax would receive many more complaints except for two factors:

1. Many subscribers in the Oakland and surrounding areas have service in vacation homes used only on weekends. Triax has no service personnel available on weekends, only an answering service. Calls result in no immediate action.

2. Local resident subscribers have reported problems so frequently, without obtaining corrective action, that they have stopped calling.

Other evidence of poor service are editorials and letters to the editors published in the Weekender and The Republican (local newspapers). Triax's recognition and admission of the problem is evidenced by their apology to the "People of Oakland" published in The Republican.

Since cable service is not presently regulated by federal, state, or local governments, our only recourse is to request your assistance in correcting unfair business practices by Triax - specifically, continuing to assess fees for services not provided.

We will be happy to relate specifics of poor service and our unsuccessful individual attempts to obtain corrective action from Triax.

We request any assistance you can provide in helping us obtain acceptable cable service.

Sincerely,
Edna Carr, Oakland, MD
Carl Roberts, Oakland, MD
(and the attached listed petitioners)

To the Editor:

For most TV viewers, the continuous "Special Reports" by Peter Jennings of ABC, and Tom Brokaw of CBS, and others, demonstrated to the viewers the virtues of TV programming without the frequent commercial and station "breaks."

This was the first nation-wide demonstration of what good TV programming could be like without commercial and station "breaks."

Of course, we all realize that commercial advertising is what presently pays the cost of TV, radio and printed page programming. But, how nice it was for those several days!

Most TV viewers have "mute" buttons that can be used to cut out the commercial sound, but the viewers have to watch and push the button again to get the sound back on.

For those with paid cable connections, they can be selective of cable programs which minimize the commercial interruptions. Many viewers are quite willing to pay the cable fees, just for this reason alone. Many would be willing to pay even higher cable fees, if all commercials were eliminated. This writer is certainly one of those!

For those who do not have cable services available, the satellite dishes are somewhat selective, but do not embrace all the desired programs. Without "dishes," they have no recourse, except the mute button.

Several years ago, this writer devised a system whereby the TV sound and picture could be deleted for an adjustable period of time, and replaced with nice taped music. He called it a "TV Pleasurator." The regular program would come back on in the adjustable time, usually 30 to 90 seconds. He even started a patent application. In the meantime he procured a new TV which could not be easily modified, and never carried the development further. He often wished that he had, since commercials are becoming more and more frequent and of longer durations. It is even difficult to tell when the commercials begin and end.

Legislation is sorely needed to limit number and duration of commercials and signals to identify commercials and programs, to determine which you are watching.

Of course, TV, radio and readers eventually pay for all commercials. Why not make it as simple, convenient and painless as possible?

Sincerely,
D. Noel Obenshain
Swanton

To the Editor:

The proposed congressional redistricting plan is both bad redistricting and bad politics. The proposed plan to put Republicans Helen Bentley and Wayne Gilchrest in the same district while the five Democratic incumbents are in districts facing no opposition is nothing but an effort to ruin Helen Bentley's political career. It's nothing but a political undermining of both Helen Bentley and Wayne Gilchrest recently elected to Congress.

One can see why this commission held its final meetings behind closed doors away from the public view. Democracy will work best when you maintain a viable two-party system.

To the Editor:

As a "disenfranchised" taxpayer of Garrett County I have been involved in an interesting situation with an official of the county.

Under date of July 26, I mailed via certified mail my check in payment of 1991 (more than $900) taxes together with stamped, self-addressed return envelope to Ms. Pat Glover, Treasurer.

On August 2, I called the Treasurer's office asking why I had not received the receipt and was told that the "July" mail had not been opened. On August 5, I again called and spoke to Ms. Glover, she told me the "computer" showed my taxes unpaid, but that by the middle of August I should receive the receipt.

On or about August 12, I received the receipt marked paid 8/9/91, however when I received my bank statement on August 19, I found that my check in payment of Garrett County taxes had not been paid through my bank.

I have read in The Republican reports of the financial situation in the county and am persuaded that at least a portion of the problem may result from fiscal management.

I would believe that a minimum wage person could well be used to open mail and that tax money deposited in an interest bearing account would be of value to the county.

Yours truly,
J.D. South

Gala Reception Planned For GCC 20th Anniversary

With banners proclaiming the theme "20 Years of Bright Beginnings," and blue and green balloons decking the campus, Garrett Community College will kick off its twentieth anniversary celebration with a gala reception at the college on September 14.

The reception will be held from 5:30 - 7 p.m. Refreshments will be served in a large tent on the college green, and a live band will provide entertainment. The event will take place almost 20 years to the day since the first group of students began classes at the college in September, 1971.

Although there will be no formal program that evening, special displays commemorating important events in the college's history will be exhibited. Members of the first graduating class and members of the first faculty will have been invited to attend the reception, and it is hoped that many GCC alumni will return for it.

According to Marguerite Perfetti, chairperson, anyone desiring an invitation to the reception should contact the President's Office of the college at 387-6666, Ext. 156.

Later that same evening, the GCC Alumni Association will sponsor a 20th Anniversary Formal Ball at the Silver Tree Inn, beginning at 9 p.m. Tickets will be available at Rob Michael's State Farm Insurance Office, at Marvin's Men's Wear, and in the Business Office at Garrett Community College. Only 80 tickets will be sold. Admission is $30 per couple.

GCSO Probing $1,269 Theft Of Firearms

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is currently investigating the theft of seven guns, apparently stolen from a Swanton residence on Wilson Road. The officers are also investigating a separate case of theft and one of property destruction.

Wanda L. Paugh reported to police that she and her family had left the home at approximately 10:10 a.m., and when they returned at approximately noon, they discovered that an unknown person or persons had been inside the house and had removed seven firearms from a gun cabinet.

Sheriff's Office deputies responded to the scene where they discovered that the basement door had been pried open as well as the gun cabinet. The cabinet was damaged in the process of the theft, according to the report.

Stolen guns included a 270 Remington Pump and a 30-30 Marlin Glenfield Lever Action, as well as five other guns of varying gauges. The loss in the theft has been estimated at $1,269.

The Sheriff's Office personnel are currently pursuing leads in the theft, according to the police report.

In another case of theft, an antique claw-foot bathtub was reportedly stolen from Taylor M. Sines, Sr., Oakland. Sines told police that he had removed the tub from an apartment building in Oakland and placed it in the yard. When he returned to the yard, the bathtub had been stolen. The item's worth has been estimated at $150.

Forest E. Miller, Lonaconing, reported that someone punctured the tires of a manure spreader on his farm land in Avilton. Upon inspection of the tires, Miller detected that the damage had been done with a small sharp object.

The loss in the destruction of property has been set at $340.

AAUW To Hold Organizational Meeting Sept. 10

The Garrett County American Association of University Women (AAUW) will have its covered dish, organizational meeting, "Local Education and Community Involvement," at Garrett Community College, Room 307, at 6 p.m., Tuesday Sept. 10. At this time the group will welcome new members and friends and will celebrate its 45th birthday as The Garrett Branch of AAUW. New members and the public are welcome to attend the dinner meeting.

Upcoming dates for speakers from the local education system will be announced and a short video on improving education will be shown. Jean Clark, president of the local AAUW, said, "We can ask what the national and state governments will do for education, but the fact is, if we really want to help our educational system, we, as citizens of Garrett County, must ask what we can do ourselves and then take the initiative to do it at the local level. That is why our Program Chair, Elaine Marple, has invited Jim Raley, Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Dr. Al Coviello, Dr. Brenda McCarthy and Ed Green to speak to the AAUW and invited public throughout our year's meetings."

To attend the Sept. 10 covered dish and meeting, persons are asked to RSVP by calling Betsy Fowler at 334-2909 or Gail Herman at 387-9199 and leaving name and phone number.

that the "Year 2000" objective-setting process is moving forward on schedule, and "the county is already getting recognition for the process."

Following a recent presentation to the Western Maryland Health Planning Agency's Governing Body by Garrett County Health Department officials, J. Lynn Shanton, chairman of the governing body, wrote that the Garrett County Health Department's efforts to "galvanize the entire county on the concept of illness prevention. . . is not just admirable but terribly long overdue, and one deserving of state recognition and support."

Persons interested in participating in the process are asked to call Carol Brown at 334-8111 or 8116. The task force categories are as follows: alcohol and other drugs; cancer; child health/oral health; education and community-based programs; environmental health/food and drug safety; family planning/STD's/HIV; heart disease and stroke; maternal and infant health; mental health; tobacco, unintentional injuries, and violent and abusive behavior.

tor for Garrett and Allegany counties, estimated the loss to be $45,000. Owned by James Miller, Mtn. Lake Park, the house was located about three miles south of U.S. Rt. 50 and Table Rock Road.

Residing with Shoemaker were his wife, Valerie, and their three children: Heather, 9; James Jr., 5; and Justin, 2. The family had no insurance on their possessions.

According to the family spokesman, the Shoemakers had recently moved here from Carroll County, where they lost their home about two years ago as a result of faulty wiring.

Friends and relatives are attempting to collect clothing, household goods, furniture, and money for the family, as well as locate another house for them. "They lost everything but the clothes on their backs," the spokesman said.

Persons who have any of the above items to donate to the Shoemakers are asked to call 334-8809.

Local Lutheran Will Vote At ELCA Assembly

Donald G. Roth, of St. John's Lutheran Church, Red House, is one of 1,050 voting members elected to attend the second Churchwide Assembly of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America which is currently being held in Orlando, Fla.

The Churchwide Assembly is the highest legislative authority in the 5.2 million member church formed from the American Lutheran Church, the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, and the Lutheran Church in America in 1988.

The assembly will elect a bishop, vice president and secretary for the ELCA. Bishop Herbert W. Chilstrom and Secretary Lowell Almen are eligible for re-election to four-year terms. Vice President Christine Grumm has accepted a job with the Lutheran World Federation in Switzerland.

Voting members will act on ELCA budget proposals of $93,308,000 for 1992 and $94,900,000 for 1993. An evangelism strategy and a multicultural mission strategy will be presented. The work of churchwide units will be reviewed and proposals for restructuring acted upon.

More than 190 resolutions, called memorials, from the 65 ELCA synods will be acted upon at the assembly. They deal with a variety of concerns including the observance of the 500th anniversary in 1992 of the arrival of Christopher Columbus in America, inclusive language, ELCA pension and health benefits, equalized compensation for clergy, human sexuality, immigrants and refugees, the AIDS crisis, and the environment.

THE MEMBERS ONLY CLUB of the Lighthouse Rehabilitation Program held its summer yard sale earlier this month, the proceeds of which allowed the members to visit Kennywood Park near Pittsburgh on August 23. The AMI (Alliance for the Mentally Ill) group was instrumental in making the yard sale a success by contributing personal donations and time. The Lighthouse members welcomed AMI into Garrett County by presenting them with a self-made banner which depicts the grass roots of the program. Pictured above with the banner, left to right, are: Kathy Uphold, Lighthouse Club president; Debbie Wynn, AMI Coordinator; Carol Cox, AMI corresponding secretary; Linda Shuttleworth, Lighthouse counselor and AMI member; MaryAnn Brenneman, AMI treasurer; Junior Brenneman, AMI president; and Brent Brenneman, Lighthouse Club member. Not present for the photo was Barbara Pritts, vice president of AMI.

Potomac Council Plans Training On Handicapped

Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, will offer a training class, "Understanding Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts With Handicaps." Saturday, Sept. 7, 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Scout Service Center, McMullen Highway, Cresaptown. All Scouters are urged to attend, and are asked to reserve a place by calling the Center at 301-729-1300 by Sept. 4.

According to Leonard Schwab, this is the first step in a plan to attract and mainstream boys with various physical disabilities into scout troops and packs. "Many people are not aware that the Charter of the Boys Scouts of America does not say that Scouting is for 'some' boys; it says it's 'for all boys.' We plan to let the people in the Potomac Council's area know that our National Charter specifically says that all boys, regardless of race, religion or handicap are welcome in the Scouting program that fits their needs."

Parents of children with disabilities can call the Scout Service Center for more information.

Oakland High Reunion Attended By Over 500

Over 500 former Oakland High School students and their spouses or guests gathered at the Elks Lodge on Hammill Street, Oakland, on August 10 to attend the second Oakland High School 1908-1952 reunion.

The tables and hall was decorated with red, white and blue balloons, and small black-board name tags, made by Bea Crosco.

The earliest class represented at this reunion year was that of 1922, its member being George Hanst, Oakland. Other early class members were: 1923, Katherine Helbig; 1924, Ruth Martin; 1925, Nellie Swartzentruber, 1927, Myrtle Durben and Carlton Bowser; 1928, Hasaleah Rice, Helen McIntire, Irva Reedy, Beryldine Stanton, Vivian Curtney, Mary Grace Umstot, Robert W. Stemple, and Evelyn Bosley; 1929, Ethel Sauro, Anna V. Beckman, and Paul Hoy.

Other classes were represented by the following number of members: 1930-7, 1931-8, 1932-10, 1933-12, 1934-20, 1935-13, 1936-13, 1937-12, 1938-10, 1939-20, 1940-15, 1941-16, 1942-24, 1943-13, 1944-17. 1945-11, 1946-10, 1947-34, 1948-14, 1949-10, 1950-1, 1951-35, and 1952-15. Former teachers present were Carl H. Everly, Sybilla P. Sharps, Tipton Sheet, and Perry Culver.

Members came from many different states including, California, Virginia, Kentucky, Washington, D.C., Georgia, Ohio, Indiana, Delaware, North Carolina, Texas, Missouri, Colorado, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Florida, and Maryland.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Judge Fred A. Thayer. Joe DiSimone and Rev. John Grant led the group in singing the Oakland High School Song, followed by a memorial for deceased members and the invocation by Rev. Grant. A buffet dinner was then served.

Judge Thayer called on one member of each of the following classes to say a few words: 1922, Mr. George Hanst; 1931, Harley E. Dawson; 1941, DeCorsey Bolden; 1951, Mona Lou Coberly and Jerry Moyer. A letter was read by Judge Thayer from one of the former students, Mary Sue Shockey Livingston, class of 1936, now living in Tucson, Ariz., who could not attend because of health problems, but hopes to be able to attend next year.

The class of 1951 presented Jerry Moyer with a t-shirt to show him that he had been accepted into their class of 1951 as Moyer was one of four who graduated from O.H.S. in 1950. This presentation was made by Mona Lou Coberly.

Special entertainment was provided by the "Never Too Old Girls" from Cumberland.

A large display of pictures donated to the Committee and put together by Jerry Moyer was shared. Any one having pictures they would like to display next year should contact Moyer.

Because of the large number of former students present, class photos were taken in several groups. Copies of the photos, which will appear in The Republican at a later date may be purchased from James Crabtree Photography.

Through the efforts of Nina Gnegy Keefer (class of 1938), organizer, the reunion is becoming an annual event. Plans have been made to continue every year on the second Saturday in August, at a place to be announced at a later date.

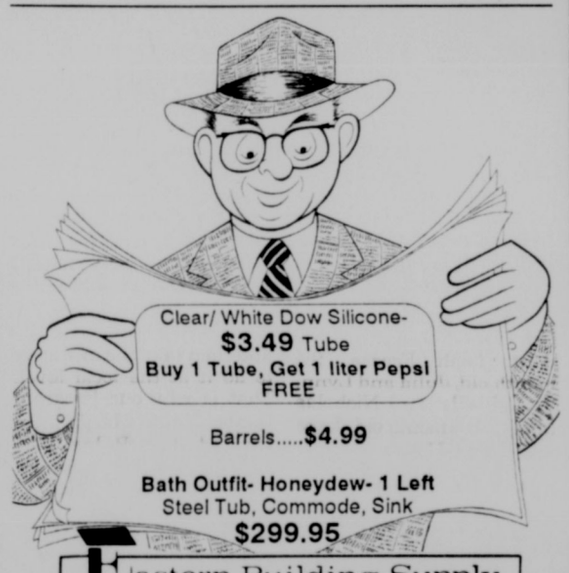
The 1992 Reunion will be held August 8, at a place and time to be announced later.

HEARING AIDS

DO YOU HAVE FEEDBACK OR WHISTLING WITH YOUR HEARING AID?
ARE YOU CONTINUALLY ADJUSTING THE VOLUME?

This is a common complaint that we hear from many hearing aid users. With the new Cleartone hearing aids you will not have feedback once the hearing aid is completely in your ear. You will not have to continually adjust the volume control, because the hearing aid will automatically reduce the loud noises for you.

We have found that it even helps those who have Tinnitus "ringing ears".



Come in today for a no-cost hearing evaluation and demonstration of the hearing aid!

SOME 200 TRIATHLETES from a wide region came to Mtn. Lake Park on Saturday to participate in the Best of the West Triathlon, an event which featured a .4-mile swim in Broadford Lake, a 16-mile bike ride through southern Garrett County, and a four-mile run, primarily along Dennett Road. Jim Railey, McHenry, is pictured below as he led the run and went on to win the event with a time of one hour, eight minutes, and 57 seconds. Railey, who competed in last year's Ironman Triathlon in Hawaii, has consistently finished among the leaders in the Best of the West, but this is his first victory. Railey finished 46 seconds ahead of his nearest competitor, Steve Hazlett, who recorded a 1:09:43, while Jon Vanmeter placed third in 1:10:30. It was a double-win weekend for the Railey family, as Jimmy's son, Lee, won first place in his age division in the Youth Triathlon held Sunday at Wisp in McHenry.

Jimmy Railey Captures First In The Best Of The West Triathlon

After finishing among the top five for the past several years, but never quite placing first, McHenry's Jimmy Railey cruised through the 1991 Best of the West Triathlon on Saturday to defeat about 200 other triathletes and capture the overall winner's trophy.

Railey, who placed in the top third in last year's Ironman Triathlon in Hawaii, finished with a time of one hour, eight minutes, and 57 seconds, 46 seconds ahead of his nearest competitor, Steven Hazlett, of San Diego, Calif., who recorded a 1:09:43. Railey finished the .4-mile swimming segment in eighth place with a time of 6:35, recorded the fastest bike ride of the day with a time of 37:01 for 16 miles, and then turned in the fifth fastest run of the day, 25:21 for four miles. Coming out of the water in eighth place, he passed seven racers in the biking segment and was just four seconds behind Hazlett when he began the running portion of the race. He quickly passed Hazlett, who recorded the 12th fastest time in the run.

Jon VanMeter recorded a time of 1:10:30 to place third, while Jean-Marc Katzeff finished fourth, John Ankney, fifth, Mark Bayliss, sixth, Charles VanMeter, seventh, and Andrew Whittington, eighth.

The first woman to cross the finish line was Rhoda Murtagh, who recorded a time of 1:21:36, nearly one full minute ahead of second place finisher Judi Carbarv. Beverly Basile was third, followed by Theresa Morningstar, Janet Gates, Lisa Buffono, Kassia Yanosek, and Shawna Barber.

Among the participants was Bill Fuller, of Winchester, Va., who completed the biking and running segments in two specially designed wheelchairs. Fuller and many other competitors noted how well organized the event was and how much they appreciated the support of those along the race course.

The swim race was an out an back event in Broadford Lake, followed by the biking segment, which took the athletes out of Broadford Lake Park, through downtown Oakland, along U.S. Rt. 219 north, along Spring Glade Road to Rt. 38, and back to the park via Pysell Crosscut and Broadford Road. The running portion was an out and back course along Dennett Road and Eighth Street, with the turnaround at the National Guard Armory.

Winners in the various age groups, male and female, were as follows: Tarick El-Bashir and Kassia Yanosek, 15-19; Bret Buggeln and Ellen Ewing, 20-24; Thomas Jacobs and Shawna Barber, 25-29; Mark Bayliss and Lisa Buffono, 30-34; Jeffrey Labrec and Elena Brown, 35-39;
